BRITISH INFLUENCE SEEN IN MOVE TO SHIFT MARSHALL AS CHIEF OF STAFF

HOPKINS REPORTED AMONG HIS CRITICS

President's Adviser Indicated as Favoring Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell, His Former Aid, for Post.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS.
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. — Whether Gen. George C. Marshall is to be relieved as chi of staff and sent on a European assignment as head of the Allied invasion forces, has become the subject of a spirited controversy today, with partisans of Marshall declaring that "powerful interests" were seeking to replace him.

The controversy was touched off by an editorial in the Army and Navy Journal, which used the phrase "powerful interests" for the first time. The editor of the Journal, John C. O'Laughlin, is known to be close to Gen. Joh.. J. Pershing.

Marshall Declines Comment.

Questioned by reporers while he was at the Capitol today testifying on draft legislation, Marshall declined to comment in any way.

Pershing yesterday declined to say whether he had gone to the White House to intervene in the Marshall controversy. Marshall is Pershing's protege, backed by him through every step of his career.

Back of much of the heat that the controversy has generated is the anti-British bias of important factions in both Army and Navy, supported in turn by important political influences on Capitol Hill. The British are accused by these factions of wanting to get rid of Marshall because he has been unwilling to go along with their views.

Hopkins' Role in Controversy.

Harry L. Hopkins, chief friend and adviser of President Roosevelt, is named as a principal figure in the scheme to replace Marshall. Hopkins' onetime assistant in the Relief Administration, now Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell, has been mentioned as Marshall's possible successor. There is considerable evidence that Somervell was anxious to succeed Marshall as Chief of Staff, and some believe that Hopkins helped to further his plans. But when Roosevelt two weeks ago extended Marshall's tour of duty as Chief of Staff indefinitely, it was assumed that all such plans had fallen through.

Anti-British factions, both civil and military, talk in terms of a fnndamental difference over strategy. They say that for more than a year the British have pulled away from any effort to decide on a ma-

MARYLAND FIRST STATE TO TOP BOND QUOTA BUT IS SHORT OF INDIVIDUAL GOAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP). MARYLAND became today the first State to exceed its quota in the 15 billion dollar Third War Loan, the Treasury announced.

The department quoted Hooper Miles, State war finance chairman, as reporting gross sales of 203 million at noon, or 103.6 per cent of the State's 196 million quota. Miles said, however, Maryland's quota for individual bond sales, amounting to million, was yet to be attained. He did not give the current individual sales figure.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced last night that total sales through Saturday in the 15 billion compaign amounted to $10,239,000,000. A new total to include the whole week end was to be issued tonight.

"I can assure you that the last five billion will be the hardest," he said.

"The 'big' money — money from corporations and insurance companies—is already in. The job of supplying the remainder rests squarely on the shoulder of the American people."

'CHARMING' DANCER SOLDIER PICKED WAS GOVERNOR'S WIFE

'Noticed Her When I Came in,' He Says, of Mrs. Dwight H. Green.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 20 (AP).—A soldier asked for a dance yesterday, and learned his partner was Mrs. Dwight H. Green, wife of the Illinois Governor.

"I noticed her when I came in but didn't recognize her," said Cpl. Eli Car of Sancti-Spiritus, Cuba, a member of the United States Army. "I asked her to dance and she said 'Of course.' She's all right . . . she's marvelous . . . she's charming."

About 300 soldiers and their friends attended an Elks' Club U. S. O. dance at the executive mansion.

U.S. TRANSPORTATION AT PEAK; 'DESPERATE POSITION' AVOIDED

Surplus Has Proved to Be a Life Saver, Board Says in Report to Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP). — "Under pressure of war conditions," the Transportation Board of Investigation and Research reported today to President Roosevelt, "the country is nearer to a fully utilized transportation system than ever before."

"Prior to the war," the agency said in its annual report, "it was feared that the transportation plant had been built beyond any requirements of the immediate future, but this so-called surplus of transportation proved to be a lifesaver and without it the country would have been in a desperate position both before and after Pearl Harbor."

During the postwar era, the board said, "there may be a temporary surplus of ships and airplanes and perhaps some pipe lines," while railways and highways will need improvement, new facilities and "long-deferred maintenance."

NAZIS ROUND UP BRITISH PRISONERS OF ITALIANS

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP). — The German propaganda agency Transocean said yesterday that British prisoners in war camps in Central and Northern Italy had been taken over by the Germans and most of them had been sent to Germany.

The broadcast, heard by the Associated Press, said that in a number of cases Italians had opened the gates to prisoners of war, but that most of those who gained their liberty had been rounded up.

Another German news agency, DNB, said 25,000 British prisoners of war had been removed from central and north Italy into Germany.

'TIME BOMB' AN ALARM CLOCK

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—The ticking inside a locked suitcase early yesterday sounded threatening to a soldier at the Army induction center. He called police. The police radio car made a slow trip to the East River, where a bomb could be exploded safely.

However, Pvt. Joseph F. de Terlizzi of Headquarters Induction Squad dashed after the police car, and took command of the bag. He opened it boldly. He found his precious alarm clock was safe.

ORCHIDS FOR BOND BUYERS

POMONA, Cal., Sept. 20 (AP).—Florist Nicholas Giatras put his $800 savings into orchids.

Then he offered one free to each purchaser of war bonds. The idea sold $10,000 in bonds, Treasury officials said. Explains Giatras: When the Nazis occupied Greece he had nine cousins, two uncles and an aunt living there. He's heard nothing from them since.

WAR LOAN DRIVE HALF OVER WITH ONLY 41 PER CENT OF GOAL REACHED

$74,175,116 Raised in 11 Days—Chairman Jones Urges Citizens to Buy Without Waiting for Solicitor.

The 22-day Third War Loan drive was half over today, but subscriptions in Metropolitan St. Louis thus far amount to only $74,175,116, or 41.2 per cent of the community's $180,675,000 goal.

The total represents an increase of $3,047,702 over the amount reported Saturday, Meredith C. Jones, campaign chairman, said. Calling attention to the fact that the goal must be reached within the next 11 days, he urged every citizen to purchase extra bonds without waiting until a solicitor calls at his home.

Every prospective bond buyer, he said, should go at once to his bank or neighborhood postoffice and enter his subscription. Although some 9000 civilian defense war block service volunteers are attempting to canvass all homes in the city and county, he said, their work is progressing slowly because often several calls are required before a householder can be reached for interview. Persons who wait for a solicitor to call, he said, unnecessarily delay the attainment of the campaign goal.

87,000 Buyers So Far.

Jones said drive leaders estimated today that a total of 87,000 persons have made bond purchases since the campaign began Sept. 9. However, a quota of 250,000 individual purchases has been set.

Purchases announced today included a total of $31,543 subscribed jointly by the Hipolite Co. and its employes. Employe group purchases included Missouri Rolling Mill Corporation where 233 workers purchased $60,475 in bonds; White Rogers Electric Co., where an unestimated number of employes purchased bonds totaling $10,358; Grennan Bakeries Co., Inc., 150 employes, $8689; and Joseph Lipic Pen Co., 10 employes, $637.

Twelve-year-old Donald McFall, 8426 Minnesota avenue, was on the campaign roster today as a full-fledged bond solicitor. After a week of assisting his civilian defense war block service organization as a distributor of drive literature, he obtained permission yesterday to try his hand at selling. His first canvass of his neighborhood resulted in the sale of three $25 bonds and one $50 bond.

Campaign headquarters also reported today that a woman drive worker entered a neighborhood grocery store Saturday to do a bit of marketing. The butcher noticed the bundle of campaign literature under her arm, and subscribed for a $1000 bond. A customer, overhearing the conversation, halted the worker as she left the store and matched the butcher's purchase.

Archbishop's Statement.

Archbishop John J. Glennon, speaking at a celebration of Ozanam Sunday yesterday by members of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul at St. Ann's Church, Page avenue and Whittier street, urged all Catholics to give the fullest possible support to the war bond drive.

The United States Treasury Department reported today that bond sales to individuals in Missouri thus far in the drive amount to 23 per cent of the total subscriptions. The national average is 22 per cent. However, the report stated, corporation purchases in Missouri amount to only 44 per cent of the total, compared with a national average of 61 per cent.

Drive leaders her said many corporation subscripti ns have been delayed by absence of executives or by the corporation bookkeeping incident to filing the Sept. 15 tax return. Such subscriptions are expected to be received this week.

TUG TOWS SHIP 1650 MILES

Trip From Gibraltar to United Kingdom Made Without Charts.

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Royal Navy announced today that an American-built tug, H. M. S. Destiny, had towed a ship 1650 miles through fog and heavy seas all the way from Gibraltar to the United Kingdom without charts and with only a pocket atlas as a guide.

The Destiny was commissioned in Michigan in July, 1941, and has since sailed the Caribbean and Mediterranean seas and the Atlantic Ocean.

BAR ON DRAFTING FATHERS MIGHT SLOW OFFENSIVE, MARSHALL WARNS

Testifying on Wheeler Bill, He Says a Delay of 3 Months Would Interfere Seriously With Army Program.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—Gen. George C. Marshall warned Congress today against "dimming the power of great Allied offensives by forbidding the drafting of fathers.

"We are on the offensive now," the Army Chief of Staff said. "It would be unfortunate to do anything that would dim the power of that offensive.

"We have, undoubtedly, very heavy fighting in front of us."

Testifying before the Senate and House Military committees on the Wheeler bill to postpone induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers until Jan. 1, Marshall apologized "for expressing myself rather vigorously."

Adm. King's View.

Adm. Ernest J. King, commander of the United States Fleet, said any interruption in draft inductions mikht "adversely affect the conduct of the war."

Failure to get quotas for which requests have been made of the Selective Service System, King said, would mean "deferment of ships and aircraft coming into the service."

Marshall said that whether Army quotas could be met without drafting fathers heretofore deferred was a question "for the man-power people," but he told Senator Austin (Rep.), Vermont, that failure to obtain th equotas "probably would force us to emasculate some of our units."

"It would emasculate the tail end of our Army and put us in a serious position," Marshall added.

Even a postponement of such a draft by three months, he said, would seriously interfere with the Army's program.

"While you've got the other fellow on the run, the more you do to cut him down before he regains his balance, the better it is," Marshall testified.

Asserting that the American armed forces have reached their peak of training and are poised for aggressive deployment all over the world, he said he was puzzled "by the reaction at this time."

It seemed to him, Marshall said, that, if Congress stepped in to interrupt the flow of men through selective service, "all we can do is reduce our program and change our strategy."

"Certainly," Marshall testified, "if you cut us now, we suffer a

SOVIET FORCES SWING NORTHWEST WITHIN 10 MILES OF WHITE RUSSIA

Other Troops in South Reach Points 20 Miles From Dnieper Bend and Only 8 Miles From Melitopol.

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP).—Red Army forces have captured Velizh, 65 miles northwest of Smolensk, in a push that carried the Russians to a point only 10 miles from the White Russia border, while in the south a town only eight miles from Melitopol was taken, a Soviet communique broadcast by the Moscow radio said tonight.

Bolshaya-Tokmak, 20 miles east of Zaporozhe, which is on the Dnieper bend, also fell as the Russians closed in fast in an effort to cut the railway entering the Crimea.

Hundreds of villages were seized as the Red Army offensive, now broadened to a 750-mile front, rolled on westward, said the communique.

In the drive on Smolensk and Roslaval, where the Russians are within 30 miles of those German central front bases, the communique reported advances of six to 11 miles and the capture of more than 350 populated places, including a rail station. Fifty more localities fell in the wheeling movement to the northwest that toppled Velizh.

21 Miles From Poltava.

In the Ukraine Soviet troops reached a point 21 miles northeast of the big Axis base at Poltava. Farther west one Russian column swinging south toward the Dnieper River below Kiev occupied Grebenka, nine miles southwest of Piryatin and 45 miles short of the river.

Much Booty Captured.

The Red Army was sweeping westward rapidly, meeting only lightly armed Nazi rearguards as they captured village after village. Huge stocks of food and munitions were falling into Russian hands, but there was little mention of the heavy armored equipment which the Germans expended so prodigiously in the earlier days of the campaign.

The Russians announced last night that troops under Gen. Andei Yeremenko, hero of the battle of Stalingrad, had cracked the German defense line before Smolensk over the week end.

The Smolensk area was apparently a focal point of the present offensive, with Gen. Yeremenko's troops bearing down heavily from the northeast to capture Dukhovschina, 30 miles from the upper Dnieper stronghold, while another column under Gen. Vassily Soko-

PASTOR AND FLOCK PICK APPLES ON SUNDAY, SAVE CROP

After Service at 7 a. m., in Slacks and Sweaters, They Work in Orchards.

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Sept. 20 (AP). — Garbed in apple-picking clothes, parishioners of the Centre Congregational Church attended a special 7 a. m. community church service and then, led by their pastor, the Rev. Milton S. Czatt, boarded busses to help salvage an apple crop threatened by a man power shortage.

The apple pickers, men and women, young and old, heard the brief service dressed in sweaters, slacks and overalls, with apple-picking bags slung over their shoulders.

TEMPORARY WORK STOPPAGES BY MEXICAN LABOR OUTLAWED

Decree by President Says Strikes Must Be Duly Declared, Go Through Legal Processes.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 20 (AP).—Temporary work stoppages, frequently resorted to by Mexican labor in recent months to enforce demands, were outlawed last night by a decree of President Manuel Avila Camacho.

Only duly declared strikes that have gone through prescribed arbitration processes will be recognized as legal, the President said.

In the case of illegal "collective suspensions of work," employes will be subject to fines deductible from their salaries. The President said the increasing number of work stoppages, usually for a few hours, were impeding production.

POLICE DISPERSE PETITIONERS TRYING TO SEE CHURCHILL

Crowd of 500 Attempts to Present Deputation Calling for Second Front.

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP).—London police were called upon today to disperse a crowd of about 500 persons at Downing Street and Whitehall who were attempting to present Prime Minister Churchill a deputation calling for a second front.

The Prime Minister's residence is at No. 10 Downing street.

The deputation was sponsored by 40 trade unions, mainly from the London area, and the London district of the Communist Party.

HURRICANE BLOWS ITSELF OUT

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 20 (AP).—The United States Weather Bureau here ordered all warnings down last night as a gulf hurricane, which had threatened the Texas coast for two days, moved inward over Southwest Louisiana, its intensity sharply diminished.

Although no damaging winds were reported in the Lake Charles-Lafayette area through which the storm moved, word came from the region that some damage had been done to rice and sugar cane crops by water.

PENINSULA SEIZED WEST OF SALERNO; GUNS NOW WITHIN RANGE OF BIG PORT

Clark's Forces Deepen Bridgehead—Planes Hit 246 Vehicles Out of 1800 in Retreating German Column.

By WES GALLAGHER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Fifth Army has seized control of the south side of the Bay of Naples by capturing all the commanding heights of Sorrento Peninsula, Allied headquarters announced today.

Already flanked on the seaward side by the occupation of the islands of Capri, Ischia and Procida on either side of the bay, Italy's second largest port thereby came under the gaze of Allied soldiers across 12 miles of water and within range of "Long Tom" artillery.

Meanwhile, a headquarters spokesman said that German forces had completed their evacuation of the big island of Sardinia under the impetus of attacks by two Italian divisions acting under orders of Premier Pietro Badoglio.

The Fifth Army, it was announced, deepened its Salerno beachhead, following up the Germans who apparently were making a full-scale retreat. The air force reported that American A38 Invader fighter-bombers attacked a column of 1800 German vehicles moving northward from Contursi, 10 miles east of Elboli facing the beachhead, and destroyed or damaged 246 of them.

(A United Nations broadcast from Algiers said the Allied penetration of the Salerno area now extended inland 19 miles. The British Eighth Army is joined "in full strength" with the Fifth, said the broadcast.)

Salerno Developments.

The occupation of Sorrento Peninsula, besides putting Naples within extreme artillery range, also brought within easy range the Italian naval base of Castellammare, recently bombarded by the British Navy, and the railway town of Torre Annunziata, both in the lower elbow of the bay. Smoking Vesuvius rose but 10 miles from the Allied mountain positions.

While troops occupied the peninsula stretching 22 miles west from Salerno, other parts of the Fifth Army slashed eastward and northward from their Salerno beachhead in the Montecorvino and Battipaglia sectors where the Germans were falling back under a merciless air lashing.

The Fifth Army advances were reported made "against decreasing enemy resistance."

Further reinforcements continued to arrive on the Salerno beaches to swell the ranks of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American and British forces which yester-

PRELIMINARY VOTE IN HOUSE FAVORS FULBRIGHT BILL

Powerful Bipartisan Group Gets Behind Postwar Measure Which Is Expected to Pass.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP). —A powerful bipartisan House group fell into line behind the Fulbright postwar collaboration resolution today and demonstrated sufficient apparent strength to pass it by a two-thirds vote.

A 252 to 23 vote, by which time for debating the resolution was extended from 40 minutes to four hours, provided the first measure of collaborationist power.

The opposition attempted in vain to limit debate, hopeful that the members, if denied an opportunity to discuss the measure, would return it to the Rules Committee.

Time taken by the procedural row and by two quorum calls, however, made it likely that the House would defer a final vote until tomorrow.

Opposition Speech.

The first indication of definite opposition to the resolution appeared in a speech prepared for delivery by Representative Hoffman (Rep.), Michigan, and distributed to reporters before the debate opened.

In its stead, he suggested substitution on the foreign policy statement drafted at the Republican conference at Mackinac Island.

"Are we here today," he asked, "the representatives of the people in Congress assembled, to wipe out the Declaration of Independence and, in its place, adopt a declaration of interdependence upon Great Britain and other nations of the old world?"

Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts told the House in opening debate:

"We of this generation have a real opportunity to make the greatest contribution in the known history of man—attaining the great objectives of permanent peace. It will require vision and courage and the united effort of men and women of good will to bring this about. We have the golden opportunity."

Committee Amendment.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee wrote into the Fulbright resolution an amendment saying in effect that Congress has the power to approve or reject any international arrangement to preserve the peace.

The qualification—demanded by the Republican minority—was ac-

Gen. Clark Tours Front in Jeep, Braves Nazi Fire to Cheer Men Up

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
Representing the Combined American Press.
Distributed by the Associated Press.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 19 (Delayed).—Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark visited the central part of the Salerno sector today, riding in a jeep through a minefield strewn with dead animals and the bodies of Germans.

Gen. Clark, who already is becoming known to his men as "the frontline General," not only inspected outposts but also went into two cities which had been taken and examined the damage they had suffered.

He discussed problems with various commanding officers in the field, including the heads of a number of patrols which he met while they were attempting to contact the Germans.

Gen. Clark inspected another sector of the front yesterday where the men were considerably bucked up by seeing the General in their midst, close to the firing line and at several points actually under mortar and artillery fire.

The General's face was like a white mask from the powdery dust of the country roads pulverized by thousands of war vehicles.

Wherever he stopped, he was surrounded by men who crowded around to hear his remarks of encouragement.

At several places where the fight had been extremely hard the General got out of his jeep and congratulated not only the officers but also the men on the fine showing they had made.

He was informally garbed, wearing a combat uniform of woolen shirt and trousers tucked into his hunting shoes. He wore a trench cap most of the time but when he came under fire he donned a helmet. He wore no tie and no coat, and his collar was open.

General Wrote Wife Invasion Was "Dangerous Venture."

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Mark W. Clark said today her husband had written her the Italian invasion was "a dangerous venture, but that it would mean a great deal to the Allied cause."

The letter, in accordance with her husband's instructions, Mrs. Clark said, was not mailed until the invasion had started. She also received a cablegram from his staff saying he was safe.

"I have no other news," she commented.

REPORT OF ALLIED FLEET IN AEGEAN STIRS NEW TALK OF BALKAN DRIVE

Island of Castelrosso, Most Southerly of Dodecanese Group, Said to Have Been Seized by United Nations Forces.

By ERNEST AGNEW

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP). — An Allied war fleet was reported steaming up the Aegean Sea off the west coast of Turkey today, stirring new talk of an imminent drive into the Balkans.

Italian refugees reaching Turkey reported the presence of the large concentration of war vessels and London morning newspapers quoted them as saying that Allied forces had occupied the Island of Castelrosso, most southerly of the Dodecanese group four miles from the Turkish coast and 90 miles east of Rhodes.

These refugee reports were linked in London with similar accounts four days ago of Allied occupation of the islands of Samos, Lero and Cos (Coo), all in the Dodecanese north of Rhodes, and with the reported departure of Britain's Ninth Army from Middle East bases.

Rhodes in German Hands.

Rhodes itself, largest island in the group, was reported last week to be under German control after the Nazis overcame the Italian garrison in several days of fighting. Refugees estimated that 25,000 Italians on Rhodes were outmaneuvered and crushed by 5000 Germans supported by dive bombers from German-held Crete to the southwest.

The worst fighting centered around the town of Rhodes where Italian artillery engaged mobile German units in a night-long duel, a refugee said.

An early cleanup of all German forces in the Dodecanese chain was anticipated in London. The Allies hold air superiority and the surrender of the Italian fleet removed most of the danger from the sea and virtually blocked the possibility of reinforcements to the enemy.

Nazis Reinforce Mainland.

The Germans, apparently anticipating a probable Allied thrust into the Balkans, were reported by London morning newspapers as still rushing troops into Southeastern Europe. These reports said troops were being sent into Salonika for eventual reinforcement of the garrisons on the Aegean island defense ring and that all Greek vessels, even light fishing craft, had been commandeered for transportation of supplies to the islands.

In the Balkans proper, the German occupying forces now are confronted by ever-growing forces led by Yugoslav Gen. Draja Mihailovich, an Istanbul dispatch said. Hundreds of Italians were reported to have joined the guerrilla bands, with all now receiving ammunition, food and clothing regularly and in some cases fighting with the support of Allied air power.

The Nazi-controlled Paris radio reported that Milan Nedic, Quisling Serbian Premier, had conferred with Adolf Hitler Saturday. The German propaganda agency Transocean, commenting on the visit, said "more and more people in Serbia and other countries of Southeastern Europe are realizing that England and the United States would never be able to prevent Bolshevization of Southeastern Europe in the event of Allied victory."

Meanwhile, the Daily Sketch reported that high Rumanian officials had gone to Ankara with the hope of establishing contact with Allied diplomats and sounding them out on Rumania's future if it should break with Germany and get out of the war.

LIBERATORS DOWN 10 ZEROS IN FIGHT OVER INDO-CHINA

CHUNGKING, Sept. 20 (AP).—American airmen, in a running battle with Japanese planes during a Liberator raid on Haiphong in French Indo-China Sept. 15, shot down 10 Zeros and probably destroyed 18 more, Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell's headquarters announced today.

Liberators escorted by Warhawks blew up the ammunition dumps at Tayeh, between Hankow and Kiukiang, on Sept. 16, the communique reported, and also destroyed warehouses and barracks.

Three American planes failed to return from the missions.

American Mitchell bombers raided the Japanese iron smelting plant at Shihweyao, southeast of Hankow, Saturday, and all returned.

British Take Gioia.

The British Fifth Corps, closing in from the Italian heel, captured Gioia, 28 miles from Taranto on the road to Allied-held Bari. The capture of Gioia had been reported last week unofficially.

The British troops who captured Gioia encountered no Germans, but only extensive minefields and booby traps.

There was little news from the British Eighth Army, which now has advanced some 250 miles from the southernmost tip of the toe, but it was considered probable that the German withdrawal near Contursi might have been caused by the Eighth Army cutting due north past the Salerno bridgehead.

Situation in Sardinia.

With the capture of Sardinia by Italian troops, the position of the Germans in Corsica, only seven miles to the north, apparently became untenable and the Allies gained the potential use of 10 airfields from which to press attacks on northern Italy and southern France.

It was not likely that much use was being made of Sardinia by Allied forces as yet, however, because of the scope of operations on the mainland.

(The German high command admitted that Sardinia had been given up.)

Allied headquarters said yesterday that the Italians acted directly on orders from Marshal Badoglio who, the announcement said, has been on Allied-held Italian soil since the Germans occupied Rome the day after his armistice proclamation on Sept. 8.

German troops on the mountainous island, that Benito Mussolini once counted upon as his No. 2 bastion protecting the approaches to the Italian mainland, presumably were too small to present substantial resistance to the Italians so they fled across the seven-mile-wide Strait of Bonifacio to Corsica.

(The British radio said French patriots and Italian troops, combining in action against the Germans, also had seized control of Ajaccio, capital city of Corsica, but that German troops, reinforced by the Sardinia evacuation, had occupied Bastia, small Corsican seaport and railway terminal on the northeast coast.)

Corsica Unfriendly to Nazis.

It appeared unlikely that the Germans could expect any more cordial treatment in Corsica, French island which Italian forces occupied after the fall of France, than they received in Sardinia.

The residents of Corsica, whether of French or Italian blood, displayed an active dislike for German domination long before the Allied landings in North Africa brought the first promise of deliverance. Disorders are reported to have increased greatly since Italy's surrender.

Of Sardinia's 10 military airfields, three are in the north end of the island at Olbia, Chilivani and Attana.

Although hardly as well situated for basing heavy bombers as the recently captured airdromes in southern Italy, they would be valuable bases for operations against northern Italy.

Sardinian Naval Bases.

Sardinia's principal naval bases at Cagliari in the south and La Maddalena Island in the north, the latter "worth 100 Maltas in position," in the words of Lord Nelson 140 years ago. La Maddalena is ringed with airfields, big guns command its harbor, and ammunition and fuel dumps are protected by underground storage. Sardinia has several other excellent harbors, especially Porto Torres and Terranova on the northwest and northeast coasts respectively.

Aside from its strategic position, the island's main contribution to the Italian war effort has been the products of its mines, copper, zinc, lead and antimony.

Sardinia, 166 miles long and 89 miles wide, is interlaced with many good roads and, as in Sicily and Italy, the Allies may expect a cordial welcome from the population of approximately 864,000 as well as from the two divisions of Italian troops.

An Allied conquest of Sardinia, if it had been attempted in the face of determined German resistance, would have been a long, difficult matter because the island is mountainous and offers excellent defensive advantages.

Coming Battle for Naples.

In sweeping out on the Sorrento peninsula, the Allied forces mounted a direct threat to the port of Naples from yet another side.

"As we control all the heights of the Sorrento peninsula we undoubtedly control all of the peninsula since it is unlikely the Germans would stay in the lower parts just to be destroyed," an Allied spokesman declared.

Amalfi and other towns on the south side of the peninsula were said to be in Allied hands.

In an order of the day last week, Gen. Clark placed Naples first on the list of cities he predicted the Fifth and Eighth armies would take.

With the Germans withdrawing, the Allied advance, particularly in the inland area, probably will be more rapid until the next enemy defense line is encountered.

Reports on Casualties.

Reports are reaching headquarters from the Salerno area on casualties. The full count will be taken when the divisions have time to sort themselves out as the battle relaxes.

The reports indicated, however, that the battle casualties were not so high as had been feared at first.

In addition to the recapture of Battipaglia and Altavilla, the Fifth Army also has advanced north of Battipaglia "in the face of stubborn opposition," the military spokesman said. Small gains also were made in the vicinity of Montecorvino.

Battipaglia, site of a former Axis airbase, is an important road junction southeast of Salerno. The enemy was driven from Altavilla, a mountain village 10 miles inland, only after bitter fighting. Fifth Army patrols once before had gained both towns, but withdrew during last week's German counterattacks.

Harsh Measures in Naples.

Italian refugees from Naples who have succeeded in filtering into territory held by the Fifth Army report that Italians in Naples are waging underground resistance to such an extent that the Germans have clamped down a curfew from 8 p. m. to 6 a. m.

Copies of a proclamation announcing the curfew were carried by the refugees. The proclamation also states that reprisals will be taken against citizens of Naples because a certain number of German soldiers have been killed or wounded by Italians.

The proclamation declares that a state of emergency exists throughout the Naples area, under command of a German military Governor whose name is given as Col. Scholl. It stated "anyone who acts against the German Army will be executed and the places where such acts are committed will be destroyed and reduced to ruins. Every German soldier wounded or killed will be revenged 100 times."

Allied Air Attacks.

Long lines of German motor convoys retreating northward from the Salerno battle area were heavily bombed and strafed yesterday. The Nazi ground forces were retreating in larger numbers than have been previously seen on the roads and were given an unmerciful battering by the A-36s which roamed at will, unmolested by enemy fighters.

The versatile A-36s were joined in the sweeps by American Warhawks and British fighter-bombers. Pilots found considerable traffic congestion at the junction of four roads 12 miles northeast of Eboli, and they made a concentrated attack on Pescopagano as well as on the arterial roads entering it.

Key Bridge Bombed.

British and Canadian Wellingtons of the strategic air force made a heavy attack last night on the approaches to the key highway bridge at Benevento.

The Wellingtons dropped many strings of bombs across the entrance to the bridge and 3000-pound bombs started a large fire among the adjacent buildings. The bridge affords the only crossing of the Calore River for a considerable distance and provides one of the main routes for the withdrawal of the German forces.

During the preceding night, Royal Air Force and South African Bostons and Baltimores roared low over the battle zone and bombed small groups of enemy transport and also attacked the railway junction of Capua and the freight yards on the outskirts of Naples.

A total of two enemy aircraft out of a very small number sighted were shot down during the 24-hour period against an Allied loss of three planes.

The German Air Force itself is keeping aground except for minor excursions. Not a single enemy plane was sighted over the Salerno battle area Saturday and the Germans avoided combat when American bombers blasted air fields in the Rome area, spilling their explosives among big concentrations of parked aircraft.

QUICK FALL OF CORSICA EXPECTED AS RESULT OF NAZI LOSS OF SARDINIA

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP).

THE quick fall of Corsica was expected in London today on the heels of the German evacuation of Sardinia which was seen as resulting directly from the Allied victory at Salerno.

One argument is that the Germans either had to hold both Sardinia and Corsica in strength or give up both and they had only elements of two divisions in the two islands before the Allied invasion of Italy and fewer men afterward.

There was considerable jubilation here over the clearing of Sardinia because it was felt that taking the island by force would have been considerably harder than the capture of Sicily, since it would have required a longer water haul.

JAPS ANNOUNCE NEW PLANES TO MAKE US 'SHIVER IN FEAR'

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Tokyo radio said Saturday night that the Japanese Air Force had three new-type planes that have made the Allies "shiver with fear."

The announcement said the planes — an Army patrol, a fighter and a heavy bomber—have engaged in "annihilation operations."

The broadcast said the patrol plane was named Shiti (indicator), the fighter plane Shoki (a diety who purifies the spirit) and the heavy bomber Donryu (dragon eater).

BADOGLIO CALLS ON ALL ITALIANS TO FIGHT NAZIS

Marshal's Plea Indicates Full Alliance in United Nations Drive—Details of Escape From Rome.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 20 (AP).—Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio told Italians in a broadcast Sept. 16 that it was their "absolute duty to fight on the side of the British and Americans against the Germans and against the few senseless Italians—no longer of such name—who put themselves at their command."

The text of Badoglio's plea was released for publication today after it had been flown here from the Italian mainland and after it had been disclosed that Badoglio escaped from Rome a few hours before the Germans took over the city, and made his way by automobile and ship to Allied territory.

The speech was broadcast by Radio Italiana, described as the "new official radio of the Italian Government." It contained the first public avowals from any source indicating that the Italians probably will be accepted as full-fledged allies of the United Nations in the campaign to drive the Germans out of Italy.

Surrender Talk "Out of Date."

The Marshal, who formed his government on July 25, immediately after Premier Benito Mussolini was thrown out of office, told his people "Do not forget that all talk about unconditional surrender is out of date and irrelevant to the changed conditions of today. We have intervened decisively against Germany following on the aggressive attitude of the Germans. We are co-operating side by side with the Anglo-Americans who are now accepting our assistance in the task of driving the Germans from the country."

"The British and Americans, our erstwhile comrades of the Piave (in the first World War) and Vittorio Veneto did not hesitate to state that their ultimate aim is the rebirth of a strong and united Italy," Badoglio continued, "and that they will not withdraw their help from us when the time comes to repair the havoc of war and to reconstruct our future."

Badoglio conceded that when the armistice was concluded "it was our intention to lay down our arms and abstain entirely from acts of hostility against anybody," but added that soon "we realized that whole German divisions were attacking our troops, occupying our cities and pillaging our stores."

He called on Italians—civilians as well as soldiers—to "carry on terrible guerrilla warfare" against the Germans.

Story of Premier's Escape.

The story of Badoglio's escape was told by an American who talked with the Italian chieftain but who, for the moment, cannot be identified. It follows:

After announcing the armistice terms to the Italian people on Sept. 8, Badoglio realized that the German troops around the capital planned to take it over and to take himself and King Vittorio Emanuele into custody.

Badoglio and his military advisers took a large number of government automobiles and made up a caravan in the early hours before dawn on Sept. 9. The caravan left Rome at 5 a. m. and sped to a port on the Italian coast.

There the entire party boarded an Italian ship and in broad daylight sailed down the Italian coast and into Allied occupied territory. The Germans apparently at no time were close to the party.

The true story of the escape differed completely from the version given out by the Germans who apparently thought Badoglio had fled toward Florence and then escaped by plane.

Japanese Scientist Dies.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—The death of Dr. Umetaro Suzuki, a Japanese authority on vitamins, was reported today by the Tokyo radio. Dr. Suzuki was awarded the Imperial Academy Prize for the discovery of "oryzarin" (vitamin B). He was a professor emeritus of Tokyo Imperial University.

U. S. CARRIER FORCE RAIDS JAP CENTRAL PACIFIC BASES

Targets Are Tarawa Island, in Gilbert Group, and Nauru to the West—Details Unknown Pending Return of Ships.

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 20 (AP).—America's growing naval strength has lashed again and in force against the outer fringe of Japan's zone of conquest in the Pacific, striking the enemy-held Tarawa and Nauru islands in prolonged attack.

The simultaneous assaults, made along the line of the equator some 2000 statute miles southwest of Hawaii, began Saturday night (east of longitude time) and carried well into the following day.

Their exact nature was not disclosed immediately, but the assumption was that they were spearheaded by carrier-borne torpedo and dive bombers such as raided Marcus Island to the northwest on Sept. 1.

(The Tokyo radio quoted a Japanese communique today as saying 200 Allied planes had raided Tarawa and Makin islands in the Gilberts over the week end. Twenty of the raiders were shot down, said the broadcast.)

"Strong Pacific Ocean area forces today conducted a heavy raid on the Japanese bases on Tarawa Island in the Northern Gilbert group and on Nauru Island to the west of the Gilbert group," said a communique issued by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet.

"These operations were carried out according to plan during the night preceding and for a good portion of the day of Sept. 19, east longitude time."

Details Not Available.

Then the two task forces sailed from the scene of their devastation, maintaining radio silence to handicap possible pursuit.

"Details of the operation are not immediately available," the communique added, and there seemed little likelihood they would be until the fleet units return to their bases.

There was good reason to believe, however, that destruction of military objectives on the two islands may have been thorough and perhaps complete. In temporarily neutralizing Marcus Island, 1200 miles from Tokyo, in the Sept. 1 attack, the Navy raiders were over the target for nine hours. Adm. Nimitz's announcement yesterday indicated the assault on Tarawa and Nauru lasted at least as long and probably longer.

The main use of Tarawa and Nauru to the enemy has been for plane reconnaissance and bombing raids on American outposts at Canton and Funa Futi islands. Nauru also is a major source of phosphate for the Japanese.

Pattern of Carrier Strategy.

The two task force raids in less than a months show the outline of a logical offensive plan to employ the Navy's increasing aircraft carrier strength in the Pacific to batter the enemy's island outposts under bombing by Avenger torpedo planes and Dauntless dive bombers.

The ultimate objective in softening the Japanese outpost holdings from the air of course would be to prepare the way for invasion landings.

Such invasion operations may be weeks or months away. But the official Army announcement of a new command designation for Lt. Gen. Robert C. Richardson Jr. hints that the Army's plans for the mid-Pacific now are definitely offensive rather than defensive. Before Saturday Richarson was commander of the Army's Hawaiian Department. Now he is commanding General of United States Army Forces in the Central Pacific area.

The attack was not the first in the Gilbert Islands. Planes from a United States carrier force blasted targets in the Gilberts and the Marshall Island group to the north early in 1942, and subsequently long-range American bombers attacked both Nauru and positions in the Gilbert group from bases in the Ellice islands to the southeast.

ANTI-HITLER ARMY GROUP SET UP BY 100 OFFICERS CAPTURED AT STALINGRAD

MOSCOW, Sept. 20 (AP).

IT was announced today that a "Union of German Officers" was formed here Sept. 12 by more than 100 Generals and other officers from five Russian prisoner-of-war camps, with the aim of bringing about the downfall of the Hitler regime and the establishment of a "free, peaceful and independent" Germany.

Calling themselves the "generals and officers of the Sixth German Stalingrad Army," they told their countrymen and Army that Germany faced worse isolation than in 1918 and added, "continuation of the senseless, futile war might any day cause a national catastrophe."

The Communist party organ Pravda devoted a full page to the announcement of the organization, reprinted from the newspaper of the "National Committee of Free Germany."

Artillery Gen. Walter von Seidlitz, who commanded the Fifty-first German Army Corps at Stalingrad, was listed as chairman of the Officers' Union and vice-chairman of the National Committee.

Chinese Spy Executed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Chungking radio reported today the execution of a "Chinese spy employed by the Japanese secret service with instructions to assassinate American flyers in China."

URGES CONGRESS TURN GARAGE INTO SERVICE MEN'S SHELTER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—A Representative who visited Washington's Union Station at 4 a. m. Sunday and saw service men sleeping in telephone booths and on counters and floors, proposed today that the cars parked in the snug underground Senate garage nearby move over and make room for men in uniform.

Rep. Tolan (Dem.), California, introduced a resolution to provide for clearing the garage of privately-owend cars and converting it into a 1000-bunk shelter for service men.

Describing the structure as well-ventilated and heated, Tolan said: "The cars can stand the cold weather, the rain and the sleet far better than our boys."

JAP AIR BASES ON BOUGAINVILLE BOMBED AGAIN

16 Enemy Planes Downed in Latest Assault on Foe's Last Stronghold in Solomons.

By WILLIAM F. BONI

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 20 (AP).—What appeared to be a sustained and determined effort to reduce the defenses of Bougainville Island by American aerial attack advanced into its second week today, with the enemy's air bases there further shattered and his air reserves further diminished.

Three surprise night raids by Mitchell medium bombers against Kahili and Ballale airdromes at the southern tip of the big Solomon island, followed by a daylight assault in force on Ballale by fighter-escorted Dauntless dive bombers and Avenger torpedo planes, marked the latest stage in this campaign of destruction.

The enemy, who has answered the challenge by bringing in squadron after squadron of interceptor planes, sent 60 aloft to meet the latest attack on Ballale—and lost 16, today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced.

Previously 84 other Japanese aircraft had been reported destroyed aground and in the air over Bougainville since the full-scale American aerial offensive began Sept. 11.

The airdromes themselves fast were becoming of doubtful value to Japan. Even before the latest attacks, Ballale was described as virtually unusuable, and now it has blossomed with new fires, its gun positions, revetments and garrison areas blasted and torn.

This, the communique said, was achieved at a cost of two American bombers and four fighters, the pilots of two of which were saved. For the period of the current Bougainville air offensive as a whole, American plane losses were reported at a ratio of one otsix for the enemy.

Allied air power also was felt in the New Guinea area to the west. Bombers of Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney's Fifth Air Force dumped 16 tons of explosives on Finschhafen, one of Japan's last remaining bases on the Huon Gulf.

In an air patrol off the coast of New Britain, two Japanese barges laden with troops were destroyed.

LA LINEA, Spain, Sept. 18 (Delayed) (AP).—Three large Allied convoys totaling more than 100 freighters and tanker passed Gibraltar into the Mediterranean today.

Twelve other merchantmen were waiting in the bay for repairs.

GREATEST FLEET IN HISTORY BUILT BY U. S. SINCE '40

14,072 Vessels Including 613 Fighting Ships, and 18,000 Planes Now in Service.

ALL CONSTRUCTION RECORDS BROKEN

Speeds Heretofore Thought Impossible Achieved — Landing Craft Program Pushed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—Production of ships, planes and munitions for the Navy has built up the mightiest sea-air power in the world—a gigantic fleet operating around the globe.

A Navy inventory disclosed today that the fleet now includes 14,072 vessels, 613 of them warships. In 1940 the Navy had only 1076 vessels, of which 383 were fighting craft.

The air arm, described as "the most powerful naval air force in the world," now has more than 18,000 planes of all types, compared with 1744 on hand three years ago.

During July, 1943, the Navy received almost 1200 completed vessels and close to 2000 planes, the report said. By contrast, in the same month three years ago, five newly completed vessels and 25 new planes were delivered.

All Records Broken.

"No naval construction program of comparable size and speed has ever been accomplished by any other nation," the Navy said. "Ability to build this huge new naval force—and to continue to build at the present rate—is one of the foundation stones of our military strategy.

"It underlies our amphibious attacks in the Pacific, the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. It protects our long, exterior supply routes running across thousands of miles of ocean.

"Most important, it makes feasible a strategy of attack, with all the risks it implies. Ability to build—or, if necessary, to rebuild—on this scale is one of the basic advantages which the American Navy holds over fleets of all other nations."

The tonnage of fighting ships—battleships, aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers, destroyer escorts and submarines—was 20 times greater in the first six months of this year than in the first half year of the defense preparedness program.

333 Fighting Ships Built.

The Navy said 333 new fighting ships have been completed since July, 1940, at a cost of 3 billion dollars. But the greatest addition has been in landing craft that carry troops ashore on invasions. The Navy said 12,964 new landing boats, costing a billion, have been delivered.

Fifty-eight warships were lost and 129 transferred to other nations or converted to noncombat use during the period.

Immediately after Pearl Harbor, new battleships were held to be of greatest urgency. Their production was rushed and new capital ships played a big part in the decisive battles off Guadalcanal Nov. 15 and 16, 1942.

As the battleship program moved into the clear and battles were being fought between aircraft carriers in the Coral Sea, at Midway and in Southwest Pacific waters, the need was for more aircraft carriers. They were produced.

Meantime, a huge landing craft program was pushed forward with 10,000 tons produced in the first six months of 1942; 218,000 tons the next six months; 375,000 tons in the first half of 1943.

Destroyer escort construction also moved ahead rapidly to provide an answer to the U-boat menace.

Speeds heretofore thought impossible also have been achieved in production of all types of fighting craft.

Production of naval aircraft has been swifter on a comparative basis.

"The Navy air arm of mid-1940 has been erased more than five times over," the Navy says, "but, the United States now has the most powerful naval air force in the world. Where there were 1744 naval planes three years ago, on July 31, 1943, there were 18,769, a 10-fold net increase."

Fire power of planes and ships alike has been increased says the Navy.

"New Navy fighter planes fire in one minute five times the weight of projectiles that their 1940 predecessors fired. A modern battleship's antiaircraft firepower is 100 times what it was three years ago."

And, with all the new production, there's more to come. The Navy says that ships o.. the ways in July, 1942, had a value of $1,800,000,000. On that same date this year the value of "construction in place" was $3,200,000,000.

"Despite its tremendous size, the naval shipbuilding program still moves upward," said the review.

CHIEF WANTS TO HEAR BUCK NEWELL'S WIDOW

'Interested' in Statement Her Late Husband Ran Handbooks With Police Aid.

Chief of Police James J. Mitchell said today that he intended to talk with Mrs. Geraldine G. Newell, widow of the labor racketeer Joseph F. (Buck) Newell, relative to her statement that Newell operated betting bookshops with the co-operation of certain St. Louis policemen.

"We will be quite interested in talking with Mrs. Newell," Chief Mitchell told a Post-Dispatch reporter. He declined to say whether an investigation has been started into her charges.

Mrs. Newell, meanwhile, declined to give the names of the policemen she said were connected with her former husband in bookshop operations.

"In proper time it will be told," she told a reporter.

Mrs. Newell's 16-year-old son by a former marriage, William Grasswick, is to be tried tomorrow at Hillsboro, Mo., for the murder of Newell. The racketeer was shot to death last June 2 at his home at Pevely, Mo.

SALES TAX BRACKET SYSTEM TO BE ABOLISHED SEPT. 30

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 20.—Instructions to discontinue use of the temporary bracket system of collecting the Missouri two per cent sales tax, and to require payment of the tax actually due on purchases, effective Sept. 30, are being issued to merchants by State Sales Tax Supervisor G. Hubert Bates.

The bracket system, which was adopted last Dec. 11 due to a shortage of tokens, resulted in many protests of discrimination in collection of the tax. This system, used when adequate supplies of tax tokens were not available, called for the actual tax due on purchases up to 27 cents, and progressive additional one-cent tax brackets thereafter, beginning with one penny on purchases between 28 and 74 cents, and two pennies on purchases between 75 cents and $1.24.

Bates said the State now was receiving deliveries on 50 million plastic tokens, which will replace the zinc tokens. Both plastic and zinc tokens will be used until the end of this year, and the metal tokens then will be retired and sold to the Federal Government for the zinc content. Bates said the State had purchased about 186 million of the zinc tokens and estimated at least half of them were out of circulation.

Russell Lawrence Bucknell, East St. Louis real estate operator, has been missing since last Monday, it was learned today.

East St. Louis police said Russell was last seen by a garage attendant when he brought his wrecked automobile to a garage at 331 North Eleventh street following an accident Bucknell said he had at 7:30 p. m. last Monday night. The attendant said Bucknell appeared to be in a dazed condition. Police believe he may be suffering from amnesia. Bucknell, 33 years old, resided at 3242 Audubon avenue, East St. Louis.

cepted unanimously by the committee a short time before the House was called into session to act on the resolution itself.

To the resolution by Representative Fulbright (Dem.), Arkansas, placing Congress on record as "favoring the creation of appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace, among the nations of the world, and favoring participation by the United States therein," the amendment added these words:

". . . Through its constitutional processes."

The committee rejected another amendment offered by Representative Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota to set up a bi-partisan "postwar planning commission" to study methods of international collaboration to preserve the peace.

Amendments Barred.

The resolution was sent to the floor under a procedure barring amendments—except the one offered by the committee—and requiring a two-thirds vote for approval.

This procedure was criticised by Representative Fish (Rep.), New York, who complained because members would have no opportunity to offer amendments. It made the House, Fish claimed, "a mere rubber stamp either to approve or disapprove a foreign policy."

"This is a very pious legislative resolution," Fish declared, saying he would support it. No one, he said, would oppose it and "nobody wants to vote against the Ten Commandments."

BOPP IN HOSPITAL, HEARING ON EMBALMING LICENSE PUT OFF

A hearing to determine whether the embalmer's license of Louis H. Bopp, St. Louis County Coroner and undertaker, should be revoked because of allegedly unethical practices was postponed until Nov. 2 today by the State Board of Embalming.

The postponement was announced by the board after it conferred here with Alfred Kerth, defendant's counsel, and Robert J. Ambruster, Clayton undertaker, who preferred the charges.

Bopp is a patient at Deaconess Hospital, where he is undergoing treatment for a carbuncle. He may undergo an operation, it was reported. A previous hearing was postponed on presentation of a physician's certificate that the defendant was physically unable to attend.

Charges that Bopp used his position as Coroner to solicit undertaking business and committed other irregularities were filed by Ambruster last July.

FATALLY HURT IN QUARREL

Struck on the head with a shovel handle in a quarrel with a neighbor about a fence, Sidney C. Eaton, 1313A North Twentieth street, died shortly afterward yesterday at Gideon, Mo., officers of the Missouri State Highway Patrol at Poplar Bluff reported. Gideon is about 50 miles southeast of Poplar Bluff.

The highway patrol said Eaton, 65 years old, had gone to Gideon to arrange for the sale of some land he owned there and became involved in a quarrel with E. J. Brewer, 73, of Gideon. Brewer is being held in the Gideon jail, the highway patrol reported.

CHOICE OF BLAKE LIKELY AS HEAD OF CONVENTION

Indications Are That St. Louisan Will Be Picked by Close Margin Over McReynolds.

By CURTIS A. BETTS
State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 20.—The selection of Robert E. Blake of St. Louis, general counsel of the International Shoe Co. and an authority on constitutional law and the Missouri governmental picture, as president of the State Constitutional Convention, which convenes here tomorrow, appeared probable today as delegates began to arrive in Jefferson City.

Blake's election is by no means a certainty, indications being that the vote will be close between Blake and former Senator Allen McReynolds of Carthage, also an authority on the Constitution and the Missouri Government. McReynolds has been the leader in the movement for holding the Constitutional Convention, having served as chairman of the committee which managed the convention campaign and of the committee which has done preliminary work in compiling factual information for the use of the delegates.

Governorship Race a Factor.

In the early stages of the convention discussions, there was a general assumption that McReynolds would have the presidency, but there developed several months ago a movement to defeat him, a number of die-hard Democrats, unwilling to forget his refusal to have a part in the Democratic organization attempt to steal the Governorship in 1941, joining with organization Republicans, who professed to fear that the position would be a build-up for McReynolds for the Democratic nomination for Governor next year. It is known the Republicans fear McReynolds in the Governorship race more than any other Democrat.

An announcement by McReynolds a week ago that he had no intention of becoming a candidate for Governor lessened the Republican opposition somewhat, but most of the spade work had been done and most Republicans pledged to Blake.

The opposition to McReynolds centered on support of Blake, who had not sought the place, but who was looked on as the logical man behind whom the McReynolds opposition could be consolidated.

The Blake strength has grown with the generally prevailing opinion that either Blake or McReynolds would make a good president, and that no mistake would be made whichever one was chosen.

The situation today seems to be that there are at least 11 Democrats who have said they would not vote for McReynolds. While McReynolds will get some Republican votes, it is considered extremely doubtful that he can get the number he would require. There are 82 Republicans and 83 Democrats in the convention. Both McReynolds and Blake are Democrats but Blake, recognized as an anti-New Deal Democrat, is acceptable to the Republicans. McReynolds cannot be classed as a New Deal Democrat, but his support of the Democratic candidates has undoubtedly been much more regular than that of Blake.

Opens at Noon Tomorrow.

The convention will convene at noon tomorrow. There is some talk among delegates of perfecting a temporary organization, possibly with Gen. Edwin M. Stayton, retired, of Kansas City, as temporary president, and then postponing the permanent organization a week, giving delegates an opportunity to get acquainted. However, the general impression seems to be that the convention will proceed at once to permanent organization, and be ready to go to work.

It appears probable that R. E. L. Marrs of Carthage, secretary of the Senate, will be named secretary of the convention. His opponent is Joseph A. Bauer of St. Louis, former chief clerk of the House of Representatives. The fact that Marrs and McReynolds both live in Carthage has operated against McReynolds to some extent, Marrs having strong personal support, and it being vertually certain that the convention will not pick both a president and secretary from the same city.

TWO MEN KILLED, BOY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Driver Dies When Machine Plunges Off Bridge—Bus Passenger Struck When Alighting.

Two men were killed and an East Side boy was seriously injured in traffic accidents in the St. Louis area over the weekend, police reported today. In addition, two persons injured in automobile accidents last week died here yesterday.

Harry Jenkins, 52 years old, defense plant worker of 3244 Morganford road, was killed early yesterday when his automobile crashed through a guard rail on the Illinois side of the Douglas MacArthur Bridge and dropped about 200 feet to the ground.

Employes of the Federal Barge Lines heard the crash and pulled Jenkins from the demolished car. They took him to St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis and notified police. An investigation disclosed the falling automobile had broken several high tension wires of the Union Electric Co. of Missouri.

Hit Alighting From Bus.

George Dewey Duncan, 39, a laborer, of 818 Angelica street, was killed Saturday night when he was struck by an automobile after alighting from a bus at St. Louis avenue and Twenty-third street. Fred Earl Fox, a carpenter, of 1532 Benton street, driver of the car, did not stop immediately after the accident, witnesses said. He explained to police he did not know his car had struck the man until he was informed by a taxi driver, Earl Huels, of 4742 Leduc street.

Huels told police Fox's car struck Duncan as Fox was passing the taxi on the right. Fox swerved his car to avoid Duncan, Huels related, and bumped into the side of the taxi. When Fox did not stop, Huels followed him for two blocks and told him of the accident. Both drivers returned, and Duncan was sent to City Hospital. Fox was booked suspected of manslaughter, careless driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

Two Die After Injuries.

Solomon Sachs, 70, of 6301 Southwood avenue, Clayton, died yesterday at Jewish Hospital. He was taken there last Thursday from St. Louis County Hospital where he had been under treatment for bruises suffered when he was struck by an automobile at Southwood and De Mun avenues. Physicians at Jewish Hospital said he was being treated for a heart disease, high blood pressure and other ailments. Maurice Losnoff, 410 De Baliviere avenue, driver of the car which struck Sachs, was arrested by Clayton police and released under a sheriff's appearance bond.

Mrs. Rachel Donnell, 61, of Flat River, Mo., died last night at Missouri Baptist Hospital of injuries suffered last Thursday in an automobile accident at Flat River.

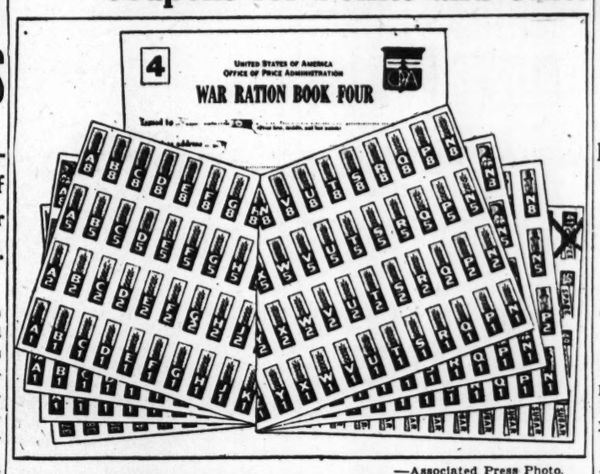

Harry Wallheimer, 14, son of Mrs. Alfreda Taylor, 1806 St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis, suffered a fractured right leg and internal injuries last night when he was struck by an automobile at Eighteenth street and St. Clair avenue. Physicians at St. Mary's Hospital said his condition was serious.

WOMAN TAKEN TO HOSPITAL WITH LAPSE OF MEMORY

A woman about 24 years old walked into the Deer Street Police Station this morning and asked help of officers in identifying herself. She said she had found herself riding an eastbound Wellston street car at Kingshighway when she suddenly realized she did not know her own name nor where she lived.

She is five feet, eight inches tall, weighs 125 pounds, has blue eyes and shoulder-length hair. Police said she had on a worn tan coat, black dress, white blouse, sandals and no hose. On her person she had only a pack of cigarettes and a coin purse containing 10 cents. She was taken to City Hospital.

War Ration Book No. 4 to Include Coupons for Points and Units

Here is War Ration Book No. 4, which the Office of Price Administration announces will be issued between Oct. 20 and 30. Distribution will be handled through the schools, rather than through the mails, as was Book No. 3.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—War Ration Book 4, for use beginning in November and designed to last at least two years, was explained yesterday by the Office of Price Administration.

The new book, to be issued at a nationwide schoolhouse registration the last 10 days of October, will combine point and unit stamps. There will be 384 stamps, printed in blue, red, green and black.

The red and blue stamps will be used in conjunction with red and blue tokens, to be introduced early in 1944 and given as change in stamp expenditures for meat, dairy products and processed foods. The green stamps will be used on an "interim basis" with blue processed food stamps, much in the manner the brown stamps of Book 3 are now being used in the meats-fats program.

Twelve of 96 unit stamps, printed in black, are designated for sugar. The same number are marked for coffee, which no longer is rationed. These and 72 others marked "spares" will be reserved for any additional foods rationed, OPA said.

Use of the new book for two years compares with four or five months for earlier ones. But the cost of printing and distributing Book 4, about $1,500,000, will be about the same, OPA stated.

Exact times and places of the schoolhouse registration, arranged because of lack of time for a mail distribution, will be announced locally, OPA explained, as regional offices complete their plans.

USED FAKE POLICE BADGE TO EXTORT $880 FROM 3 MEN

Police said today that Donald Dean Lower, who gave an address in the 4900 block of Quincy street when arrested for investigation Thursday, had admitted using a fake detective sergeant's badge to extort $880 from three men he had met at different times in the last three months in Forest Park.

The victims have identified Lower, police stated, and the prosecutor will be asked to issue warrants charging him with extortion and impersonating an officer. He was booked on suspicion of such offenses.

Lower, who has used the alias Donald D. Lawson, is 24 years old, police said, and admitted that he served one year in a California prison after his conviction on a charge of extortion in Los Angeles in 1939.

ABSENTEEISM UP TO UNION

Local 16 of the CIO Steel Workers Union, which recently won a battle to obtain one Sunday in three off after a five-day strike of 359 open hearth workers, must assume responsibility if absenteeism increases, the regional War Labor Board in Kansas City, Mo., said yesterday.

The company proposed to give the workers one Sunday in seven off, contending absenteeism would increase if the workers' plan were adopted. The board said if absenteeism increased, the union would be given 30 days to reduce it, and, if the union failed the company's plan would be established.

EXPLAINS NEED FOR CAREFUL PACKING AT ORDNANCE PLANTS

Packaging problems were described as "the most difficult in history" by Neil A. Fowler, Chief, Packaging Section, Chief of Ordnance, Washington, D. C., at a meeting of ordnance contractors from the eight-state area covered by the St. Louis Ordnance District, which was held today at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, 3637 Lindell boulevard.

Fowler, who recently returned from a four-month tour of North Africa, Egypt, Iraq, Iran, India and China, said, "Packages must be built to withstand Indian monsoons, more than 400 inches of rainfall annually at one tropical island outpost, 150 degrees of temperature in Iran, and the universal pilfering by natives."

Fowler estimated that losses of ordnance materiel resulting from stealing ran as high as 20 per cent in some of the areas he visited. "In India, he said, "a gallon of brake fluid is worth $65 on the black market."

"I discovered on the our that cargoes withstood the hazards of shipping in good condition only when the packers had followed Ordnance office instructions to the letter," he said.

8 KILLED, 52 HURT WHEN BUS, TRAIN CRASH IN ILLINOIS

Most of Casualties Were Motor Coach Passengers —Two From This Area Injured Slightly.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

JOHNSTON CITY, Ill., Sept. 20 (AP).—Collision of a crowded Greyhound bus and a two-car Missouri Pacific railroad passenger train yesterday killed eight persons and injured at least 52.

In the accident at a crossing two miles south of here the cab and side of the bus were smashed and the engine-baggage car of the Diesel-powered Marion-to-St. Louis train was overturned.

Most of the casualties were passengers on the bus bound from Memphis, Tenn., for Chicago. Among the slightly injured were Dr. Luciano Milla Cisneros, 53 years old, Honduran Minister to Guatemala, and his daughter, Sofia Milla, 22. They were en route to Rochester, Minn.

Hospitals at West Frankfort, Herrin and Marion and an emergency center established by the Red Cross and Civilian Defense in Herrin cared for the injured.

The dead were: J. R. Hard, 38, Memphis, the bus driver; Louis Lookofsky, Paducah, Ky.; Ed White, Johnston City; Dorothy Pate, Memphis; Eddie Louis Marshall, 1-year-old Negro, Hutting, Ark.; Georgia Hawkins, Negro, Milwaukee, Mrs. Blanche Bostic, 44, Memphis, and Paul Shanhart, Newton, Ill.

Among those taken to the hospital in Herrin were C. W. Walker of East St. Louis, conductor of the train; G. C. Mozo of St. Louis, train engineer; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Poole of Maplewood, Mo., and their 1-year-old son, James.

The Pooles were the only passengers on the train.

Mozo and Walker were taken to the Missouri Pacific Hospital in St. Louis last night by ambulance, but railroad officials said they were not seriously injured. Mozo lives at 6017 South Grand avenue and Walker lives at 712 Alhambra court, East St. Louis. C. F. Sutton, working as express messenger on the train, was unhurt. He lives at 6391 Smiley avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Poole, 7445 Maple avenue, Maplewood, and their son were unhurt, according to a member of the family. They had been visiting relatives in Marion and were returning home. He is employed at Union Station.

SWISS-ITALIAN FRONTIER STATION CLOSED BY NAZIS

All Passes Invalidated — Violent Fighting Reported in Northwestern Italy.

AT THE SWISS - ITALIAN FRONTIER, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Ponte Chiasso customs station on the Italian side of the Swiss-Italian frontier, where hundreds of Italian troops and civilians have been massing in an effort to flee the country, was closed today by German troops.

Passports, frontier cards and visas were invalidated and some 600 persons who until now had crossed the border daily to work were detained on whichever side of the border they were caught by the action.

Nazi occupation authorities have completely suspended passenger traffic from Como, Italy, into Switzerland. A few freight trains were permitted to go through.

Italian Alpine troops in the upper Dora Baltea River basin in the extreme northwestern part of Italy are engaged in violent fighting with the Germans, reports reaching here said.

The reports placed the locale in the vicinity of the city of Aosta which is 30 miles southeast of the junction of the Swiss, Italian and French borders.

Fighting between Germans and Italians also was reported in Central Italy especially in the province of Marche—the calf of the Italian boot on the Adriatic Sea.

Frontier reports said earlier rumors that the Brenner Pass, connecting link between Germany and Italy, had been sabotaged by Italians are not true, and said the pass still is open.

Milan workers failing to appear at war industry jobs are being arrested, the Swiss newspaper Die Tat said. It added that a majority of the workers in Turin, which like Milan is a major northern Italian industrial city, have stayed at home. Some demonstrations in the workers districts have resulted in action by the German Army.

The newspaper asserted that a "real rebellion was organized near Cuneo," an Italian city 43 miles west of the French border and 50 miles north of the seacoast. There, the account continued, an Italian Army force arrived from France led by a captain.

Many Italians who listened to the radio speech yesterday by a voice purported to be that of Benito Mussolini are convinced that it actually was his voice they heard, the Swiss Telegraphic Agency reported. The speaker urged the Italians to take up arms again by the side of Germany and Japan and attacked the Italian Royal House of Savoy.

ONLY ONE ALLIED SHIP SINKING IN W. ATLANTIC ANNOUNCED IN 4 WEEKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).

A NEW record low of destruction by Axis U-boats operating in the Western Atlantic has been established in the last 28 days with only one Allied or neutral merchant ship sinking announced.

Since Pearl Harbor submarines have destroyed 687 neutral and Allied cargo ships in the Westren Atlantic.

Last week as in two of the three previous weeks, no new sinkings were announced, bearing out Navy Secretary Frank Knox's recent comment that the Allies have given German U-boats "a good shellacking."

Marine underwriters took notice of the improved shipping situation by announcing reduction of war risk insurance rates on shipments between New York and the United Kingdom, Eire and northern Ireland to 4 per cent, lowest quoted rate since 1940.

A year ago the rates on similar shipments was 10 per cent.

In the first 20 days of September this year the Navy announced only one Western Atlantic cargo ship loss. During September, 1942, 30 non-Axis merchant ships were reported sunk in these waters.

COURT OF APPEALS UPHOLDS SEDITION CONVICTIONS OF 18

Socialist Party Group Had Been Found Guilty of Plot to Undermine Armed Services.

Convictions and sentences of 18 persons, affiliated with the Socialist Workers' Party, who were found guilty Dec. 2, 1941, in a United States District Court at Minneapolis, Minn., of conspiring to undermine the loyalty and discipline of American soldiers and sailors, were upheld in an opinion of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals filed here today.

Presiding Judge Kimbrough Stone wrote the oponion which was concurred in by Judges Harvey M. Johnsen and Walter G. Riddick. Judge Stone wrote, "A thorough examination of the record leaves no doubt as to the sufficiency of the evidence and as to the justice of the verdict."

Taking into consideration the defense contention that the Smith amendment to the Sedition Act of 1861, under which the 18 were convicted, may abridge freedom of speech, the Court said in its opinion, "no such extremity exists." It was proven in the trial that the defendants were convicted "not on what they said, or wrote," the Court stated, "but on the intent of their utterances."

The defendants were given terms ranging from a year and a day to 16 months. They were among 29 persons indicted by a Federal Grand Jury July 15, 1941, after raids on Socialist Workers' Party offices at Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Bushels of literature were seized in the raid along with two red flags and several pictures of Leon Trotsky, Communist leader who was assassinated in Mexico. Three weeks before the trial started, Grant Dunne, Minneapolis labor leader, ended his life. Indictments against five others were dismissed on defense motions and five others were acquitted by the trial jury.

Those convicted were Albert Goldman, New York attorney; Vincent Raymond Dunne, labor union leader of Minneapolis and brother of Grant Dunne; Harry DeBoer, Carlos Hudson, Clarence Hamel, Emil C. Hansen, Jake Cooper, Edward Palmquist, Carl Skogland, all either members of or associated with the Socialist Workers' Party; James P. Cannon, New York, national secretary of the party; Mrs. Grace Carlson, State organizer; Felix Morrow of New York, editor of the New Militant, official party organ; Oscar Coover, Alfred Russell, Oscar Schoenfeld, Max Geldman, Farrell Dobbs and Carl Kuehn.

The count on which the defendants were convicted charged that they conspired to "interfere with, impair and influence the loyalty, morale and discipline of the military and naval forces of the United States." It further charged them with distributing literature which advised the "necessity, desirability and propriety of overthrowing and destroying the Government of the United States by force and violence."

GIRL, 15, FOUND MURDERED IN HOTEL; COMPANION SOUGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—Police were seeking today the identity of a man clad in a sailor uniform, who was reported to have been with Frances Mary Wallace of Philadelphia, 15 years old, Saturday night several hours before she was found dead in a hotel room here.

The girl, found lying on a bed with her skull crushed and a wooden coat hanger thrust down her throat, was identified yesterday by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wallace. They had reported their daughter missing last July.

Detective John Hawthorne said that the girl and a man in a seaman's outfit registered as "Mr. and Mrs. McGillick" at the Hotel Cosmopolitan and that the man was seen leaving the hotel 45 minutes later.

Hawthorne said Mrs. Wallace had given him the names of several sailors the girl had known in Philadelphia. More than 30 persons have been questioned by police but all have been released.

AIRPORT WEATHER BUREAU ADDITION OFFERED BY ARMY

The Army has offered to construct a $10,000 addition to the administration building at Lambert-St. Louis Municipal Airport to provide additional space for the Civil Aeronautics Authority and the Weather Bureau, Director of Public Utilities Milton M. Kinsey announced today.

The addition would consist of a second floor to be added to the present one-story wing on the north side of the building and would increase the floor space 25 per cent, Kinsey said. Under the terms of the contract, the Army would build the addition and lease it from the city for a $1-a-year rental for the duration and six months, after which it would revert to the city. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment will consider the offer.

BRITISH, GERMAN NAVAL CLASH

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Berlin radio reported today that German coastal patrol boats and British speed boats met in an engagement off the coast of Ijmuiden, Holland, last night.

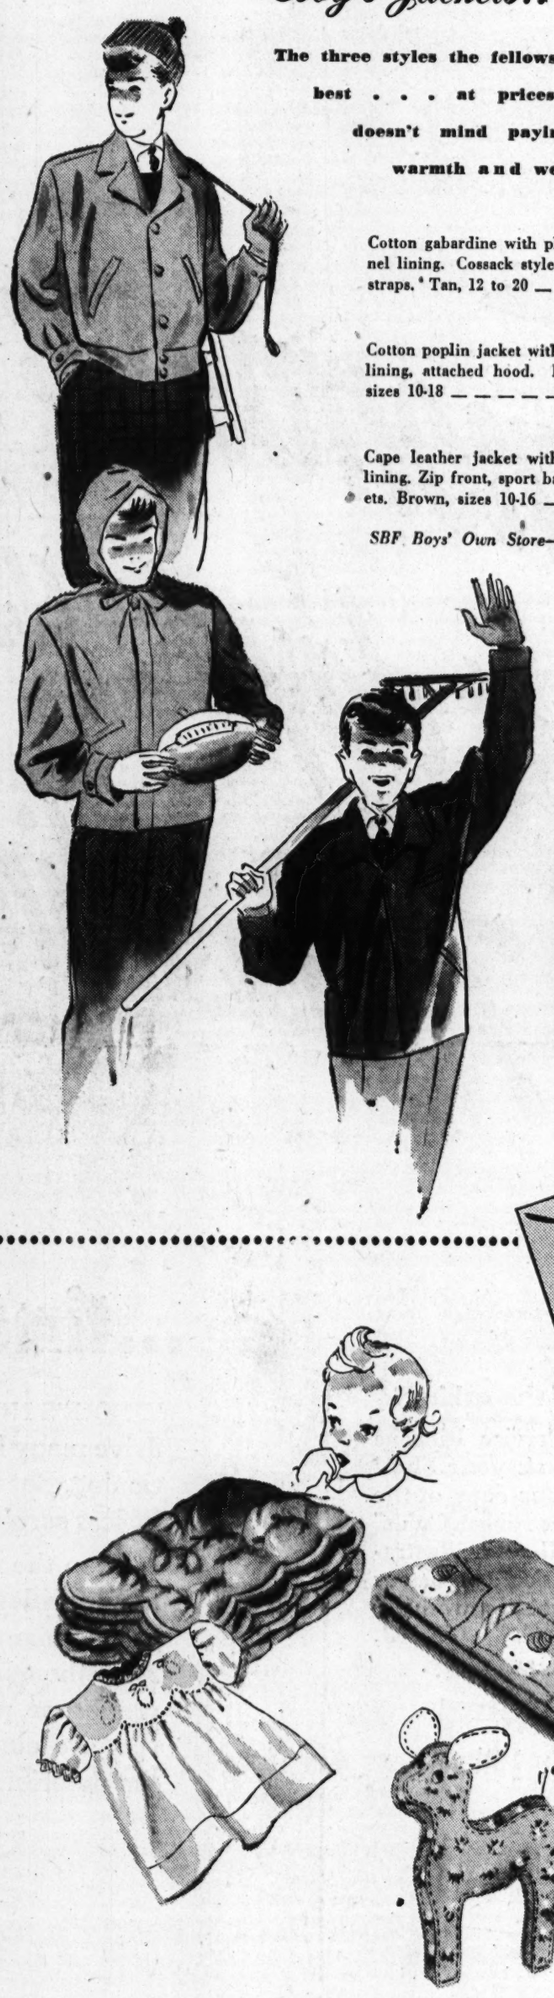

Fires were observed in two British boats, the Nazis said, and the flotilla disappeared behind a smoke screen. There was no British confirmation of the encounter.

Yanks Cut Off in Italian 'Alamo' Hold On Till Only 30 of 100 Are Left

Throw Rocks and Cans at Nazis When Ammunition Runs Low—Survivors Break Through to Own Lines.

By RELMAN MORIN

WITH THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 16.—(Delayed). — (AP). — The Americans have just finished the defense of one of the most important Italian towns in this front.

(This dispatch did not name the town, which might have been either Altavilla or Battipaglia, both of which now have been recaptured by the Fifth Army).

Few defenders got out.

They left the citadel only under orders and only when their ammunition was exhausted except for what they needed to fight their way through the German lines which had closed around them.

In repelling the last German assault they threw rocks, empty ammunition clips and even cans of rations as well as all the lead they could spare.

Unit Outran Support.

The story begins two days after the American landing on the Gulf of Salerno. This battalion was assigned to penetrate swiftly to high ground some 10 miles from the beach head and seize the town. It did.

The Germans immediately organized a counterattack with a strong infantry force backed up by tanks and covered by a powerful bombardment from their 88-millimeter guns.

Support for the Americans had not had time to reach them. For two days they were pinned down in the town, fighting from houses, buildings, behind fences and any sort of cover available.

Corp. David J. Davis of Cleveland, Tex., found a nice soft spot in a hog pen.

"It wasn't exactly the spot I would have picked if I had had any choice," he said, "but I have to admit it was easy to dig a foxhole in."

Shelter in Stone Building.

Gradually the men all gravitated into a thick-walled, stone building, probably a former Fascist headquarters, which commanded a number of the German lines of entry into the town.

There were about 100 of them, some of whom were wounded on the afternoon they received the orders to withdraw from the town. The main American forces still were nearly five miles back of them, and they knew they were encircled because they heard their own artillery shell the ground between them and the American lines.

But it was sheer suicide to attempt to get back to safety in broad daylight. Although their ammunition was running low, they had no choice but to stay in the building they were sure they could halt the Germans until darkness. The enemy again had drawn close to their miniature fortress with tanks in the streets and artillery beginning the usual late afternoon bombardment.

They had one German prisoner with them. He told them he was a wholly unenthusiastic Nazi and had been imprisoned before the war for writing a letter to a German newspaper suggesting that the Government build more houses and fewer tanks. He tuned their radio into the German broadcasting frequency and interpreted orders to the artillery and tanks from the German commanders so that they knew pretty well what to expect.

Thirty Men Get Away.

"The last attack was really something," said Lt. Louis N. Quast of St. Paul, Minn. "They got two machine guns into positions flanking the building and then the infantry came at us time after time."

There were only 30 men still able to fight back and they fought with everything they could pick up and throw in order to conserve their ammunition for the moment when they could attempt to break out of the town.

"Even so, we got two for one," said Lt. John Wickham of Quincy, Mass.

Under cover of darkness, when it finally came, the remaining 30 soldiers slipped out of the building and reached a narrow ravine from which they were able to make good their escape. They sighted German armored vehicles several times but wormed their way past them through the woods.

What bothers them most is that they had to leave the wounded behind.

AIRFIELDS IN FRANCE, HOLLAND HIT BY MEDIUM BOMBERS

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP).—American and British battle planes escorted by fighters streaked across the channel in large formations yesterday to blast away at Nazi airfields and industrial targets in France and Holland.

The daylight attacks followed up sweeps over industrial targets in the Rhineland Saturday night by Royal Air Force Mosquitos and a continuation of the mine-laying program by craft of the R. A. F. bomber command.

American Marauders, escorted by Spitfire fighters, bombed the Nazi airfield at Lille in one of yesterday's forays.

R. A. F. Typhoons, meanwhile, pounded airfields at Merville in northern France and Woensdrecht in Holland, while Mitchells struck industrial targets near Bethune in France.

Six German fighter planes were destroyed and three Allied fighters are missing from the operations.

Trees Finest, But Which Ones.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 20 (AP).—The City Park Department was happy to learn seven of its trees have been chosen by the American Forestry Association as the finest of their species in America. It would be even happier if park officials—who have searched thoroughly but vainly—could tell just which trees the association is talking about. Measurements and locations proved fruitless clews.

MILITARY PACKAGES GO EARLY

Heeding advice to mail Christmas packages early to persons in military service overseas, St. Louisans have dispatched 5182 parcels, weighing 18,423 pounds, to foreign posts since last Wednesday, Postmaster W. Rufus Jackson said today.

Jackson emphasized maximum weight is five pounds, maximum length 15 inches. Especially prepared mailing containers, he said, are made up to maximum size and should not be wrapped in paper as they then exceed the limit.

PUBLIC WARNED TO IGNORE ENEMY RADIO ON PRISONERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—The American Red Cross says short-wave broadcasts from enemy nations purporting to give information about American prisoners of war should be ignored.

Announcing that "hundreds of service men's families" have received false casualty reports, the Red Cross quoted the Federal Bureau of Investigation today as stating that the spreading of such reports indicates a substantial force of enemy representatives strategically placed throughout the country, working under enemy orders to undermine American morale.

TIRE, GASOLINE COUPONS STOLEN

Ration certificates for two new automobile tires and 128 C ration coupons for gasoline were stolen Saturday afternoon from the apartment of Vernon J. Patterson, 1921 State street, East St. Louis, police reported.

Patterson, a Government meat grader, who drives about 1000 miles a week, told police the theft would prevent him from working until the stamps and certificates are replaced. The thief, who entered by an unlatched front door, ignored a $50 war bond and a change bank in the dresser drawer with the stamps and certificate.

...time to change your motor oil, too!

THERE'S NO DOUBT ABOUT IT—you drive many less miles with gasoline rationing. But that doesn't mean you can be less careful about changing your oil!

Even the finest motor oil is exposed to impurities, dust, abrasives and other contaminants carried through the air. And though your oil lies idle in the crankcase, partially burned fuel particles are constantly promoting the deterioration of your oil.

In addition, with today's short trips at lower driving speeds, engines do not get hot enough to "cook off" water formed by combustion and condensation. This water accumulates in your crankcase. further contaminates your oil.

Keep on the safe side. Change your oil every time you change your gasoline coupons. Then you know that you are not taking chances. See your Shell Dealer!

CONDITION OF BOY STABBED IN FRONT OF HOME SERIOUS

Amos Warren, 16 years old, was in serious condition today at City Hospital with a stab wound in the left side of the chest. He was able to tell police only that he had been attacked by two men early Sunday morning in the front yard of his home, 1411 Park avenue. He said the men, whom he was unable to describe, knocked him down.

The youth, a shoemaker, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Warren, who told police he walked into their bedroom at about 4 a. m., said he had been stabbed and collapsed.

BROODING OVER ITALY'S FALL, NEW YORK FASCIST KILLS SELF

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—The surrender of Italy and Mussolini's downfall had a sequel yesterday in a New York apartment. A man identified by police as Mario Quarello, 37 years old, was found dead on the floor, dressed in an outfit that Patrolman George Enger described as full Fascist regalia. Two notes lay beside the body. One, addressed to Quarello's wife, was quoted by Enger as saying:

"I don't believe that I can live under the impression that we are all cowards. It's too much for me. I love the Fascist party. Bring up our child as a Fascist. I did my best for the cause, right or wrong."

Enger said the other, addressed to police, asked that he be buried "in the Fascist uniform in which you find me."

Marshall Testifies on Draft

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

GEN. GEORGE C. MARSHALL, Chief of Staff, warning the Senate and House Military committees against changing draft regulations, at a Washington hearing today. ADM. ERNEST J. KING, Commander of the Fleet, sits beside him.

much greater loss than we anticipate from the Germans and the Japs."

In his preliminary remarks Marshall noted that Lt. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff, had given the committee many details in opposition to the Wheeler proposal in previous testimony.

Marshall said that the Army plans to activate soon between 430 and 440 new battalions, adding that four divisions now had only 1500 men each and needed an additional 14,000 each.

Marshall added that 50,000 special troops, including engineers, mechanics and signal corps men, were being shipped to England this month, along with 600 bomber crews. These latter, he said, were not to increase the weight of bomber participation but to maintain the operation of bombers already there.

Ready, for First Time.

For the first time in history, Marshall said, trained men are on hand for deployment on all of the fronts of the world.

"We are just getting ready for our deployment," he testified, adding that operative personnel had been trained and placed; that the basic establishment was a going concern, and that now man power had become largely a matter of maintenance and replacements of casualties and other losses.

"Our shipping can now be turned to the deployment of our ground Army for the first time in history," he said.

Marshall said it was necessary to keep stand-by troops on hand in this country to meet the demands from various theaters of war.

"These troops are all on demand for certain times and places," he said. "We do not want to use hastily gathered people. We had to do that in the early part of the war, but thank God we do not have to do that now."

As an example of the large number of specially trained troops that are needed, Marshall said port occupation troops now were being moved into Salerno and "we hope soon to move men in to occupy the port of Naples." He added that there was no lessening of the number of men needed to occupy Bizerte.

75,000 More a Month Needed.

He said 75,000 additional inductees were needed monthly to keep the armed forces at par and to bring the Army to the goal of 7,700,000 by the end of the year.

Citing losses in personnel through sickness and other causes, Marshall said there is no way of estimating battle casualties accurately.

"We don't yet know the casualties of Salerno," he said. "We have been busy fighting—tabulating can come a little later."

Marshall told the committees that he was being pressed by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and others for trained troops.

"These units have to be created, trained, disciplined and prepared for operations," he said. "If we don't do that now, we cannot do it in time."

Demands for Bomber Crews.

Marshall said that demands for bomber crews had been heavier from England than expected and that fatigue, rather than casualties, put pilots out of action in the Mediterranean theater. He stressed the fact that many men are being transferred to and from the battle zones.

"You can't conduct war all over the world and not consider the loss of men going and coming," he said, referring to their inaction while traveling rather than to personnel losses. "The pipeline must be kept filled."

"We are now, for the first time, ready to make full use of our ground forces," Marshall said. "Do you wish to cut down on them?

"Certainly you would not wish to cut down on the program of air development."

As an example of the necessity of a reserve of well-trained troops, Marshall said that the first division to land in Salerno "had never been in battle before."

Originally a division of 15,000, he testified, it was cut down last fall to 9000 by diversions to other units and "it took six months to build it up again to strength."

"It would have been better," he said, "if it had not been ripped to pieces."

No Compromise From Axis.

On the need of troops, Marshall said, "there will be no compromise from the Japanese and the Germans."

A denial of quotas for the balance of the year, he continued, might make difficult the task of finding "where to make the adjustments."

"If it comes to emotions, we in the War Department don't have the right to emotions," Marshall testified. "We have some 700,000 fathers in the Army now. What happens to them?"

He repeated previous assertions that "men over 38 are a burden."

Marshall said the plans of the combined chiefs of staff were "based on the assumption the United States will come across with its commitments."

As to Drafting Aircraft Men.

Austin asked about the advisability of taking trained single men from aircraft and other industries.

"That would be serious," Marshall replied. "A collapse in agriculture would be serious. A collapse in the aircraft industry might be more serious. You can eat less, but you can't operate half an airplane."

Marshall said the Army must have the 446,000 additional men represented in prospective father-inductees before the end of this year "if we are to go about this war in a businesslike way."

Senator Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, asked why the Army previously had cut back its 1944 goal from 8,200,000 men to 7,700,000. In reply, Marshall said that eight months ago he began to rearrange and consolidate, to enforce economy in man power. Possession of Dakar and Morocco, he explained, changed requirements in the South Atlantic theater, with the result that Panama ground troops had been reduced and training units sent there.

Russian Successes Help.

The Army was able to cut its divisional setup, Marshall continued, when all went well on the Russian front in the summer campaign. He added that, while service forces and air force overhead had been cut down, there was a demand for Air Force mechanics which delayed the activation of some units.

"This reduction was not due to outside pressure," he said, adding that the General Staff was aware of such pressure.

Marshall said that, as far as he could tell now, the Army's goal would remain 7,700,000 men through 1944, "but I can tell you more about that in December." He declined to say whether there would be a necessity for drafting fathers after Jan. 1.

In response to questions by Senator Hill (Dem.), Alabama, Marshall said he did not believe it possible for the Army to reduce physical and mental requirements beyond their present level.

Representative Short (Rep.), Missouri, interrupted the questioning to bring out that, while the Army's man power goal had been cut 500,000 under previous figures, the Navy had increased its personnel quota from about 2,300,000 to about three million.

Marshall testified the number of men sent overseas would reach at least five million by the end of 1944, although he said that greater success in fighting submarines than expected might increase that figure.

The Army has been forced at times, Marshall said, to take divisions to pieces, after they had been trained, in order to send special troops to battle zones. As an example, he said the Thirty-third division which recently went overseas once had been cut down to 3000 men to provide special units for the North African campaign and could not be shipped until its strength was built back up and new men trained.

"Is that the fault of Congress?" Senator Johnson (Dem.), Colorado, demanded. "I'm not going to try to answer that," Marshall said.

When Johnson persisted, Marshall replied: "If it will simplify things, I will say it is the Army's fault."

HIGHER CORPORATE TAX INFLATIONARY, SAYS PATTERSON

Under Secretary of War Urges Congress to Continue Renegotiation Law on Profits.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, told Congress today that higher tax rates for industry would not prevent excessive profits "but will instead merely add fuel to the fires of inflation." He urged continuation of the renegotiation law for recapture of excessive profits in war production.

Patterson appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee, where several business men and organizations representing manufacturers last week appealed for repeal of the renegotiation statute, calling it un-American and unfair.

The United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers proposed that the Government rely on the tax laws for recovery of any excessive profits in war contracts.

"This committee," Patterson said, "fully understands that until the point of actual 100 per cent taxation is reached, the higher the tax rates the greater the incentive to increase prices and gross profits, this in order to increase the total of dollars left to the taxpayer after payment of his taxes.

"This committee also fully recognizes and understands that, when taxes are carried to the point of confiscation of earnings over and above any given level, the profit incentive necessarily disappears and resultant extravagance, with widespread waste of man power and materials, inevitably follows."

Of the renegotiation law, he said: "I remain of the view that continuation of the renegotiation statute for the duration of the war is in the public interest."

British Influence in Marshall Dispute

There is real evidence that in strategy talks a year ago the British were more reluctant to consider plans for a frontal assault on Hitler's European fortress. They favored the North African-Italian approach, while top-ranking American military men, including, it is believed, Marshall and Adm. Ernest J. King, chief of naval operations, were for risking an attack on Western Europe.

Columnists have reported that British reluctance to take the cross-channel plunge was because inevitably at that stage of the war the casualties would have been in overwhelming proportion British casualties. Prime Minister Churchill in private conversation during his recent visit indignantly denied this allegation. He even wanted to rebuke a particular columnist at an off-record session but was dissuaded from this step.

Brought Into Open.

The Marshall controversy has brought this smouldering resentment into the open although it is still told only in hints and by indirection. If it goes on, it may come out openly with worldwide repercussions in this critical period.

Until the controversy was touched off by the Army and Navy Journal, Marshall's friends and intimates had been taking calmly enough the prospect that he might be transferred to the European theater in charge of a major invasion. They pointed out that he had pretty well completed his job of organization here and that as the capstone to a briliant career he woud be given the privilege of directing the forces that would finally bring down Hitler's Reich. They pointed to the parallel of Pershing in World War I, who got all the honor and glory while the chief of staff in Washington remained relatively unknown.

Comment by May.

There were few today who would make any public comment on the controversy. One of these was Andrew J. May (Dem.), Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee.

"I have been thinking it over since reading the article in the Army and Navy Journal," May said, "and believe it would be a mistake to change him from what he is doing. There are many vexing problems in the control of such a large force confronting the chief of staff.

"Gen. Marshall is doing an excellent job, but I would not like to say at this time just what could be done about the possibility of his being ordered to other duty, no matter how badly he might be needed elsewhere. From time to time recently I have heard suggestions that Gen. Marshall be given the command of the Army's field forces in Europe, and no matter how much he is needed there, it might be a fatal mistake to make the change.

"Congress is solidly behind him, and he has its fullest confidence. I feel also that the Army itself is likewise solidly behind him."

In the editorial in the Army and Navy Journal was evidence that Marshall's partisans feel he is to be sidetracked because he constantly advocated a less cautious approach to the job of knocking Germany out of the war. The Journal said:

"Acting under the President's instruction, he (Marshall) has labored zealously to insure the fullest measure of co-operation with our Allies and especially the British, a policy based upon the President's and his own appreciation of the necessity of safeguarding American interests.

"He has declined to be led into adventures not directly aimed at winning the war, however attractive they seemed at first blush."

Roosevelt's Position.

In the original debate on whether there should be a direct cross-channel invasion, Marshall and King are said to have favored such an endeavor. British military men, with the backing of Churchill, opposed it. Roosevelt finally sided with the British Prime Minister.

One thing is certain in the midst of all this speculation, and that is that Marshall himself has been made profoundly unhappy by the public controversy. He is first, last and always a soldier who believes in obeying the orders of his commander in chief. Never in any way has he lent himself to the intrigues and conspiracies of wartime Washington.

Night and day he has worked incessantly to prosecute the war. The chief of staff has shunned personal publicity, actually pleading with those who wanted to "build him up" and "promote" him to keep his name out of the magazines and newspapers insofar as it could be kept out.

Importance of Post.

The truth is the global character of this conflict has given to the chief of staff an importance not attained in any other war in which we have been engaged. Under the President, this officer really performs the functions of commanding general of all our army forces in addition to his arduous administrative and planning duties. Besides aiding in formulating the strategic plans they are to follow, he is in constant communication with our Army commanders at home and abroad, giving them direction and determining and meeting their needs.

Furthermore, through visits such as those he already has made to North Africa and to London, he is able personally to inspect the fighting troops in operational areas, pass upon the uses to which they are to be put, and advises on their dispositions, etc. In consequence, his membership on the combined chiefs of staff enables him to fit our forces intelligently into the larger picture of United Nations strategy.

A new Chief of Staff would be compelled to earn the confidence of the Army, the Congress and the country which Gen. Marshall now enjoys to an extent without parallel in war. This would mean adaptation of the service to the policies the successor would inaugurate. Further, it would serve as a serious handicap to our war effort, because necessay legislation constantly must be sought, and prompt acquiescence by Congress naturally depends upon the degree of faith it has in the Chief of Staff. As the public appreciates, it was Gen. Marshall who, at the instance of the President, created tne powerful armies now on fields of battle, under whose direction our military establishment has been reorganized to greater efficiency, who was responsible for the battle training given to the men, who expanded the air component to the strength which he envisioned modern war requires, who has performed his work with a minimum of friction and no scandal, and whose intimate relations with Adm. King and Gen. Arnold have brought about the effective co-ordination of the Army, the Navy and the Air Forces.

Co-operation With Allies.

Acting under the President's instruction, he has labored zealously to insure the fullest measure of co-operation with our Allies and especially the British, a policy based upon the President's and his own appreciation of the necessity of safeguarding American interests. He has declined to be led into adventures not directly aimed at winning the war, however attractive they seemed at first blush. Rather has he coldly studied every proposal, obtained thereon the advice of his trusted staff and War College, discussed it with Adm. King and his associates and then presented his conclusions to the President for the latter's decision and communicated that decision to the combined chiefs of staff.

The President never has failed at any appropriate opportunity to tell the country of his satisfaction at having Gen. Marshall as a member of his personal staff. As he is responsible finally for the entire war effort, this generous acknowledgment has appealed to the Army and the people. Thinking only of winning the war in the shortest time and of saving every American life possible, in connection with the bloody operations which it calls for, Gen. Marshall, of course, has come into conflict with powerful interests which would like to eliminate him from the Washington picture and place in his stead an officer more amenable to their will.

It is not to be believed the President will be induced to change his mind and transfer him. Rather the hope of the country is that he will retain this experienced officer in the post which he has distinguished by his demonstrated ability, his sane judgment, his wise advice to his commander in chief, and his loyal execution of the latter's decisions.

NAZIS PLANNING NEW BLOWS AGAINST CONVOYS, KNOX SAYS

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland, Sept. 20 (AP).—Though the German submarine menace has been checked, there are indications the Nazis are preparing new onslaughts on Allied Atlantic convoy routes, United States Navy Secretary Frank Knox said yesterday at the American naval base here during a ceremony in which the Secretary's flag was presented in recognition of the fact that 90 per cent of the personnel had participated in the war bond drive.

Knox, who is inspecting United States installations in the European theater, toured the base in company with Adm. Harold R. Stark, commander of United States naval forces in European waters.

The pace set by Knox left Irish reporters gasping and prompted one to remark: "Not even Mrs. Roosevelt went so fast when she was here."

TWO FROM NAVAL AIR BASE HERE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

James H. Cooper, aviation machinist's mate, first class, of St. Louis, and Marine Corps Lt. Myron Rogers of Ennis, Tex., were killed Saturday near Ennis in the crash of a plane from the naval air base at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

Cooper, 40 years old, lived at 5964 Minerva avenue with his wife, Earla, and daughter, Margaret Jane. His funeral will be held Wednesday at Connersville, Ind., his former home. He enlisted in February, 1942, and had been stationed here since June, 1942.

Mrs. Cooper said the two men left Saturday on a routine flight to Dallas.

NAZIS SAY ALLIES PLANNED TO ENTER ROME ON SEPT. 16

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP). — A German propaganda broadcast asserted today that Nazi troops in the Salerno region had captured on Sept. 13 an Allied invasion timetable calling for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's entry into Rome Sept. 16.

"It is easy to imagine how much the Anglo-American propaganda looked forward to this date," the broadcast said, declaring Benito Mussolini was to have been delivered to President Roosevelt in Washington also on Sept. 16.

What's the Answer?

Even radio quiz professors don't know how teeth in St. Louis differ from those in New York or Los Angeles

Pick a city : : : east coast or west : : : and you will find that people there buy and re-buy so many Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brushes that its sales are right up there with the leaders.

But in this city, Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brush sales are frankly below normal. Teeth can't be different here; so what's the answer? Is the brush less well displayed here? Do dealers offer it less frequently when you forget to ask for the brush by name?

Whatever the reason, the chances are that you have been missing something in a really fine tooth brush. So make a mental note now to try the new Bonded Pro-phy-lac-tic with PROLON bristles.

It is the top quality Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brush. We guarantee that no brush at any price has finer or more costly duPont bristles. We guarantee that it is the only brush with gentler, round ends on each bristle. And, in writing, we guarantee the brush for six months of service, or a new one free.

There are two types of the Bonded Pro-phy-lac-tic. The regular (illustrated below) has the famous tuft to help clean the back teeth better. INVASION WEAPONS
FROM YOUR HANDS TO HIS!

YOU ARE the link between some soldier you know and victory.

Maybe he's a son, a husband, a sweetheart or a father. He may be just a friend. You know, the boy who used to crack your evening paper up against your front door around dinner time.

Wherever he is today—on one of the INVASION beachheads, or waiting the signal to open still another front—he's your boy, and he's counting on YOU!

ARE YOU GOING TO LET HIM DOWN?

What it comes down to is this: Are you going to buy enough War Bonds during the 3rd War Loan Drive to pay for the weapons he needs?

Your Government is asking for 15 billion dollars worth this month—to be purchased by individuals. That means you must put every dollar you can scrape together into War Bonds now.

You can't do less and remain an American. You know what America means—it means freedom. All the bonds you buy this month will still be a lot less than freedom is worth to you, and to him.

And it's a lot less than he's paying right now to keep freedom a living, breathing reality.

You are urged to buy at least one extra $100 Bond above your regular purchases. Some of you will have to invest thousands. Take it out of your income or your idle funds—but buy all you can!

YOUR INVESTMENT IN VICTORY

And another thing. The bonds you buy are not gifts, they're investments—investments in victory and your and your family's future.

They are installments on the brave new world which we all will help build after the war is won. With them you will be able to buy added comforts and enjoy greater opportunities for yourself and those you love.

Buy that extra $100 War Bond today. Your hands—the hands of an American—will be passing the INVASION weapons of victory to that boy of yours—or some boy you know.

WPB SETS 6-RULE GUIDE ON GRANTING EXTRA NEWSPRINT

Circulation Gains Up to 1943, Based on Bonafide Reader Interest, Will Be Considered.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—Circulation growth which took place up to Dec. 31, 1942, based on bonafide reader interest but not on "promotional stimulants," will be considered by the War Production Board in ruling on newspapers' appeals for additional newsprint.

WPB announced this as one of six factors to govern the granting of extra print paper allotments by its printing and publishing division, effective today. Similar standards were promulgated for magazine and book publishers.

The listings "do not preclude the consideration of other unusual or extraordinary conditions which may constitute excessive and undue hardships," WPB said. Heretofore there has been no clearly defined statement of the grounds for appeals, except the general consideration of undue hardship.

In allowing any appeal for paper tonnage above the regular quota, WPB said it would compute the amount on the basis of economical usage of papers.

The six factors listed in a supplement to the newspaper order (L 240) follow:

1. Growth of population in the newspaper's trading area.
2. Increase in circulation brought about prior to the issuance of order L 240 on Dec. 31, 1942, by bonafide reader interest, not by promotional stimulations.
3. Voluntary paper conservation methods instituted in 1941, which reduced the newspaper's base period usage.
4. 1942 consumption of newsprint by newspapers which were not in existence throughout the year 1941.
5. Temporary suspension of publication during 1941 because of strikes, mechanical breakdown, or similar conditions.
6. Discontinuance or merger of newspapers requiring adjustment of the quota of other newspapers in the trading area in order to maintain adequate newspaper service to the area.

Progress of Red Offensive

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Shaded area of this map, summarizing the Red Army's summer offensive, marks territory regained by the Russians and shows how close the present eastern front is to Smolensk, Kiev and Dnieperopetrovsk, primary Soviet objectives, and to the Polish border. In the north the Reds are less than half way back to their prewar troop dispositions but in the south they are approximately half way to the Rumanian border.

RED ARMY TAKES VELIZH IN CIRCLING MOVE ON SMOLENSK

Roslavl, south of Smolensk, also was menaced by Soviet troops which stormed across the Desna River, a major tributary of the Dnieper, to capture Dubrovka, 32 miles southeast of Roslavl, in an advance of nine miles. Other Red Army units advancing from Bryansk took Trubchevsk.

Smolensk was one of the first major Russian cities to fall in the initial German advance in 1941 and although it was reduced to a heap of rubble its radiating railroad lines to Poland and the Baltic states made it a major German base of operations.

Strong Defenses Smashed.

A savage four-day fight in which Soviet forces crushed "several German divisions," smashed through "six lines of permanent strong points" and resulted in the capture of 600 Germans and enormous stocks of enemy equipment toppled Dukhovschina and Yartsevo, on the approaches to Smolensk, the Russians announced.

"Thus the strongly-fortified German defense line which has been in existence for a long time and which closed the so-called Smolensk gates has been broken," said Premier Stalin, who issued two orders of the day yesterday in announcing the central front and Ukraine victories.

The two orders of the day and last night's communique reported the capture of more than 1100 towns and villages, among them Krasnograd, Lubny, Piryatin and Priluki—the last major Axis bastions short of Kiev.

Advance in Kiev Area.

On the lower central front the Russians were arrayed in a rough arc, with the columns aimed in the general direction of Kiev. Chernigov, at the northern end of the arc, was menaced by an advance which occupied the important center of Beresna, 22 miles to the northwest, and other places.

The fall of Priluki, Lubny, Piryatin, Mirgorod, and Krasnograd, brought the Red Army parallel to the Dnieper River along a 100-mile front. Other units were moving up for a frontal attack on Poltava.

Zaporozhe, Dnieper bend city south of Dnieperopetrovsk, was menaced by a Soviet column driving up from the southeast along a railway. This column last night was 27 miles from Zaporozhe and 24 miles from the Dnieper River west of the railway. Cutting of the Kharkov-Crimea railway at Zaporozhe would menace the escape of thousands of Germans in the Crimea and the Caucasus.

PERRY'S GREAT GRANDSON KNOCKS OUT NAZI TRUCKS

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 20 (AP).—The great-great-grandson of Commodore Perry, Capt. Donald Perry of Hawthorne, N. Y., was credited today with knocking out two German trucks in a reconnaissance air sweep over Italy.

Perry said he broke family tradition by joining the Army Air Forces instead of the Navy because, he said, "the Army has better planes."

RETRIAL OF COLMAN DEMANDED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—The National Negro Council asked President Roosevelt yesterday to order a new trial of Col. William T. Colman, Selfridge Field, Mich., officer courtmartialed in the shooting of a Negro private.

"The final verdict," said a statement by Director Edgar G. Brown of the Negro council, "was equivalent to acquittal, merely an order to reduce him from the temporary colonelcy back to his regular rank of Captain. . . . The social demands of these war times necessitate the speedy correction of this outrageous and sorry spectacle of the miscarriage of justice."

FIFTH SUCCESSIVE SESSION STOCK RISE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—The stock market on balance made its fifth successive advance today despite the interference of considerable profit cashing in the latter part of the session.

Industrials, notably blue chips, pushed higher at the start in active dealings. The pace slowed after midday, however, although transfers exceeded one million shares for the first time in nearly two weeks. At the close extreme gains running to two or more points were trimmed in many cases and there was a smattering of losers.

Transfers of 1,098,320 shares were the largest since Aug. 3 and compared with 894,155 in the preceding 5-hour session.

It was one of the broadest markets since July.

Of the 926 issues traded in today, 500 were higher, 219 lower and 207 unchanged. Fifty-seven made new 1943 highs and one made new 1943 low.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .2 of a point at 51.6.

War News Optimistic.

Optimistic war news was the principal buying stimulant, although speculative and investment inspiration was derived from the successful Government bond drive, growing hopes for favorable tax consideration by Congress and the generally pleasing business outlook.

Bullard Co. jumped more than a point when the company reported first half net of $4.21 a share against 76 cents in the like period last year.

On the upside the greater part of the time—some slipped eventually—were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Western Union, Westinghouse, du Pont, Eastman Kodak, American Can, Allied Chemical, J. I. Case, International Harvester and Johns-Manville.

Trend on the Curb.

Curb support was accorded American Gas, Humble Oil, Creole Petroleum, Brewster Aero, N. J. Zinc and Sunray Oil.

Brokerage quarters were heartened by the quick oversubscription of two large "special" and "secondary" offerings. The former was a block of 35,000 shares of Twentieth Century-Fox at 23 and the latter 195,003 shares of Long Bell Lumber Co. at 6¼.

Merchandising stocks still had the benefit of predictions of record Christmas shopping. A prop also was seen in the forecast of the United States Chamber of Commerce that consumer goods demand of the American people would total 20 billion dollars in the first six months after ending of the world conflict if industry is able to produce. The chamber found that 64 per cent of the nation's families were saving for new automobiles and household appliances and to repair their homes or build new ones.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—A banking group headed by Lehman Bros. and Wertheim & Co. today offered publicly in a secondary distribution 195,003 shares of Long Bell Lumber Co. common stock at 36.25 a share. An allowance of 50 cents a share was given to dealers.

The bankers were successful bidders for the stock at a sale last Wednesday held by the bondholders' protective committee of Cowlitz County, Washington, Diking District No. 1. The committee came into possession of the stock several years ago in liquidating claims against Long Bell Lumber arising out of the company's guarantee of a bond issue sold in connection with improvements made at Long View, Wash., where the lumber company operated.

RAIL BONDS LOSE GAINS, SOME MORE, BEFORE CLOSE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—The bond market lost some of its climbing power in late trading today, after making substantial progress under leadership of the rails during the forenoon.

At the start of the final hour, the main list was no better than steady, with numerous issues that had been up unchanged or behind minus marks. Most of the Missouri Pacific loans, which were in good demand earlier on a favorable court decision, lost all of the improvement.

Katy adjustment 5s gave up a point after it was announced interest for the current quarter would not be paid.

Resistant spots were fairly numerous, however, and included New Haven 3½s and 4s and Cotton Belt second 4s.

Armour of Delaware 4s sold above 105 and Phillips Petroleum 1¾s, which have been called, changed hands at above 106. Pacific Gas and Electric 3¾s and Phelps Dodge 3½s were among other higher-priced corporates in demand. United States Governments were quiet with investment quarters primarily interested in the third war loan which attained two-thirds of the 15 billion dollar goal up to Saturday. Foreign loans were neglected.

American & Foreign Power 5s firmed in late dealings, ending up 1¼ at 89½. Most of the St. Paul group closed at small losses and Rock Island 4s gave up ⅜ to end at 32¼. Rio Grande Western 4s lost 1¾ at 43⅝.

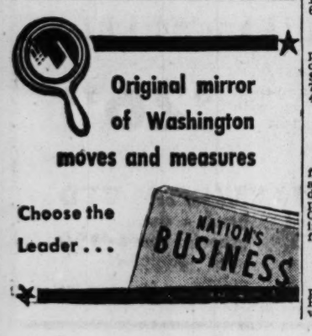

The Associated Press averages of 20 railroad bonds closed at 76.5, unchanged; 10 industrials 105.6, down .1; 10 utilities 105.3, unchanged; 10 foreign bonds 62.9, unchanged; and 10 low-yield bonds 115.4, unchanged. Sales were $11,245,550, compared with $15,309,200 Friday.

GRAIN RANGE NARROW ON REDUCED TRADE

CHICAGO, Sept. 20 (AP).—All grains held within a narrow range today with trading activity on a reduced scale. Strength at Winnipeg, where new seasonal highs were scored by wheat, had little influence on the local market.

Traders said there was little incentive to buy wheat because prices on the cash grain are hovering around levels approximately equal to flour ceilings. At the same time, they said, the heavy demand for the grain from all sources prevented any hasty liquidation.

At the close wheat was ⅛ @ ½ lower than Saturday's finish, September $1.48¼, December $1.48½ @ ⅝, oats were unchanged to ⅜ down, September 77½, and rye was down ⅛ @ ⅝, September $1.06 @ 1.05⅞.

The advance at Winnipeg was attributed to buying by export houses on reports of unfavorable weather for harvesting in Northwestern Manitoba. Traders said foreign demand for Canadian wheat was expected to be heavy. A New York report said Switzerland had purchased 300,000 bushels of Canadian wheat today.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 20.—In the cash grain market today wheat and oats were steady.

Sales made on the floor of the exchange were:

Sample grade red winter wheat, $1.40; No. 2 red garlicky wheat, $1.71.

No. 1 mixed oats, 81c; red oats, 81c.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 20 TO 50C A BALE HIGHER

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—Cotton futures registered fair gains today, with the October position establishing a new seasonal high.

The market responded to reports of delayed movement of the new crop due to labor shortages. Moreover, farmers were said to be holding their cotton for higher prices or placing it under the loan.

Abatement of the Gulf storm was offset by reports of unfavorable weather for picking and ginning in the central belt and southeastern areas.

Late afternoon values were 30@35 cents a bale higher, October 20.45, December 20.18 and March 20.02.

Futures closed (old contracts) 20 to 50 cents a bale higher.

CORPORATION REPORTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. reported net profit of $4,641,171, or $5.33 a common share after preferred dividends, for the year ended Dec. 31. The annual report was delayed by contract renegotiation, the company said.

The profit was after providing $13,428,000 for taxes and $1,000,000 to the contingency reserve. In 1941 the company's profit was $5,921,337, or $6.11 a share.

Earnings of the company's non-consolidated subsidiary, North Carolina Shipbuilding Co., Wilmington, N. C., were reported as $1,301,360 after renegotiation of contracts filed in 1942. This was equivalent to $1.52 per share of parent company stock. However, the subsidiary paid no dividend during the year.

The parent company reported a net refund of $31,098,916 of excess profits is involved in renegotiation of certain contracts accepted subject to final settlement agreement. This amount is being held in reserve against determination of excessive profits in these contracts, the company said. It also reported a refund of $2,761,800 of excessive profits which the reserve will not show until 1943 earnings accrue.

Bullard Co. of Bridgeport, Conn., reported for the six months ended June 30 net profit of $1,161,908, equal to $4.21 a share, compared with $210,729, or 76 cents a share in the like 1942 period. The 1943 period net includes $204,122 post-war refund credit of excess profits taxes and is subject to renegotiation, the company said.

FLYING TIGERS RECRUITER DIES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 20 (AP).—Col. Richard Aldworth, credited with recruiting the Flying Tigers, is dead. He was 46 years old. He had been an invalid since 1937 when he set his pursuit plane down at sea off Rockaway Beach, N. Y., rather than crash the disabled craft on the crowded beach. President Roosevelt awarded him the Distinguished Flying Cross for his act. Last Saturday, 24 hours before his death, he was awarded the Legion of Honor Medal.

Col. Aldworth wa sa member of the flying contingent that proved a battleship could be sunk by an aerial bomb. The group blasted the old battleship Arizona off the Virginia coast and sank it.

CONSOLIDATION OF COUNTIES TO END WASTE TO BE ISSUE AT CONSTITUTIONAL SESSION

Missouri U. Economist Favors Mergers, but Offers Alternative Suggestion—Abolition of County Court System to Be Sought, With Manager Plan in Its Place.

By CURTIS A. BETTS
State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NINTH OF A SERIES.

ON no subject before the Constitutional convention will the delegates be subjected to greater pressure for maintenance of the status quo than that of organization of county governments.

In addition to the selfish opposition of political parties and politicians to any change which would lessen political control, there will be the feeling of local reverence for the county names; the business interests in every county seat will oppose county consolidations; the habit people have of voting for their local officers will not be easily surrendered.

Costly and Wasteful.

County government in Missouri is costly, wasteful and inefficient. It is within the power of the convention to provide for complete reorganization to improve the services of the local government to the people, and to lower the cost of those services.

To reach this goal most effectively would undoubtedly require consolidation of the 114 counties into perhaps as few as 70, the replacement of the politician governments of the counties with county managers, or at least county boards of control, and a reduction in the number of officers, who would be appointed and not elected.

It may be that local pride in the county name will be the most difficult element of the opposition to overcome in an effort toward consolidation of counties. Who is there in all Pike County who would be willing to abandon the name of Pike?

That consolidations are advisable is the consensus of nearly all the students of government who have analyzed county governments, but they generally are agreed the benefit would come from improved services rather than in any material decrease in the cost of government.

Study by Prof. Bradshaw.

Dr. William L. Bradshaw, professor of economics at the University of Missouri, who probably has made a deeper study of counties than any other person in the State, favors consolidation either by the Constitution or by statute. Dr. Bradshaw, who is a delegate to the convention, has pointed out in a treatise on "The Revision of Missouri County Government" that it is doubtful that a saving of more than 15 per cent could be expected from the consolidation of any three or four counties, and that this would be offset to some extent by the additional cost to citizens of traveling longer distances to transact business in the county seat.

The principal saving would come in the elimination of three sets of county officers in case of the consolidation of four counties, but, he found, there was no reason to believe there would result in any reduction in expenditures for schools and roads, the two most expensive local functions.

It would seem that a saving of from 10 to 15 per cent, however, would be worth while if along with that saving was presented the opportunity for better county government and more efficient service to the residents of the counties.

Alternative Suggestion.

As an alternative to consolidation, Dr. Bradshaw suggests the possibility of greater co-operation of two or more counties in effecting improvements in government, which might be too costly for one county, but well within the means of several, each contributing its share of the costs. As an example he cited the possibility of several counties co-operating in the employment of a competent highway engineer to serve all, instead of each supporting an incompetent engineer.

He directed attention to the fact that progress has already been made in this direction, citing co-operation in employing county farm agents, home demonstration agents and public nurses, and co-operative health activities. There is a long-standing, but never used, law authorizing counties to co-operate in establishing alms houses.

Dr. Bradshaw directed attention to the fact that while these co-operative efforts could bring about improved services without interfering with the integrity of each county government, there would be undesirable features, particularly an increase in the number of overlapping areas.

There seems little reason why Hickory County with an area of 410 square miles and a population of 6506 should need as many county officers as Texas County with an area of 1183 square miles and a population of 19,813. If Texas County needs 17 county officers, a consolidation of three counties to make one of the size of Texas could get along with 17 instead of 51.

Classification Proposed.

Dr. Bradshaw expressed the opinion that Missouri counties should be classified in order that forms of government could be set up to more nearly fit the needs of individual counties. He would authorize in the Constitution complete home rule for St. Louis, Jackson, Buchanan, Greene and Jasper counties, which he classes as essentially urban, enabling each to adopt its own charter to meet its own governmental needs.

"The 109 rural counties might be divided into two or more classes, with a slightly different governmental setup for each class," he said. "But since any classification would necessarily be somewhat arbitrary in borderline cases, there might be one general law for all rural counties, with two or more optional organizations. A more simple and less expensive government should be available for counties of extremely low valuation, which can hardly support the existing system."

Substitute for County Court.

The convention will have before it a proposal to abolish the present County Court system, and substi-

British Shaping Vast Postwar Social Security

Trend Toward Greater Government Control of Economics Cited.

By CHARLES G. ROSS
Contributing Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.

THE Twentieth Century Fund, a research organization, in a report made public today on postwar planning in Great Britain, notes the same tendency observed by Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, on his recent visit to England—a tendency, namely, toward the acceptance of increased governmental controls over the economic life of the nation. The same trend, the report says, prevails throughout the British Commonwealth of Nations. Joined with this is a heightened awareness of the importance of the United States in their own and the world's future.

All the nations of the British commonwealth are described as aiming at greater material well-being of the average citizens, enlarged programs of social security and more governmental, responsibility for the attainment of these goals.

Business Stability Sought.

Measures are being demanded in Britain, the report says, that will reduce business fluctuations, provide full employment and increase national output. It is recognized by the planners that the success of this program depends on a large expansion of exports of manufactured goods—an expansion that must take place in specialized goods and in the products of the newer chemical and electrical industries, since Britain can no longer rely on the advantages which once gave a dominant place in world markets to its cotton cloth, coal and machinery.

There is almost universal sentiment in Britain, the report says, for a larger and more unified system of social security than at present. Also, an extensive housing program is being laid out, not only affecting the bombed areas but looking toward the rebuilding of many cities and a better balance between industry and agriculture.

Plans have been made by employer groups, such as the Federation of British Industries and the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, to provide the 46 million people of the United Kingdom with "a maximum means of employment and with subsistence at as high a degree as the community can achieve." The report adds that "despite their emphasis on private enterprise, the employers' associations agree that maximum production and high consumption may need the help and stimulation of government."

Labor for Stricter Controls.

The Trades Union Congress and the Labor party go much further in advocating governmental controls. "Influential leaders of the Labor party stress the necessity of gradual procedure in reorganizing the economic life of the country," the report says. "They also point out that social control over industry may take many different forms, that private enterprise in many industries has 'a lot of value' and that even the monopolistic industries may be controlled through various agencies, from a public corporation to some form of management under a board of directors with a nationally nominated chairman.'"

"It is generally acknowledged," the report says, "that the United Kingdom after the war will be dependent to a large degree upon the commercial and financial policy of the United States. Some, for example the Federation of British Industries, are somewhat apprehensive of what this may mean in practice. But two policies to stabilize postwar world trade are suggested. One is to form larger economic units of agreement, specifically to link the trade of Great Britain with that of Soviet Russia, China and the United States. Another is to apply in some form the principle of lease-lend so as to supply, free of charge, goods and services which would help to reconstruct the devastated areas and to develop the newer countries."

Aid for Veterans.

In providing by law for the rehabilitation of men discharged from the armed services, Canada has gone further than any other English-speaking nation. Each Canadian on going back to civil life will receive a clothing allowance, transportation home and one month's service pay. In addition, there are provisions for vocational training, for helping those who wish to complete their education and for assistant veterans to set themselves up as farmers. The Canadian Parliament is considering proposals for a comprehensive social security and health insurance system for all citizens.

Australia, under a Labor Government which recently gained an increased majority, is planning an enlarged social security system that will "go further than the Beveridge report." Extensive plans are being made for re-establishing

Churchill Returns on Battleship To Britain; Will Review War Soon

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL smiled and clamped down on his cigar as he arrived yesterday in London, after war conferences in Quebec and Washington, and was greeted by MRS. ANTHONY EDEN, wife of the British Foreign Secretary, and SIR ARCHIBALD SINCLAIR, Secretary of State for Air.

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP)

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL, back in Britain after a momentous six-week visit to Canada and the United States, plunged today into the task of preparing a war review to be presented shortly to the House of Commons.

Churchill returned aboard the battleship Renown and landed at a northwest port, the authoritative British Press Association said. The 32,000-ton vessel has taken part in this war in both the Atlantic and Mediterranean, and has been listed as damaged in numerous enemy claims.

Churchill's review of the war, which will be first since his brief statement of Commons July 27 and which is expected to be one of his longest, will open a two-day war debate when Parliament reconvenes after a brief summer recess.

It is likely the Government will be asked, among other things, to explain why Italy was given a "breathing space" after Benito Mussolini's fall and why the Allies failed to demand from the Badoglio Government the immediate surrender of the former Duce.

Other Possible Questions.

The first Commons debate in eight weeks also is expected to demand additional details on the Italian surrender, more definite news of proposed conferences among Britain, the United States and Russia, and information on the operations of AMG—the Allied Military Government in Occupied Territory.

When Parliament reconvenes it will have become the longest-lived Parliament for more than 250 years. Today it exactly equaled the life span of the Parliament elected in December, 1910, and assembled Jan. 31, 1911, which was prolonged until Nov. 25, 1918, because of the World War.

The present Parliament first met Nov. 26, 1935. Only three Parliaments in Britain have had a longer history—the Elizabethan Parliament of 1572-83; the Long Parliament, 1640-53, and the Cavalier Parliament, 1661-79.

Crowd Greets Churchill.

Churchill, accompanied by Mrs. Churchill and their daughter, Mary, a subaltern in the Auxiliary Territorial Service, returned to London by special train last night.

They were given an enthusiastic welcome at the station by a crowd which somehow had learned when the Prime Minister's party would arrive. Among the officials on hand to greet Churchill were Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Lord Halifax, Ambassador to the United States; John G. Winant, United States Ambassador to Britain; A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, and several other Cabinet members.

Churchill answered the crowd's cheers with the victory sign. He was driven at once to No. 10 Downing street, where he later received reports on the home front.

Churchill never before had been absent from Britain so long since he became Prime Minister. His arrival in Quebec was announced Aug. 10.

BLACKOUT IS RELAXED FIRST TIME IN 4 YEARS FOR CHURCHILL ARRIVAL

LONDON, Sept. 20.

FLOODLIGHTS lit Euston station last night when Prime Minister Churchill came home, the first night in four long years that Londoners have enjoyed relief from total blackout.

Churchill obviously appeared to have benefited immensely from his long trip, which has not been all work. He seems to have put on weight and was brimming over with enthusiasm as he darted from this group to that, receiving greetings.

Looks Forward to Furlough — Sailors Good Plane Companions.

By ERNIE PYLE
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.

THIS is the last of these columns before we go on furlough. I've never looked forward to any experience in my life as I now look forward to a month of blank, utter rest.

I came across from Africa by Clipper. It was the third time I'd flown the Atlantic. Our trip was a special, unscheduled one, bringing a planeload of Navy men back from Africa for schooling and new assignments.

The sailors made good traveling companions. They were all regular Navy men, tattooed with everything from coiled snakes to tombstones, but they were nice guys.

On the long stages of the homeward journey the sailors would help the stewards carry out the dishes after our meals. And as the sailors slept in the chill air of the high altitudes, the stewards would carefully cover them with blankets. It was sort of touching.

There were no bunks, so we all slept on the floor or in our seats. Most of the sailors crossed the ocean and arrived in New York in their blue work dungarees, although some did change to whites just before we arrived.

At one of our stops a spectator asked, "What are these boys, survivors from a torpedoed ship?" Actually, none of them was. They were all skilled craftsmen being sent home to study a little and then go to sea again with new ships.

Inflation Spreads Hunger in Mexico, Fanned by Graft, U. S. Speculators

Mexico City a Center of Wild Spending as Rest of Country Suffers—Government Efforts to Control Rising Prices Fail.

Wartime inflation has brought hunger and privation throughout Mexico, but its capital city is an island of extravagance, a situation for which Americans come in for blame. Mexico's economic plight and how it is being tackled by President Avila Camacho's administration is described in his second article by Edward P. Morgan, St. Louis Post-Dispatch—Chicago Daily News Foreign Service writer.

By EDWARD P. MORGAN

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 20.

TOURISTS have paid as high as $1.50, American, for a highball in a Mexico City night club. The boatman on a Xochimilco canal, the capital's famed floating gardens, will tell you the price of seed has increased so he can scarcely afford to plant more carnations. A statuesque maiden in Tehuantepec, the isthmus where Mexico's storied "Amazon women" live, explains that her embroidered huipil is more expensive now because thread for this picturesque Indian blouse is so costly.

Inflation has hit Mexico with a vengeance. Living costs have more than doubled, in some cases tripled, since the war began. The fisherman on Lake Patzcuaro, the Chihuahua cattleman, the white collar worker in the capital, all are feeling the press keenly. There is hunger and real suffering through the land. The other Sunday a gang of bandits descended on the highway between Mexico City and the little spa of Cuatla and held up nearly 50 automobiles. The leader said they had to eat. This was an exaggerated case—banditry is by no means prevalent—but it shows a drift.

Meanwhile "politicos" and promoters live high and expensively in Mexico City on easy money garnered from the war boom. They spend their pesos freely on the horses at a new two million dollar race track called the finest in North America—built by Wall Street's shrewd "Sell 'Em Ben" Smith. They squire lovely senoritas to Ciro's, run by A. C. Blumenthal, an American citizen in absentia who preferred Mexico's climate to that of a Federal courtroom where he had been called a few years ago as a witness in the Joseph Schenck tax evasion case. They talk "big deals" with fantastic profits and exchange ideas and bank rolls with hungry American speculators.

Travelers can live comfortably—if they can find accommodations at all—and eat sumptuously, but on price scales approaching those of Chicago and New York. The exchange rate, officially pegged for more than two years, is 4.85 pesos to a dollar, but capital prices are strictly geared to the tourist trade and pocketbooks bulging with American eagles. This summer's tourist business has been one of the heaviest in history.

Theoretically, the Government controls hotel and taxicab prices. But many tourists have gone home angry when some cabby, guide or innkeeper gouged them.

President Manuel Avila Camacho, a quiet, mild-mannered man with a steady eye and an honest handshake, is sincerely dismayed by these conditions. But his government has failed to cope realistically and consistently with inflation, partly because some government officials and their friends were too busy making money out of the inflationary situation. There is graft in all countries. The mordida—appropriately "the bite"—is taken more as a matter of course in Mexico than Americans can understand. But in the last three years the bites have been bigger

JAPANESE FLANK EXPOSED

By C. YATES McDANIEL

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, Sept. 20 (AP).

THE hoisting of the Australian flag over Lae, New Guinea, last Thursday just four days after the Allied occupation of Salamaua, to the south, marked the completion of the preparatory phase of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's strategy of reconquest.

It also presaged the beginning of the far more formidable task of rolling up the eastern flank of the powerfully fortified barrier buttressing the approaches to the Japanese empire and southeast Asia.

The victory on the northeast coast of New Guinea, gained by the Australians with continuous hard-hitting support by Australian and American airmen and, at decisive junctures, by American amphibious forces, also marked the first Japanese failure to defend to the last man the enemy's long-held position in the Southwest Pacific.

Started in January.

Although the victory achieved by MacArthur's forces in the campaign on the New Guinea's Papuan peninsula, last January, paved the way for the transition from defensive to offensive fighting in this zone of war, it resulted primarily in destroying the spearhead which the Japanese last year drove dangerously close to Allied bases in southeastern New Guinea.

The victory at Lae gives the Allies possession of the adjacent Malahang airdrome. This completes an arc of air bases running through Kiriwina and Woodlark Islands, off the southeast New Guinea coast, eastward to Munda in the Solomon Islands. From one or another of them Allied fighter planes can reach every major Japanese base from Wewak, New Guinea, to Rabaul, New Britain, as well as in the northern Solomons.

This means that whenever Allied commanders of the South and Southwest Pacific decide to strike at the eastern end of the enemy's 2000-mile-long subequatorial defense line their attacking forces—land, sea and air—will be covered by the Allies' still growing fighter plane force.

Local Allied Superiority.

In his speciall message announcing the victory at Lae, MarArthur said it was "accomplished in the face of superior forces available to the enemy." The key to that statement is the word "available." For victory in the final, fast moving phase of the Lae-Salamaua campaign was achieved by a tactical concentration which gave the Allies local though not area-wide superiority.

The stratagem which enabled numerically superior air and seaborne Australians to envelop and reduce the Lae stronghold in 12 days was actually the decisive fruition of an Allied plan which in seven months drew battalion after battalion from the enemy's Lae garrison to be successively cut off and destroyed south of Salamaua.

Time and again during the seven-month period the Allied command noted that the Japanese steadily were strengthening and reinforcing their rear bases in New Guinea and New Britain, from which support might be sent Lae.

The enemy's last major attempt

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

For a Change in Political Opposition.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

TWO letters in this column on Sept. 16 seem to answer each other, and I wish to call attention to the difference in attitudes.

The one from Chapin Newhard seems to me to show plainly why we have political strife instead of honest differences in both parties. In defending the Missouri Republican Committee in its controversy with Mr. Willkie, Mr. Newhard says: "They (the committee) are not gunning for him (Mr. Willkie) today, or anyone else, except the New Deal."

In other words, everything this administration has done is bad because it is the other party. With the same logic, the party to which Mr. Newhard belongs did all things well during its many years in power, even though the country was on the verge of ruin when Mr. Roosevelt took over.

Thinking people are sick and tired of that kind of opposition. Why can't we have sincere, critical comments where they are needed and do away with this smug "I am always right, you are always wrong" attitude?

The other letter was on "Mankind's Slow Social Progress." Here is a thinker and one who is truly interested in others besides himself. E. L.

Says G. O. P. Leaders are Mistaken.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Republican leaders in Missouri are making a serious mistake in assuming that they speak for the rank and file voter.

The ordinary fellow who is going to vote Republican, or anti-New Deal, wants Willkie. We know where he stands, no questionnaire is needed. Willkie is the only candidate who has a chance to win.

EX-DEMOCRAT.

Opposes Draft for Economic Reasons.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

FATHERS have the greatest stake of all in the future of our country. No other group will fight so unselfishly or so tenaciously for that future. The repeated arguments pro and con on the father draft have tended to make that sober-minded group look a little silly.

I am a father. I am willing to fight. Within seven months after Pearl Harbor, I had applied for commissions in both the Army and Navy. It wasn't lack of courage that prevented my enlistment in the ranks. It was the necessity of providing for my family. That is the first duty of every father.

As a group we probably oppose being drafted for economic reasons only. This aspect of the question is the only one that matters. It is the only one the public debates have scrupulously avoided.

How can your wife and child survive in anything but abject poverty on $62 a month? Answer that and you have solved the whole problem. Millions of fathers are ready to fight the moment their families are provided for.

JAMES W. LUMPP.

"The Attack on Willkie."
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR splendid editorials on "The Attack on Willkie" were in keeping with my views and with a great many others who supported Mr. Willkie in 1940, and who still feel that he is the logical Republican candidate for 1944.

Knowing that some of the men who signed the questionnaire are still for Willkie, I was perplexed.

I am grateful to Chapin Newhard for his timely and well-written letter and to learn that the committee is "not gunning" for Willkie; moreover, that the questionnaire was a "sincere effort" to clarify views.

Let us hope that such will be the case when the smoke has cleared away and the fire is out. H. D. CONDIE.

Sees Opportunity for Mr. Willkie.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE man who not long ago was able to find out in 49 days about mankind as well as about matters that matter the most at the moment and put it all down in "One World" is now reported to be refusing a public answer to an already published questionnaire submitted by leading Republicans of Missouri.

In fact this old '49er is reported to have said, "They aren't going to put Willkie on the spot." Who aren't, and what spot?

Seems he's putting himself "on the spot." If he has nothing to hide and is capable of answering the questions, he should welcome this opportunity for public discussion of important and timely questions.

The Republican leaders have properly requested a public reply. If Willkie has anything to offer besides political oratory and globaloney, now is the time to wend his weary way to Missouri and openly and honestly declare himself.

On Doing War Work in Homes.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE noticed several letters in this column from women who would like to do war work at home.

There are probably thousands of housewives who could spend four or five hours every day doing war work. It seems to me, with our war plants needing man power, it would be to their interest to work out a plan whereby these housewives could be put to work four or five hours a day.

BILL OF INDICTMENT.

The State Department stands indicted in the eyes of the American people on the following counts:

Indicted because its chieftain, Secretary Hull, despite his good qualities, is unfit by temperament or by intellect to create the dynamic policies needed in these blazing times. His mind is closed to the fresh breezes of human thought that are blowing through the world today. This was pathetically obvious in his recent speech.

Indicted because the department has not a single figure, since the dismissal of Sumner Welles, who has the stature and imagination to deal with the challenging problems of wartime diplomacy, and because the department itself is tackling a job of twentieth century diplomacy with nineteenth century equipment and outlook.

Indicted because the department, sometimes justifiably in the interest of military expediency and sometimes with no apparent justification, has dealt with Vichyites, with Franco, with Fascist ex-monarchs like King George of Greece—a booby in the bargain—while ignoring or snubbing men like Gen. De Gaulle in whom the very hopes of oppressed Europe lie.

Indicted because the department consistently follows a policy of refusing to take the people into its confidence. Unlike Woodrow Wilson, who published every note he sent to Germany in the First World War, Secretary Hull left the people unready for Pearl Harbor, though later publication of the diplomatic notes made it plain we had reached an impasse with Japan.

Indicted because the department, set apart from the robustness of American democracy, and evidently afraid of democracy, refuses to formulate and make public either the country's war aims or its postwar plans, though the American public yearns for their precise definition. For want of such definition of aims and plans they turn in hunger to the speeches of Henry Wallace, to Wendell Willkie's book, "One World."

Indicted because, although military expediency first explained the deal with Darlan, we continued to play along with French Fascists and Jew-baiters, such as Peyrouton, until long after we had need to do so; because recognition of the French Committee of National Liberation was delayed and then only half granted; and because—if the State Department follows the same pattern it has in the past—it may even take to its bosom Marshal Badoglio and the moronic little King.

The State Department stands indicted because Secretary Hull and the State Department have permitted relations with Soviet Russia to deteriorate to a dangerous point. Russia suspects that the American State Department is so fearful of a strong Russia after the war that it is willing to risk antagonizing that comrade-in-arms which has made by far the greatest contribution to the defeat of Hitler.

Indicted because the whole bent and direction of State Department policy—with its Munich-minded pre-war appeasement of Japan, with its long courtship of Vichy, with its tenderness toward Franco, with its affection for royalty-without-portfolio like Peter of Yugoslavia and Archduke Otto of Austria—show a preoccupation with the world that was, not with the world that is to be.

Indicted because American foreign policy should spring from America's great and fiery tradition—the tradition of Samuel Adams, of Thomas Jefferson, of Thomas Paine, of William Lloyd Garrison. Instead, our foreign policy has tugged at the coattails of European Fascists and reactionaries to the amazement and consternation of the captive peoples of Europe.

And finally, the State Department stands indicted because, out of all this timidity, stupidity, excess caution and reaction, we are hurting our war effort, we are failing to capitalize the great virtues of American democracy. We are failing to lay the groundwork for the brave new world that must come unless we are willing to face the monster of a third World War.

This is the case against the State Department. It is a case, too, against President Roosevelt. Cordell Hull, and the State Department, are only his agents.

(From an NBC program of yesterday, carried by KSD, entitled "The Editors Speak.")

THE NAVY FLIES A FLAG.

The Navy's proud report of three years' progress is like flags flying and bands playing. Three years ago, 1076 vessels; today, 14,072, mightiest navy in the history of the world. Three years ago, the naval air force consisted of 1744 planes; today, 18,000. The United States has become the greatest sea-air power in the world. Behind these figures lies also the fact that this country has become the greatest builder of sea and air power on the globe.

With all this power goes a wonderful and terrible and inescapable responsibility. Ours now is the responsibility to conduct ourselves continuously as a citizen of the world, praiseworthy when order is kept, blameworthy for disorder. Never again should we dare tuck ourselves in between two oceans and close our eyes to what goes on in China, in Ethiopia, in Spain, or at either pole. As our Navy has grown, we the people must grow, to a proud sense of our world responsibility.

TASK FOR THE CONVENTION.

One of the most unwholesome phases of Missouri's tax structure, described in the Sunday Post-Dispatch by Curtis A. Betts, State political correspondent, is the winked-at evasion of taxes on intangible property. Each year, in St. Louis alone, about $125,000,000 is withdrawn from banks just before June 1, the assessment date, to escape the tax. By what amounts to little more than a bookkeeping device, the money is converted into short-term investments and is then reconverted into bank deposits.

As to stocks, bonds, mortgages and other forms of intangible property, contained in safe deposit boxes, owners rarely bother to include them in personal property tax returns. Such property, valued at billions, as Mr. Betts points out, shows up to the extent of less than $100,000,000 on the tax books, and yields less than $50,000 in State taxes. No real attempt is made to enforce taxation on intangibles, nor will any attempt be made, because it is tacitly agreed among prosecuting officials and taxpayers that a major flaw exists in the State's tax system, as set up under the Constitution.

Under this system, intangibles are taxed at the same rate as other property. This means that the total tax on such wealth, including State, county, city and school district taxes, amounts to more than the total income from intangibles. In St. Louis, if our total tax is something in the neighborhood of $2.70 per $100, it would wipe out the entire return from lower-income bonds, of which many millions are held. The result is wholesale tax evasion. An old British legal maxim has it that a law numerously violated is no law.

At the forthcoming Constitutional Convention, aside from other revisions of the State tax system, it will be an important order of business to find a solution for a situation which, first, deprives the State of revenue and permits wealth to escape taxation, and, even more important, impairs the majesty of the State by non-enforcement of law.

ROSY REPORTS OR REAL FACTS?

Shall the American people get rosy reports or realistic facts about the war? So far as the public is concerned, this is no longer an issue—the people want the facts. But Washington still has its doubts, and a showdown is approaching.

Elmer Davis is forcing this showdown by insisting on realism about airplane production. The War Production Board wants to announce with a flourish that 7600 planes were produced in August, but it wants to play down the fact that this total, huge as it was, is 900 planes behind schedule. Mr. Davis wants to announce both figures with equal prominence. He appears to have carried his point, a Post-Dispatch correspondent reports.

Washington often complains that alleged public complacency is slowing down production. Then why encourage complacency by withholding bad news and suppressing mention of production shortcomings?

Mr. Davis, insisting on hard facts, is trying to do the job OWI was created to do. Its predecessor, the Office of Facts and Figures, failed because it specialized in cheery news. Only at this late date is it possible to see fully how the public was misled by this agency.

For instance, its report of Jan. 23, 1942, attracted wide attention. Everything was fine and dandy, the report said. Production was zooming and, while a big job was still ahead, "a tremendous work has already been accomplished."

Gen. Marshall's recent candid statement makes possible a check on this OFF report, prepared by Archibald MacLeish, poet and Library of Congress head. Throughout his account of the same period, the Chief of Staff emphasizes the grave dangers resulting from appalling shortages of materials and fighting power. "On all the fighting fronts," he says, "the Allies were in a desperate situation due to lack of adequate materiel while facing an enemy who possessed an abundance of the most modern equipment conceived at that time."

For lack of men, materials and especially planes, the Philippines fell. Yet the OFF report spoke glowingly of airplane mass production. It said ammunition output was nine times the figure of a year before, but Gen. Marshall says that in August, 1941, only 7,000,000 rounds of small-arms ammunition could be sent to the Dutch East Indies in response to urgent appeals, and then only by reducing to a hazardous degree the supply of our troops moving to Iceland.

The cheery OFF report was criticised when it appeared. Arthur Krock of the New York Times called it "a respectable propaganda job." The Post-Dispatch called it "imagery and paregoric." Now, with Gen. Marshall's report and other disclosures of the true situation of that time, this rosy report is seen to have been mere camouflage.

Why should any Government agency attempt to kid the people? When the truth comes out, and it invariably does, the people are disillusioned and the propagandists are discredited. More power to Elmer Davis in his fight for factual, uncolored reports!

ANOTHER TRANSPORTATION WRECK; WHY?

The collision of a cross-country bus and a Diesel train near Johnston City, Ill., yesterday, in which seven persons were killed and 53 were hurt, is particularly disturbing because it comes at a time when transportation accidents are occurring with abnormal frequency.

Indications so far are that the Johnston City accident might have been caused by faulty brakes, or that the driver's foot may have slipped off the brake pedal. The investigation into the accident should be directed especially toward finding out whether war emergency conditions had anything to do with it—such as overcrowding, shortage of skilled personnel for the inspection and repair of equipment, overworking of personnel, and the like. There have been some rather telling signs of late that perhaps the sapping of capable man power from our transportation systems has gone too far in view of the wartime strain upon them. Every opportunity should be taken to keep a check on this matter.

NOW IN AUTUMN.

There is a wantonness to the time of year. Heart-patterned leaves of redbud are a more desperate green against those few that have begun their browning. Rose of Sharon, late bloom defiant in the morning's chill, puts pink to cheeks of autumn dying proudly. A sunflower stands tall, strung with golden flowers, apologizing for a fragile lilac that crackles with lifelessness, too delicate to last the season out. Chrysanthemums and full-blown, gaudy dahlias cling to the shreds of summer, and berries redden in the top of a high bush cranberry, limned against darkening sky.

The ruddy raffia basket in which garden things are gathered is a rude tumble of planes and curves and color, all startling and formless. There are pine-tones, an edginess, a lusty smell to acorn squash. Mushroom squash are smooth-cheeked, chubby, the ivory of a hunter's moon. Jewel-like reds and greens of satiny peppers glow against egg-plant, rich and purple and round.

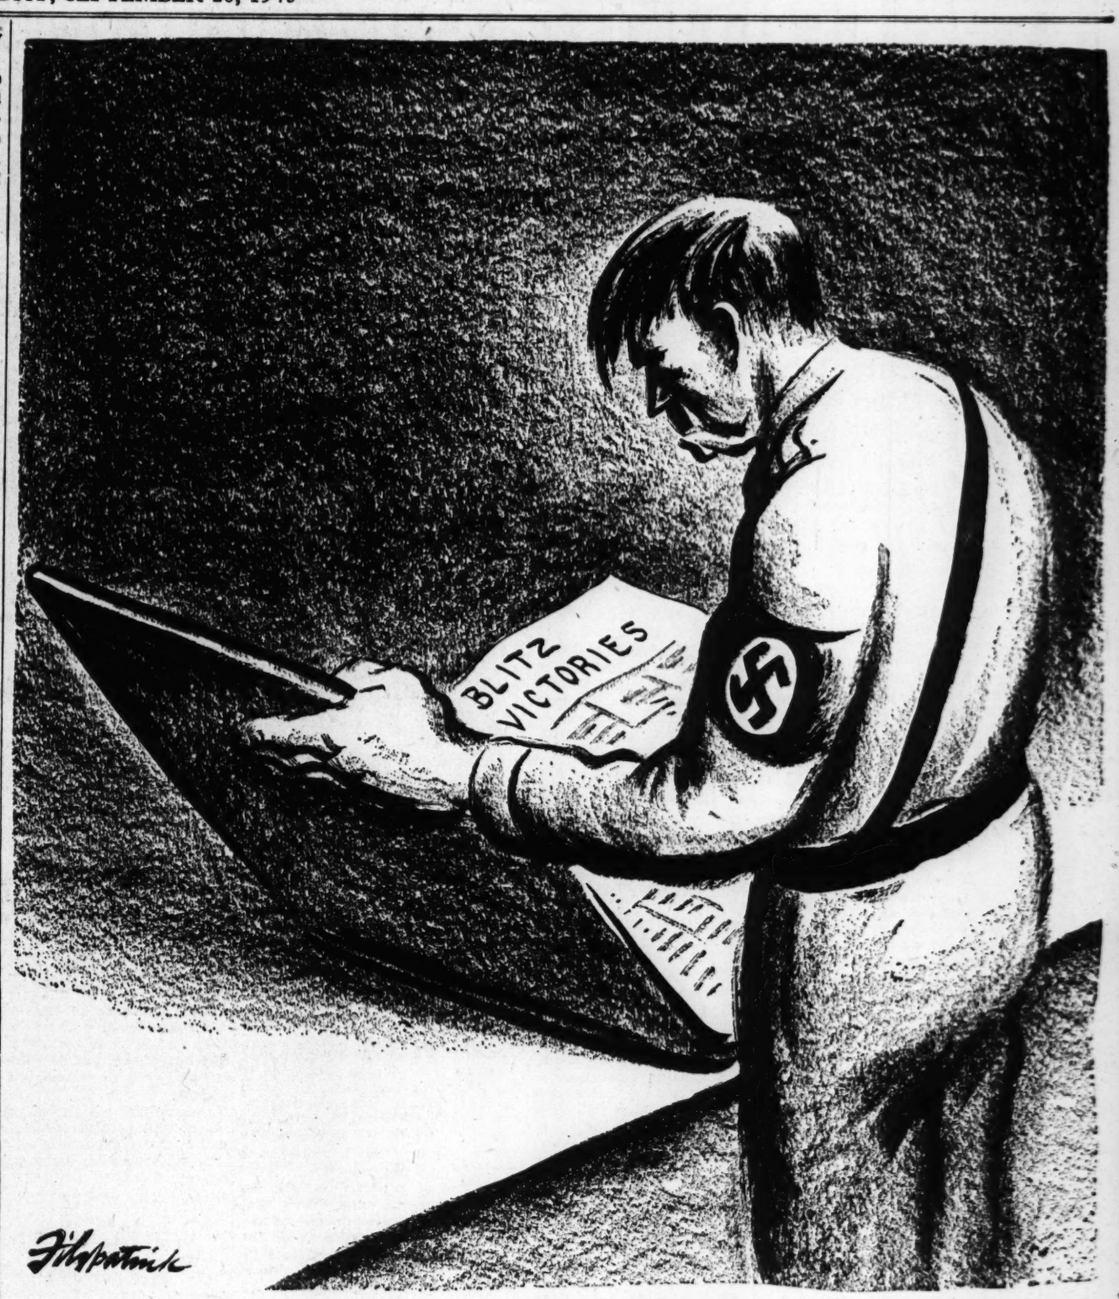

Put your finger to your lips, as if to taste the summer from it, and then set it to the wind—or test the wind-drift with a whisk of grass tossed free. Low and with sharpness the breeze rides from north and west to crimson maples, to bend the birches down.

INDORSEMENT OF A MUSEUM PROJECT.

St. Louisans were reminded of their fine opportunity for building a museum of natural science when Col. Clifford C. Gragg, director of Chicago's Field Museum, inspected the old Faust mansion at 1 Portland place, which has been offered to the city by its owners for this purpose. Col. Gragg, found the structure itself ideally suited for this use, and well located for public accessibility.

St. Louis is one of the few large cities in the country without the educational advantages of such a museum. Whether it is to have one is now up to those property owners of Portland place who have not yet decided whether to approve waiver of their street's restrictions. It is to be hoped that they will consider this museum authority's indorsement as another strong reason for approving the project.

Women won a mice-catching contest. This ought to prove who wears the pants.

YESTERDAY'S SCRAPBOOK.

The Mirror of Public Opinion

United Nations urged to make it plain that surrender means neither severity nor servitude; if we punished Mussolini, would a sword hang between us and Italy?; editorial proposes we leave him to his people, let Germans execute Hitler, and deprive Hirohito of "face."

From the New York Daily News.

ALMOST the first question that comes up now is what to do with Italy and the Italians. Certainly there's fighting to be done and the war's not over, but our method of dealing with the conquered nation will likely set a precedent for the future.

First consider the Italians, by birth and descent, in this country. Naturally, those who were born in Italy still have strong ties with the homeland—their blood calls to them, they have left relatives there, and many even have close kin in the Italian services.

Most of the second generation, however, and all of the third generation rightly consider themselves Americans, first and only. As a matter of fact, the tendency of the children to tear away from the traditions and language of the homeland has caused much heartache in Italian families here. The old folks never get used to our ways and the young folks resent the parental imposition of old-country discipline.

Reporters who went into the Italian neighborhoods in New York City agreed that the occasion of the surrender was not marked with any great hullabaloo. There was even some sadness mixed in with the lukewarm cheers that betokened what seemed mostly to be relief that for Italy the war was almost over.

They Saved Allied Lives.

We believe the Italians in America, and the Italo-Americans and those with Italian names who are full Americans, should receive our friendship and consideration.

But how to treat the Italians in Italy? Well, they did throw out Mussolini. And with unconditional surrender, they saved countless lives for the Allied forces. Tired and beaten, their hearts were no longer in the fight.

We think that it should be made clear that unconditional surrender does not necessarily mean severe punishment and servitude. Lenience in dealing with the Italians might soften up some other wavering peoples and decide them to give in more easily.

Anyway, it does not appear that the United Nations have plans for grinding Italian faces in the dust. The large question is how Mussolini will be dealt with. Our manner of taking care of him will possibly set a precedent for the handling of bigger game.

We feel that it would be a mistake, and perhaps a contravention of the rules of human conduct to try him in some court set up by the Allies.

With his mania for military gestures and his dream of rebuilding the Roman Empire, he brought more harm and suffering to the Italian people than to anyone else. They should be the ones to judge and punish him. If we do it, there will be a sword between us for a long time. If they do it, they will have warned their leaders to stay out of war, or at least out of losing wars.

Exile Might Be Best.

It is not quite fair to Napoleon, monster though he may have been, to compare his case with Mussolini's, but the parallel is inevitable. Mussolini doesn't have the gimp to repeat Napoleon's "Hundred Days" after the escape from Elba, so it might be poetic in an Italianate way to condemn Mussolini to one of the forsaken Aeolian Islands to which he was accustomed to send his own political opponents.

Napoleon is conceded to have suffered more in his years on St. Helena than he ever would have suffered before a firing squad or on the guillotine. He is said to have sat for hours at Longwood and gazed in the direction of Europe, hundreds of miles across the Atlantic and Africa. Mussolini, from Lipari, would be able to see Sicily and Calabria on a clear day, and to think about himself.

In the case of Hirohito, we should not do to him, as a prisoner of war, what his men did to the American flyers they captured. But he should be deprived of his "face," in order forever to destroy the myth of Japan's divine origin, the instrument her leaders have used to drive the Japanese people into one war after another.

In the case of Hitler, we think it would be best for the future peace of the world if a revolutionary government in Germany should try him and execute him.

In Behalf of Harry Slattery

From the Chicago Sun.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S intervention has checked, at least temporarily, the clique which has been gunning for Harry Slattery, head of the Rural Electrification Administration and one of the finest career officials in the Government. Mr. Slattery will still have to fight for his job before a Senate investigating committee. The broader danger is that the whole public power movement will be harmed by a split in its ranks.

The war on Slattery arises from a group of rural electric co-operatives, which were organized with money borrowed under REA and now want to expand into the mutual insurance business. The REA director, having in mind the safety of Government loans, refused to approve this scheme. The co-op leaders responded with charges of "incompetence," and Secretary Wickard demanded Mr. Slattery's resignation. Former Senator Norris now expresses the opinion that a sinister threat of monopoly lies behind the attack by the insurance plan proponents.

It would be a poor reward for faithful service if Mr. Slattery should be made the victim of such a dispute. This man entered Government work under the first Roosevelt, and has worked straight through Republican and Democratic administrations. He helped expose the Teapot Dome scandal and fought to conserve the nation's vital mine and forest reserves from exploiters. Anti-New Dealers previously tried vainly to besmirch his REA administration.

How can we ever hope for a top-notch Federal career service if men like Slattery, grown gray fighting the people's battles, are thrown to the lions?

AIR-WAR PARADOX.

From the Houston (Tex.) Post.

A peculiar thing about an "air umbrella" is that while it shelters its friends, it rains things on its enemies.

Prose Proves to Be Inadequate For Story of Air Super-Heroes

"Skyways to Berlin," by Maj. John M. Redding and Capt. Harold Leyshon. (Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

HERE are 18 stories of expoits by members of the "First Wing" (the First Heavy Bombardment Wing of the United States Army Eighth Air Force), written as a labor of love by two reporters who lived with the crews.

Let us say at once that the book is as well planned and as well written as any such prose book might be, and then let us add that adequate narrative about these super-heroes is simply beyond prose. We have in this book the skeletal facts about the bomber crews who attack Hitler's Europe day after day. We are confronted with the behavior of men bred in a culture of "business for private profit," "adventure capitalism," "individual enterprise," volunteering each time afresh to plunge into the gates of death, the mouth of hell, without the expectation of even ephemeral glory.

From these skeletal facts some day some poet may select the story of just one youth and make a saga. We cannot contemplate a score of heroes simultaneously. There have been thousands of Arnold von Winkelrieds. We can envisage only one, and only one Charge of the Light Brigade.

National origin does not seem to be important—Rodriguez, Weiskopf, Warren and even a Japanese gunner, Ben Kuroki, Tony Santella, De Vinney, McCauley, Smith, are picked at random from the names in these pages.

The authors do no philosophizing. There is no "fine writing," no rhetoric. But what happens to the reader? When the bombardier reports "Bombs away," there is a culmination of all human and industrial development in one moment, in one man, one missile. All the long development of industry, invention, science—all chemistry, mathematics, statecraft, lead to this climax. All the living workers, in mines, shops, ships, have contributed to this co-operative act of the human race. It is at the moment the supreme social product. And from this act all the existing ways and means of mankind can be educed, even as a single bone identifies an animal. Knowing this, the reader lays the book aside—not asking "how much farther to Berlin?" but "What is beyond?"

Always there have been plenty of heroes. Will their heroism and sacrifice ever be matched by a statesmanship that is not based on agony and tears?

FRANK P. O'HARE.

New Edition of John Brown's Life.

OSWALD GARRISON VILLARD'S massive biography, "John Brown," has been recognized for years as the definitive life of the fighter against slavery whose stormy career ended on the gallows at Charlestown, Va., in 1859, but whose soul, as the nation still sings, "goes marching on." Since publication of the book, in 1910, many facts and documents about John Brown have come to light, and Mr. Villard now includes the new data in a revised and expanded edition (Knopf, New York).

The historian recognizes the major place of "Osawatomie Brown" in America's history, but he does not minimize the violence that marked his life. In fact, he interprets the recent disclosures about the crusader's guilt in the Pottawatomie massacre (in which five pro-slavery men were slain) as "an additional blot upon Brown's character."

After surveying in great detail the actions and motives of this remarkable man, Mr. Villard concludes: "The story of John Brown will ever confront the spirit of despotism, when men are struggling to throw off the shackles of social or political or physical slavery."

TODAY and TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

SALERNO BEACH

WHAT can we do who do not share their danger for the men in the Salerno drive? We can give them our work, our things, our confidence through thick and thin, the affection of our hearts which holds them always close and present in our minds.

Yet there is something else, and unless we can give that, too, we fail them and rob them and deny them. That something else, without which their salt will lose its savor, is to keep forever strong and certain the meaning of their deeds.

We are resolved, we say, to learn from our failures in the other great war of our generation. If so, then first of all let us be sure we realize that the root of our failure was that so quickly we forgot, and then were so willing to diminish and degrade the meaning of the cause in which our men fought and suffered and died.

There is surcease from pain, and what is destroyed is rebuilt, and grief is accepted. Nothing is so terrible in war as the ignorance and ingratitude with which we allowed ourselves to believe and priggishly to teach in our schools and declare in Congress that the ordeal of Belleau Wood and St. Mihiel and the Argonne—their pain and destruction and the grief—were futile and of no avail.

What Soldiers Fight For.

FOR however the soldier may put it, however much he may shun fine words, whatever even he may think he thinks when he is asked about it, a soldier fights for one thing only and only with that thing can he be repaid. He fights for honor, which is the short name for all that cannot be measured in dollars, in votes, in hours of pleasure.

You cannot pay a soldier in dollars, in votes, in hours of pleasure, or in any other tangible thing because those are the very things he gives up, it may be forever, when he storms the beaches at Salerno. He has not been paid at all in the only coin which is good at Salerno unless, whether he falls or comes back, he has not suffered in vain.

That is what Lincoln knew and said upon the battlefield of Gettysburg. And that is what Pericles said 2000 years before Lincoln to the people of Athens. And that is what Wilson knew. And that is what all the true leaders in this war have known, that the only incentive and the only reward that they can give to men who go into battle, or suffer in prison, or are hunted in the mountains, is the consciousness that they are living greatly, and if they perish, they die in glory.

The true leaders of men have known how very accurate, and indeed how wise in the hearts of men, was our poet when he wrote, just the other day, "They say, we leave you our deaths. Give them their meaning."

Doing Duty at Home.

THAT is the obligation of those who wait at home for those who have gone to the wars. Let none who have husbands, sons, lovers, friends in the battle be none who have husbands, sons, degrade, who would make trivial, or would exploit for his own profit or prejudice or advantage, the meaning of their deeds.

All the other things that have to be done must, of course, be done, each man giving what he can and serving when he is wanted. But doing the duty of a citizen is not enough. Beyond the call of duty there is the call of honor, and for the nation honor is the value which is beyond all price.

"There no hearts grew faint," said Pericles, "because they loved riches more than honor; none shirked the issue in the poor man's dreams of wealth. All these they put aside to strike a blow for the city. Counting the quest to avenge her honor as the most glorious of all ventures, and leaving hope, the uncertain goddess, to send them what she would, they faced the foe as they drew near him in the strength of their own manhood; and when the shock of battle came, they chose rather to suffer the uttermost than to win life by weakness.

"So they gave their bodies to the commonwealth and received, each for his own memory, praise that will never die, and with it the grandest of all sepulchers, not that in which their mortal bones are laid, but a home in the minds of men, where their glory remains fresh to stir to speech or action as the occasion comes by. For the whole earth is the sepulcher of famous men; and their story is not graven only on stone over their native earth, but lives on far away, without visible symbol, woven into the stuff of other men's lives."

And then he added: "For you now it remains to rival what they have done and, knowing the secret of happiness to be freedom and the secret of freedom a brave heart, not idly to stand aside from the enemy's onset."

PREPARE TO SHARE FOOD, F.D.R. SAYS

Demands on U. S. to Increase as Lands Are Occupied, He Asserts.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—President Roosevelt said last night that the United States must be prepared to share its food "with those who—without our help—might be faced with want."

In a letter to food dealers attending the annual conference of the super market institute, the President said:

"The food problem of the United States has become an increasing part of our military effort. There is no indication that our responsibilities in this direction will diminish soon—in fact, they are likely to be increased as additional territory is occupied by our fighting forces.

"It is therefore essential that there be complete co-operation between the producers and distributors of food in this country and those governmental agencies charged with the duty of supplying food to our soldiers and civilian population.

"The Government does not intend to deprive any American citizen of sufficient food to maintain health and energy. At the same tife, we must be prepared to share with those who—without our help—might be faced with want.

"Everything that we in the United States can do to increase production and make distribution more efficient will further this objective. Real distributors have an especial duty, which I feel they will be glad to assume patriotically."

DUROCHER DENIES CHARGES IN DIVORCE CASE; NEW TAX SUIT

Leo E. Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn baseball team, today entered a general denial to allegations of general indignities set forth in the divorce suit of his wife, Mrs. Grace Dozier Durocher. At the same time a second state income tax suit was filed against him in Circuit Court, asking for judgment of $893 and penalties.

Several days ago, J Jules Brinkman, attorney for the state auditor's office, filed suit for 1938 income taxes of $554 and penalities in the court of Justice of Peace Anton Sestric. Today's suit seeks to collect the tax on his 1939 income, reported by the St. Louis assessor as $14,545.

Durocher's denial in the divorce suit was entered in Circuit Judge William H. Killoren's court through his attorney, Dewey S. Godfrey. Date for a hearing in the case has not yet been set.

Another Byrne 'Hits a Home Run,' Shoots Down His First Nazi Plane

Lt. Bernard R. Byrne of Ladue, Son of Famous Ball Player, Brother of Desert Flyer, Makes Good on His Own.

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
Representing the Combined American Press.

Distributed by the Associated Press.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 17.—(Delayed).—A burden has been lifted from the sturdy shoulders of Lt. Bernard R. Byrne of 800 South Price road, Ladue, Mo.

This blond, 23-year-old fighter pilot first became known only as the son of Bobby Byrne, great Pittsburgh Pirates third baseman in Honus Wagner's days. Then, when he was coming along as a fighter pilot, he became known as the little brother of Capt. Robert Byrne, 26, of the desert air force. But that old burden was booted out of the picture Sept. 15 when the little brother, known to his squadron mates as "Hot Shot," brought down his first German plane, a Focke Wulf.

Lt. Byrne sat in the shade of his aircraft wing today and talked about it. And how he talked.

"It was just like hitting my first home run," said this scrappy kid who played professional baseball first at Ashland, Ky., in the Mountain State League and later at Appleton, Wis., in the Wisconsin State League.

Bernie Byrne, talking it up like any shortstop, said:

"It was the first good shot I had. I dived down on that boy from about 8000 feet and caught him right off base. I poured in about 380 rounds. He slipped off smoking and went down, exploding when he hit the ground. Then I looked back and there was a big radial engine looking at me right in the face. A Focke Wulf had slipped onto my tail, but Lt. R. A. Williams, from Bogota, N. J., dived in and drove him off.

"When I landed there was a letter from Dad. He said he supposed the telephone would ring some day and the local paper would be telling him that I had bagged a Heinie."

Lt. Byrne got his first victory during his twenty-fourth combat mission.

Father Thinks Son "Did Some Big Talking."

Robert Byrne, father of Lt. "Bernie" Byrne, said this morning, when informed by the Post-Dispatch of his son's exploit: "I'll bet he did some big talking, just like it says he did in the story. Bernie's a happy-go-lucky kid with a lot of gab. When he left I told him that, if he ever got a German plane, we'd hear him talking about it all the way back to St. Louis.

LT. BERNARD R. BYRNE

"I had a hunch he was going to get a plane soon, and told him in my last letter that I was expecting a call from one of the papers any day telling me the news," the father said.

The flyer's brother, Capt. Robert J. Byrne Jr., who downed the six Messerschmitts in North Africa, is on leave and visiting his parents. He told a Post-Dispatch reporter: "I'm happy to hear that Bernie got his first one. I saw him last June at Casablanca and he said he was going to beat my record, and this is a start in the right directon." Capt. Byrne was married Sept. 11 to Miss Bonnie Dean, Kellogg Field, Mich., and they expect to leave tomorrow for Capt. Byrne's new assignment at an air training field near New York.

Lt. Byrne's parents said they received a letter from him two days ago, in which he repeated his promise to bag a German, and related two narrow escapes he had recently. In one instance, his plane was crippled, and he brought it down barely inside Allied lines. In the other, his plane was almost knocked out by antiaircraft fire.

Lt. Byrne was graduated in 1939 from Beaumont High School. He was a Silver Skates winner and a Golden Gloves boxer. He enlisted in May, 1942, and received his wings last February at Luke Field, Phoenix, Ariz. He has been in the North African war theater since May.

JOINT SERVICE FOR AGED PAIR WHO DIED 48 HOURS APART

Joint funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. George Kellner, who died two days apart, will be tomorrow at 10 a. m. at Good Samaritan Home for the Aged, 4500 Washington boulevard, where they had lived for the last nine months. Burial will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Mr. Kellner, 82 years old, died yesterday of an apoplectic stroke 48 hours after the death of his wife, 79, whose unexpected death in a heart attack, officials of the home surmised, had been brought about by her anxiety over her husband and her efforts to help the nurses taking care of him.

Her devoted attentions to her husband in his final illness were characteristic of the affection between the Kellners, friends at the Home said. The couple was brought to the home, records showed, when Mrs. Kellner, who had been caring for her husband for several years, could not continue to do so because she had suffered a serious fall. Mr. Kellner, a blacksmith, retired about 10 years ago. The Kellners, who had been married 52 years, lived at 4047 Lincoln avenue before entering the Home.

Mort Cooper Anxious to Get Another Shot at Yankees in World Series

He'll Be Badly Needed With Gumbert, White Failing in Hill Tests

By W. J. McGoogan

While baseball fans everywhere and those in St. Louis in particular are ousy talking about what is going to happen to Morton Cooper, the big Cardinal righthander, in the coming World Series, he goes on his way preparing hmself for his biggest effort without any fuss.

Despite the fact that he won 22 games last season and 20 so far this year, many baseball observers have expressed the opinion that he will be of little or no help to the Champions in their effort to retain the title because of his failures against the Yankees and the American League All-Stars in the past.

All of this means little to Morton who feels that when he faces the Yankees, if he has his proper stuff he will beat them just as he would any other team. And in order to be at his very best physically he has been doing a great deal of running lately.

Morton weighs 212 pounds now and was at 208 pounds when he finished the season in 1942.

Just Another Ball Club.

Perspiration streaming down his face after hitting fungoes before yesterday's doubleheader with the Cubs, he paused in the dugout long enough to express his views as to his chances with the Yankees.

"They're just another ball club to me," he said.. "I'd just as soon pitch against them as the Cubs, the Pirates, the Phillies or any other team.

"Sure they beat me, but I didn't have my stuff when I faced them in the series last year. The same thing has happened before against other teams and nothing was said about it, but I know that other pitchers no better than I am have beaten them and I know I can when I'm right. And you can say this: I'm sure anxious for another shot at them."

Manager Billy Southworth, in line with his declaration that he would go right ahead using his regulars for the rest of the season, announced that he would send Morton against the Brooklyn Dodgers in the first of the three-game series with Brooklyn Wednesday.

Today and tomorrow are open dates and Southworth plans to give his men a rest.

Cooper looms as even a bigger factor in the series today than he has before because two of the question marks on the Cardinal staff were given trials in the two games with the Cubs yesterday and failed badly.

Gumbert and White Fall.

Harry Gumbert was routed in the first inning of the first game after he pitched to six batters, four hit safely, one walked and he retired one on a booming line drive to centerfield. It was Gumbert's first start since Aug. 22 and his second since July 23.

He has been under treatment since he had to retire from the Aug. 22 game in Boston after pitching 5 1-3 innings because of a numbness in his right arm.

Ernie White made his first start since Aug. 1 in the closing contest. In three innings, the Cubs made five hits and four runs off him and in the fourth after the first batter singled and the next doubled, Ernie was removed.

He, too, has been suffering from a bad pitching arm for some time and he didn't appear to have much on the ball against the Cubs. He was one of the Cardinal victors against the Yankees in 1942.

From all of this you can easily see how important it is that Cooper be at his best when the series rolls around.

Wyse Hurls Shut Out.

It didn't mean much that the Cubs won both games yesterday to finish their season's series with the Cardinals with nine victories against 13 defeats. The Cubs had lost 11 straight previously, six in succession to the Redbirds and they're not that bad a ball club.

Also it is likely that the champions unconsciously let down a little after clinching the pennant Saturday.

Henry Wyse yielded only seven hits in winning the opener 6 to 0, while his mates pounded Gumbert, Munger and Dickson for 12.

The second went to the Cubs, 10 to 9, and Manager Jimmy Wilson had to call upon everything he had to stave off defeat. At that the Cardinals had the tying run on third base and one out in the ninth inning only to have Marty Marion, batting for Garms, fly out and Stan Musial foul out.

Musial, during the long afternoon fattened his batting average with seven safeties in nine times at bat. His hits included his thirteenth home run of the season and three doubles. He has a total of 205 safeties for the season, the first batter in either league to reach and pass the 200 mark.

Bill Nicholson of the Cubs, too, had a great afternoon with six out of nine, his safeties including his twenty-third and twenty-fourth home runs and two doubles.

Put on Late Rally.

Erickson, Burrows, Bithorn and Prim pitched the second and yielded a total of 13 hits while White, Brecheen and Krist were found for 11.

Two runs behind in the last of the ninth and one out, O'Dea batted for Krist and doubled against the right-field screen. He continued to third when Stanky let the return throw get away from him. Klein then shot a low liner to right which Nicholson tried to catch, but which got past him for a triple, scoring O'Dea. Marion then batted for Garms and flied to Nicholson in short right, while Musial fouled to Dallessandro in left.

Attendance was 11,620 paid out of a total of 14,122. Including yesterday, the Cardinals have played to 499,399 paid admissions so far this season, according to day-by-day figures announced by the club.

The third basemen traded wild heaves with each other in the second game. Hack fielded Kurowski's grounder in the opening inning and fired it over Cavarretta's head for a three-base error and in the very next frame Kurowski did the same thing for Hack.

Lowrey, the Cubs' shortstop, sparkled in the field and hit four doubles, three in the first game and one in the second.

St. Charles Triumphs.

St. Charles' Browns gained their third consecutive St. Louis County League baseball championship, defeating Manchester, 8-2, in the second game of the playoffs yesterday. The Browns won the opener, 7-2.

It looks like anybody's race to the bag, here, but a split second later LUKE APPLING (center, ball in glove), White Sox shortstop, beat MARK CHRISTMAN (6) to second base when the Browns' third-sacker attempted to steal. The umpire is BILL SUMMERS. Appling took the throw from Catcher Mike Tresh in the third inning of the first game at Chicago, yesterday. The Browns won, 7 to 4.

Yankees Still Need Five Victories to Take Flag After Losing Twin Bill

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—It sounds fantastic, but can it be that the New York Yankees will "blow" the American League pennant to Washington, or perhaps even Cleveland, in the last two weeks of the season?

On top by a nine-game margin over the second place Senators and by 12 games over the third place Indians, the Yanks need to win only five of their remaining 14 games to clinch their seventh championship in eight years.

Under the circumstances this would seem no hardship for the Bronx Bombers, but there is every indication that gaining those five victories will be one of the toughest tasks the Yankees have faced this year.

The fact that they missed clinching at least a tie for the title by dropping a doubleheader to the Senators yesterday may prove the turning point. The double loss, 3 to 2 in 10 innings, and 5 to 1, gave the Senators a sweep of the three-game series against three of the best Yankee pitchers, Charley Wensloff, Spud Chandler and Ernie Bonham.

Have Won Nine in Row.

The sweep boosted Washington's winning streak to nine in a row. If the Senators win all of their remaining 12 games they will finish the season with 21 straight victories (remember the Chicago Cubs in 1935?). In that case the Yankees would have to win four games from the always difficult Detroit Tigers, Cleveland Indians, St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox to tie.

It is a bit more difficult to see how Cleveland, a notoriously poor team on the road, can win the pennant, but it is possible.

The Indians have 13 games remaining, all on the road. Four are against the Yanks and three against Washington. If the Indians, who beat Detroit twice yesterday, 1 to 0 and 6 to 2, win all 13 while the Senators win 9 of 12 and the Yanks only one of 14, the Tribe would finish on top by half a game.

Great pitching by Early Wynn and Mickey Haefner accounted for Washington's double triumph. Wynn yielded only five hits in spoiling Chandler's bid for his 20th victory in the opener, winning in the tenth on Jake Powell's single. Haefner was touched for only two hits in outpitching Bonham in the nightcap.

Jim Bagby, likewise, turned in a two-hitter in blanking Detroit for the Indians. Southpaw Al Smith, aided by Allie Reynolds in a relief role, stopped the Tigers in the nightcap.

Adams Equals Record.

Ace Adams, star pitcher for the New York Giants, in helping the Giants take a doubleheader from Brooklyn, 3 to 1 and 7 to 4, appeared in his 66th game of the season, equalling the major league record set by Ed Walsh of the Chicago White Sox, 35 years ago.

Pittsburgh got back into the thick of the fight for second place by beating the Cincinnati Reds twice, 10 to 3 and 2 to 1. Rip Sewell chalked up his 21st victory in beating Elmer Riddle, a 19-game winner, in the opener.

The Boston Braves made it five in a row over the Phillies, 3 to 2 and 6 to 5 in 14 innings behind excellent pitching by Jim Tobin and Al Javery. Butch Nieman's homer with one on in the 14th won the nightcap.

The Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics split. Joe Dobson shut out the A's in the opener, 14 to 0, with five hits. The A's took the nightcap, 6 to 1, behind Jess Flores' eight-hit twirling.

Lions Drub Cardinals In Opener

CHICAGO, Sept. 20 (AP).—Don Hutson, the Green Bay Packers' great pass trapper, begins a campaign next Sunday to try and repeat for the National Football League scoring championship without his battery mate, Cecil Isbell.

Hutson will have three pitchers firing at him when the Packers, boasting exhibition victories of 23-21 over Washington and 28-10 over the Phil-Pitt Eagles, open their season at home against the Chicago Bears, the only team to beat them in league action the last two years.

Tony Canadeo, Isbell's understudy last season, has moved into the left half spot with rookie Irv Comp, a rugged star from little St. Benedict's in Kansas, as his standin. Another good passer, Andy Uram, will be at right half to provide a diversified aerial attack.

The Bears, powered by such veteran backs as Sid Luckman and Gary Famiglietti, will enter the game with a momentum of three exhibition wins, 42-28 over New York, 21-14 over Washington and 20-7 over the Eagles.

The only other game Sunday sends the Brooklyn Dodgers against the Lions at Detroit. The Dodgers, under the direction of new coach, Pete Cawthon, hold a 28-6 decision over Camp Lee. Three backfield regulars, Clarence Manders, Dean McAdams and Merlyn Condit, have returned for another season.

Detroit, with Gus Dorais at the helm, opened the league season yesterday by drubbing the Chicago Cardinals, 35-17. In making more touchdowns in 39 minutes than they produced while losing 11 games last year, the Lions served notice they do not intend to be the circuit's doormat this fall.

Chuck Fenebrock, formerly of U. C. L. A. and the Los Angeles Bulldogs, tossed three touchdown passes to Fullback Harry Hopp. Fenebock, who weighs about 175 pounds and is 5 feet 7 inches tall, may become the best passer for his size since Davey O'Brien.

Although Frank Sinkwich, Georgia's All-America, had only two days of practice with the Lions after coming in from the Marines, he fired a 17-yard touchdown pass to Bill Callihan during his brief appearance in the game and gained 24 yards in four ball-carrying trips.

Brownies Divide With White Sox; Senators To Be Played Next

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—A couple of also-rans in the American League flag race have finished out their home schedules. The Browns are all through at St. Louis and leave here tomorrow night for Washington where Bob Muncrief is slated to open against the Senators. The White Sox are washed up at Comiskey Park for the season and go to Philadelphia for a morning and afternoon twin bill on Wednesday.

The teams in question are only a few games apart in the standings and both perilously close to second division permanency. Yet while the Browns played to 252,000 customers in Sportsman's Park this season, the Sox with only 8514 for yesterday's double-header wound up the season with 511,183 cash admissions for the year. This is a decided drop from the 678,000 who saw them play in '41 and 660,000 who paid in '40. But better than 50,000 above last year's total. Thus the Sox season can't be considered a total loss.

There was a time when either Sox or Browns, or both, bid for first place this season, but eventually fell by the wayside. "We just haven't had the hitting we expected," said Manager Luke Sewell. "At least Dykes has had Appling and Curtright and Hodgin hitting up around the top most of the season. With those fellows hitting that high for us, we'd a been a lot closer. But with the exception of the Yanks, every other team has been so evenly matched that in taking turns knocking one another down they simply let the Yanks get away."

Split in Doubleheader.

The Browns lost the series here three games to two by losing yesterday's second game, 6-1 after taking the opener 7-4. Chet Laabs deposited one of Thornton Lee's pitches into the lower left-field stands in the third inning of the inaugural and drove in three runs to give Steve Sundra an edge in his quest for fourteenth win of the year. He yielded 13 hits, but still was in front at the finish as three sixth-inning runs off Joe Haynes iced the game.

Nelson Potter and Johnny Humphries hooked up in a nice duel in the nightcap, with the score 1-1 until the eighth. The Sox run had come on Moses' double, his steal of third (No. 49 of the year) and Luke Appling's third of four hits for the day. Gutteridge's double ahead of Zarilla's single had given the Browns a run.

Potter's downfall was accomplished by Moses' single and Byrne's error on the pickup. Tucker walked and when Curtright bunted, the ball got past Potter for a hit and he complicated matters by throwing into the stands. An intentional pass to Appling was followed by hits Hodgin and Hanski and Galehouse took charge of locking the barn door behind the purloined horse.

Gutteridge had a big day with four blows including two doubles and a triple.

Nelson Trounces Wood 15 Up in Special Match

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 20 (AP).—Touring his home Inverness course in championship form, Professional Byron Nelson yesterday routed Craig Wood, duration National Open champion from Mamaroneck, N. Y., 15 up in their 72-hole challenge golf match.

Nelson, former United States Open and P. G. A. king, never trailed in the two-day affair. He was seven up at the end of 36 holes and boosted his margin to 11 up at the end of 54 holes. He had a four under par 67 in his first trip yesterday while Wood matched par with 71.

Although they played out the string in the afternoon, the match was officially concluded at the sixth hole in the final round. In the final trip Nelson had a 70 to Wood's 74.

Walter Hagen of Detroit, veteran master of the fairways, put on the show for the gallery of more than 3000 by clowning in his role of referee after the contest had been decided. All the proceeds of the match went to the American Red Cross.

Nelson's victory was worth $2500, which was posted by Inverness Club members. It was the Toledo pro's second victory over Wood, having beaten the blond stylist for the National Open crown in a playoff at Philadelphia in 1939.

WHEN he was carrying the ball and tossing forward passes for Washington University's football team two years ago, WILSON (BUD) SCHWENK had an uncontrollable desire to go places—in a big hurry. It is logical, then, that he has chosen the fastest thing afloat in the Navy, the famous PT boats, as his vehicle in warfare.

The former college and professional football star, now LT. WILSON SCHWENK, received his commission upon graduation with a Naval class at Columbia U., New York. Then it was he volunteered for the torpedo speed boat service. Next, he completed his training at the Motor Torpedo Boat School at Mehlville, R. I.

Most recently, his wife says, Bud has been at New Orleans, working out with his squadron. Next move, she understands, will be outside the continental limits of the United States.

"He has the greatest admiration for the PT boats and for the men who man them," says Mrs. Schwenk, "and he says he considers himself lucky to have been chosen as one of their number."

Bud can really go places now, and score touchdowns that count, against Jap warships.

Protest in Softball League Final Dropped; Zenthofers Win Title

The protest lodged b the Railway Express team against the Zenthofer Club, victors in the Municipal Softball League final at St. Louis Park, last night, will not be heard by the executive committee. The reason is that Manager William J. Fenimore of the Railway Express team today withdrew the protest. His complaint charged illegal use of spikes by Max Croft, star pitcher of the Zenthofers.

The protest arose in the sixth inning when Croft slid into third ripping Vick Pernies' socks, and putting a slight cut on his leg. The Zenthofers won, 5-0, at St. Louis' Softball Park last night.

The girls' final will be decided this evening as they are all tied up with Wagner Electrics winning the first game and the McQuay-Norris winning last night, 4-1.

Mail Men Lead for Muny Title

Defeating the Borbein-Youngs, 6 to 5, in 13 innings, the longest for any Municipal elimination game on record at Fairground Park yesterday, the Postoffice nine today holds the edge in the best two-out-of-three game series for the senior championship. Postoffice was the South Side League title winner while Borbein-Young took the Mid City-North Side championship in the regular season.

An outfield fly, hit by Oldenberg with the bases full in the thirteenth inning scored Hofer with the deciding run.

Norval Hunthausen, former St. Louis U. High and Notre Dame pitcher, went the distance for the victors. He now is at Jefferson Barracks in the Army and is pitching also for the Missions.

He yielded seven safeties while Ovando Mallory and Charles Mueller, who divided the pitching duties for the losers, were found for 12.

Borbein-Young got off in front with a run in the first inning and held the edge until the seventh when the Postoffice nine counted five times and apparently sewed up the decision but the Borbeins came back with four in the eighth to knot the count and send the game into overtime.

In the Intermediate Division playoffs at Forest Park, the Pals of the Johnny Hopp League defeated St. Phillip Neri of the Walter Judnich League, 5 to 2, to reach the final round.

The Woltmans of George Khoury's Northsiders won from the Tigers, Khoury's Southsiders, 3-2, to reach the finals of the Junior division.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Champs to Be Kept on Their Toes.

KEEPING up the winning tempo of his club, Manager Billy Southworth of the championship Redbirds plans to play the remaining games of the season's schedule at top speed. . . . "We'll try hard to win every game" he says.

That makes sense, except as concerns tired-arm pitchers. . . . Morton Cooper, ace of the staff, wants to equal or surpass his 1942 record of games won and to do it he'll have to work in at least two of the club's 14 remaining games.

That's not going to overwork Mort's arm. . . More, you see, has a chance to become for the second year in succession, the "most valuable man to his team" of any player in the league.

But, perhaps he should not too seriously let that idea seep into his hopes. . . . Stan Musial probably will get the call, since he is showing the way to all batters in both leagues and playing in every game.

Also, Mort's brother Walker Cooper is in line for the honor, next to Musial . . . He has done a tremendous backstopping job. . . . Has been invaluable to pitchers. . . . Is hitting .307 and has driven in almost as many runs as Musial, while playing in fewer games.

Our guess at the votes for the National League's most valuable would rate Musial first, Walker Cooper second and maybe Nicholson of the Cubs, third.

Hard to Overlook This Fellow Brazle.

AL BRAZLE, southpawing for the Cardinals, is horning into the world series picture strongly. . . You wonderw here and when Manager Southworth will use him. . . . On his pitching since joining the Redbirds he almost rates a starting post.

BILLY SOUTHWORTH, who says he will not let his 1943 champions coast through the remainder of the schedule, but will fight to win every game.

Innings pitched, 70.
Hits yielded, 58.

This seems to show the 28-year-old first-year Cardinal has allowed the enemy one run every five innings on the average—fewer than two runs per nine-inning game. . . . You just can't omit a pitcher like that from your world series calculations.

Brazle is nl springer. . . He has been around. . . . He has been up to the big leagues but a bad arm sent him back for the time being. . . . He is cool and careful under fire. . . . He might easily turn out to be a man of the hour, during the championship.

COOPER'S season figures show that he's rightfully the ranking pitcher of the staff. . . . He has yielded only about one run every four innings or about two runs plus per nine-inning game.

Furthermore, his 136 strikeouts as compared with only 69 bases on balls tell another fine story of efficiency. . . . (t's hard to see how Southworth can afford to open the series with any other hurler than his ace, unless the Yanks themselves decided to use a secondary pitcher. . . . And that probably won't happen.

You can almost risk a bet that Cooper and Chandler will be the opposing hurlers in No. 1. . . . The alternative, our guess would be, to use Lanier against Chandler, saving Cooper for the second game.

Apparently, there will be no Ernie White to step into the breach for this year's third game—worse luck . . . Sunday's test was far from favorable.

Yankees' Pitchers Really Are Good.

ANOTHER left-hander—making three sound ones in all—serving for the Redbirds is Brecheen. . . . Here's a lad who stands right up to the notch on his season record. He has allowed few runs and walks, and is there with the strikeouts.

But in the main, the Yanks' pitchers stand up mighty well. . . . Without attempting to figure the relative batting strength of the two leagues, the American League pitchers seem more formidable. . . Following is a comparison, man for man, right down the Big Six of each club, the Yanks representative being on top in each case.

Cooper —	— 20	8	258	73	69	132
Bonham —	— 13	8	216	61	52	62
Lanier —	— 13	7	145	61	61	77
Wenzloff—	— 12	9	201	69	65	98
Brecheen—	— 9	5	113	35	33	63
Borowy —	— 12	9	196	70	65	102

Murphy	— 11	4	60	21	28	25
Gumbert	— 9	4	114	38	30	34

On mere figures the Yanks' pitching staff appears to have a shade on the Redbirds. . . . But they also appeared to have that last year. . . . And even though they disposed of the ace, Mort Cooper, the Yanks could not take care of the secondaries and won only one game. . . . History could repeat itself this time.

CHANDLER WANTS MACARTHUR MADE CHIEF IN FAR EAST

Senator on World Tour Urges Unified Pacific-Asia Command, Harder Blows at Japan.

By WILLIAM HIPPLE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Sept. 18 (Delayed) (AP).—Senator Albert B. Chandler (Dem.), Kentucky, today urged appointment of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as supreme Allied commander in the Pacific and Asia. Chandler, on a tour of the war zones with a group of other Senators, said he would return to the United States with a message to the Senate and American people that the war effort against Japan must be increased.

A unified command for the Pacific and Asia, including Burma, India and China, was advocated by the Senator, who said his personal choice was Gen. MacArthur, with whom he conferred recently. Senator Chandler said he had heard criticisms of MacArthur in recent days, but refused to give details.

He praised MacArthur as a great military leader and said:

"I'm sold on his ability as a fighter and as a leader he represents our best chance of winning the war against Japan."

"Unless we soon get more men, guns and planes out here, China is in danger of being forced out of the war," Chandler declared. "That's the risk we are running. If China is knocked out, the war against Japan will be prolonged."

The Senator said what he had seen on his tour only deepens his conviction that Japan is our primary enemy and added: "We're not doing enough out here."

Senator Richard Russell (Dem.), Georgia, the only other Senator in the traveling group to come here with Chandler, agreed that this area has suffered by the policy of "clipping" Germany first, but said he believed an increasing stream of supplies would be coming to the Pacific war zone.

Both Senators said this area has been getting more emphasis since the Churchill-Roosevelt conferences at Quebec.

Again referring to China situation, Chandler said Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault, commander of the American air force there, desperately needs support and "we are taking a chance of losing our Kunming base."

Chandler said the United Nations must seize a port in Burma and must run the Japanese out of Burma in order to keep China in the fight.

Career of General From Missouri Who Made Daring Trip to Rome

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—Gen. Maxwell Taylor of the United States Field Artillery, who hails from Keytesville, Mo., was one of two American officers who risked certain death if captured to slip into Rome under the noses of the Nazis and confer with Marshal Pietro Badoglio a few hours before the invasion at Salerno.

He was accompanied on the trip by Col. William Tudor Gardiner, former Governor of Maine. They went into the German-held capital of Italy wearing American Army uniforms, minus caps, traveling mostly by automobile and frequently passing within a few feet of Nazi soldiers, and spent 20 hours conferring with Badoglio and other officials.

Gen. Taylor has had a wide range of Army training and experience since he was graduated from West Point as a Second Lieutenant of engineers in 1922, after he had previously attended Kansas City Junior College. His activities led to his spanning the ranks from Captain to Brigadier General in two years. He has been on duty in Hawaii, at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and in Latin America; studied in Japan and France, and served as an assistant military attache in Pekin, China, and as an instructor of French and Spanish at West Point. He is a graduate of the command and general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, and the Army War College in Washington.

In 1926 Gen. Taylor transferred to the Field Artillery, and was a Captain in 1940. When war appeared imminent, he was made a Major, and promotions continued rapidly until he was given the temporary rank of Brigadier General in 1942, at which time he was with the Eighty-second Airborne Artillery, a unit that took in the invasion of Sicily.

Interpreting The War News

to run sea-borne assistance to Lae met disaster in the Bismarck Sea and Huon gulf last March, when every vessel in a 22-ship convoy was sunk by Allied planes. The enemy's subsequent efforts to send help to northeastern New Guinea by barges was foiled by Allied airmen who destroyed hundreds of these small craft in night and day sweeps along the coasts.

Resistance Brief.

Isolated from supporting bases by the Allied sea and air blockade and hemmed in by Australians converging on them from the south, west and northeast, the remnants of the Japanese garrison offered no resistance to the final assault at Salamaua and their guns hurled only brief and ineffective defiance to Australians moving on Lae.

MacArthur recently estimated the Japanese over-all strength in the Lae-Salamaua area at 20,000 men, comprising elements of four divisions. Following the victory Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, commander of Allied land forces in the Southwest Pacific, asserted that the Japanese lost nine battalions in seven months solely in the attempt to hold the approaches to these outposts. This would total approximately 6000 men, on the basis of the accepted wartime strength of Japanese field units.

Preliminary reports from Australian units which occupied Salamaua and Lae accounted for several hundred more enemy casualties. How many Japanese may have succeeded in escaping from the two strongholds by barges and how many were fleeing to destruction in the more than two-mile high mountain masses northwest of Lae was not yet known.

Preliminary Action.

Driving the Japanese from Salamaua and Lae was necessary to the development of a larger scale offensive against the principal centers of the enemy's strength along the sub-equatorial defense barrier, for which Lae and Salamaua served as outposts.

MacArthur's communique today acknowledged the enemy's realization of the Allied threat to the Rabaul anchor of his South Pacific defense chain by taking note that the Japanese are reinforcing their already formidable air strength in the northern Solomons.

How long and how costly will be the task of rolling up the enemy's eastern flank just south of the equator will depend upon how soon and how effectively the Allied air power operating from the newly advanced bases can gain the degree of aerial domination which paved the way for the Lae victory.

It also will depend upon how daringly the still-formidable Japanese navy will attempt to challenge Allied fleets in the Pacific, especially if the Allies receive the promised reinforcements which were made possible by the surrender of the Italian Navy in the Mediterranean.

Following is the text of MacArthur's message in which he paid tribute today to the commanders, troops and naval units which took part in the successful campaign against Lae:

"The conduct of the ground troops was splendid beyond words.

"The Australian contingent included two of the Australian imperial forces' most famous divisions, who added new luster to their colors. These are magnificent troops, unsurpassed in the world.

"The American contingent of ground troops was much smaller than their Australian comrades, but performed equally well.

"The naval units performed their difficult and dangerous task most admirably. No amphibious force could have excelled them. The superb work of American and Australian airmen has already been noted by me.

"The skill of all commanders was of high order. Outstanding were Generals Blamey, Herring, Vasey, Wootten, Savige, Milford, Moten and Eather; Admirals Carpender and Barbey; Air Generals Kenney, Whitehead, Wurtsmith and Ramey."

Undefeated Marquette And Purdue Elevens to Collide This Week End

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—Notre Dame, Southern California, Army, Navy, Georgia Tech, Northwestern, California, Tulsa, Dartmouth and Ohio State unveil their 1943 football teams this week end and hope to grab places alongside Michigan, Duke and Purdue as the standouts of the infant season.

Notre Dame, where Angelo Bertelli will be tossing his bullet passes for the first half of the season, goes against Pittsburgh in the opener for both clubs in the smoky city. Pitt, coached by Clark Shaughnessy this season, claims to have the largest civilian squad in the country but doesn't appear powerful enough to hold the Navy-strengthened Irish.

Southern California, with a collection of coast stars, and California, which inherited a major portion of last year's Stanford outfit, collide with UCLA and St. Mary's, respectively.

Army Tackles Villanova.

Army, regarded as having the best backfield in the east, unfurls its T-minded squad against Villanova, a "Navy" school that mastered Muhlenberg, 35 to 12, last Saturday; and Navy goes against the officers and cadets of the North Carolina pre-flight team.

Dartmouth, an early season Eastern power but weakened by ineligibilities, visits Holy Cross in a Sunday squabble and Northwestern, with Otto Graham still in there pitching, is the foe of Indiana, held to a 7 to 7 tie by pass-conscious Miami of Ohio, in its debut.

Ohio State, the country's No. 1 team last fall and relying entirely on civilians this season, entertains the Iowa Seahawks, 32 to 18 winners over Illinois in their first block and tackle party.

In the South, Georgia Tech displays what is expected to be the area's best lineup against North Carolina at Atlanta while Duke, which bruised the Camp Lejeune Marines, 40 to 0, last Saturday, mixes with Richmond in a Southern Conference game. The latter club downed the Richmond air base eleven, 45 to 0, in a night game Saturday.

Purdue-Marquette Collide.

Purdue and Marquette, a pair of heavy winners last week end, collide under the lights in Milwaukee Saturday. The Boilermakers, bolstered by last year's Illinois and Missouri stars, downed Great Lakes, 23 to 13, while coach Tom Stidham's lads trampled a weakened Wisconsin aggregation, 33 to 7.

This week the Great Lakes Sailors help open Iowa's campaign while Wisconsin has another tough foe—the Camp Grant soldiers—the Khaki Kickers, lost to the superb Michigan galaxy of Big Ten stars, 26 to 0 in their first appearance under Charley Bachman.

The Wolverines turn Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirsch loose at the expense of Western Michigan this week, while a talent-thin Minnesota machine is host to Missouri, reputed to be the best in the Big Six.

Princeton, which massacred Lakehurst Naval by a 61 to 12 count in a practice game last Saturday, is the guest of Pennsylvania. The Quakers not only are furnishing the site for the 1943 game, but also provided the Tigers with a number of starting Navy-trainers.

Rochester, 14 to 12 conqueror of Yale on George Sutch's one-man parade, risks its unbeaten record with Colgate while the Blue takes on the United States Coast Guard Academy. Georgia, which surprised even Coach Wally Butts last Friday by downing Presbyterian College, 25 to 7, hopes to have the same kind of success against Louisiana State.

Curtiss-Wright Wins.

With Everett Johnson pitching six-hit ball, Curtiss-Wright defeated the Emerson Electrics, 6-1, at Heman Park yesterday in the first of the series to decide the Y. M. C. A. War Plant League championship. The winners put over a five-run rally in the first to decide the issue.

CONSOLIDATION OF COUNTIES TO BE CONVENTION ISSUE

tute a small elective Board of Commissioners with staggered terms of office, the size of the board varying from three to nine members, depending on the size and population of the county.

This plan contemplates a type of county manager government, with the board functioning as a policy-making body and the manager serving as administrative officer. The department heads—a very small county might need only one—would be appointed by the manager, subject to approval by the Board of Commissioners, instead of elected as they are now.

Even with the retention of the present multiple office system for counties, a question has been raised as to whether the Sheriff and Coroner should be continued as elective officers under the Constitution. More and more, it is expected, the State Highway Patrol will take over the law-enforcement functions of the Sheriff, who may in time become only a server of civil processes. Conflicting with this, there have been suggestions that the office of Constable in the counties should be abolished and the duties of the Constable turned over to the Sheriff.

The question of limiting the bonded indebtedness and the tax rates of counties in the Constitution will arise in the convention. There are advocates of a change from the present constitutional policy of limitation to permit the counties home rule freedom in determining their own desires and needs in local tax matters.

The tenth article in this series, dealing with St. Louis and St. Louis County problems, will be printed tomorrow.

CHINESE EXECUTED FOR PLOT TO ASSASSINATE U. S. FLYERS

CHUNGKING, Sept. 20 (AP).—A Japanese secret service plot to assassinate members of the Fourteenth United States Air Force in China was disclosed with the announcement that a 21-year-old Chinese was executed today by a firing squad.

The youth was hired July 15 at Pengpu, Anhwei Province, by the Japanese secret service chief there, the Chinese Central News Agency reported. He was said to have been promised a reward of 100,000 Chinese dollars if he carried out his task.

The plot was said to have caleld for the killing of Americans and then the distribution of provocatory leaflets saying it was the work of Chinese airmen angered by "unequal treatment."

INFLATION BORN OF WAR SPREADS HUNGER IN MEXICO

than even Mexicans are used to. People on the streets throw up their hands and scandalize. Taxicab drivers rant and shame the government. Vaudeville comedians throw stiletto-sharp cracks at the politicians. And nobody does much about it.

But the President recently promised to purge from his administration anybody caught exploiting the shortages and inflation for selfish gains. He warned the nation more governmental control was coming. He chastised profiteers and people thinking of nothing but "easy living". His government is preparing heavier taxes, particularly aimed at enterprises making quick "inordinate" profits while the great majority of Mexicans, as Avila Camacho himself put it, are barely able to avoid starvation.

Price of War Boom.

A degree of inflation is one of the inevitable prices of a war boom. With eyes northward, the President two weeks ago said bigger, stronger governments than his had failed to control it. But it has whipsawed through Mexican economy. On one side, Government banking officials are trying to curb money in circulation without paralyzing business. On the other Government tourist officials are inviting Americans (with spectacular success) to come down and spend their dollars on a Mexican vacation.

Both Mexicans and Americans wryly criticised a recent "good will" party which the Government staged for a group of Hollywood stars who flew to Mexico City on priorities to receive a lot of fanfare, a couple of medals from the Mexican Government and fine food from two night clubs which advertised their presence as if they had been creatures of a sideshow instead of "state guests". These Mexicans and Americans wondered what vital purpose toward winning the war the junket served.

The United States not only has failed to furnish good example in curbing inflation, but Americans individually have contributed scandalously to Mexico's inflationary problems. Their shelves cleaned of non-essential goods, New York merchants scour Mexico and buy up gloves, huaraches, bags, baskets, costume jewelry, cotton textiles and a dozen other items—all at bonanza prices. Many an American bankroll has drifted down looking for quick change in some new Mexican enterprise, escape from United States war taxes (which is difficult) or both. New enterprises are rare because of lack of strategic equipment and material. So failing there, the wandering American attempts to buy out some established Mexican business, like a brewery, a cement plant, a textile mill, at a fabulous figure. The sound Mexican industrialist resents this, and neither government considers it healthful. But in planning any attempt to control such capital it is almost impossible to sort out bad from good until after the harm is done; so there is no control.

Inflation's biggest pressure is caused by the fact that heavy exports of raw materials to the United States for war use have built up for Mexico a tremendous "favorable trade balance" which is temporarily unfavorable because the United States can offer virtually nothing in return which would be constructive purchases for Mexico. Between April, 1942, and July, 1943, the Government's gold reserve increased by (not to) 160 million dollars. The Bank of Mexico had to issue 800 million pesos worth of additional currency against that, ordinarily the plainest kind of an inflationary measure in itself. But economists explained this issue was necessary to keep business from collapsing — war transactions had mounted so high that there was a grave shortage of money, and without more in circulation many firms simply could not carry on normal transactions.

(Paradox: The shortage of silver coins has become so acute that Mexico, world's largest silver producer, has had in effect to "borrow" silver from the United States for minting purposes. Washington's purchase of Mexican silver, which for years has been voluminous and at a premium price, has been temporarily checked so Mexico can meet its own coinage needs.)

Mexican officials have criticised Washington for failing to anticipate this situation. Some have been frank enough to admit they failed to anticipate it properly themselves. Their argument is that it would take "so little" of United States production to furnish Mexico the motors, the building materials, the farm machinery it needs. Battlefront orders must come first, Washington said.

But the situation grew so serious that President Avila Camacho discussed it with President Roosevelt at their April conference. Consequently a mixed commission was formed to see how United States capacity could best fill Mexican industrial needs. This commission is just beginning to function, and Mexicans are encouraged to hope it will be an important help.

Tomorrow Morgan tells of plans to use Mexico's surplus warborn wealth for postwar agricultural and industrial expansion.

files. Then next day I'd send two duplicates, just in case the first got lost, which it sometimes did.

Those four copies were in abbreviated cable form. Then, in addition, I'd make three copies in full form—two to be sent to Stars & Stripes, which publishes this column, and one to keep for myself, just in case everything got lost.

Two or three times everything did get lost, but it was always so long afterward before I found it out that the columns weren't any good by then anyhow.

During these few days that I'm writing here in Washington, I just write a page and walk over and hand it to my boss. I'm trying to work up to the day when I can get him to write it for me, and then I'll have the literary situation reduced to the irreducible and utopian minimum—I won't have to make any copies at all!

Back in Civies.

IN Washington I did something that millions of soldiers would give an eyetooth to do. I put on civilian clothes.

The only suit I have in the world is in London. But a year ago last spring I'd left some bags in storage here in Washington, so I delved into them looking for odd pieces of civilian raiment. I found two old sports coats with the elbows out, but no pants at all. Since I am not blessed with the right kind of legs to justify going around the streets of Washington without pants, I had to go out and buy a new pair. Also I splurged on a new hat and new pair of shoes.

My lost pocketbook has been returned. It came in the mail, from Wilmington, Del. It was nicely wrapped in tissue paper, with brown paper around that, and neatly addressed in pen and ink.

All my credentials and private papers—my correspondent's card, my inoculation list, my Short Snorter bills, my last war discharge, even a British one-pound note—were there, all intact. But the hundred bucks in American money was gone.

I'm grateful beyond words for the return of the wallet and the credentials. And it's comforting to know that our thieves are honest thieves. And what would I do with a hundred bucks if I had it?

That's all, now, for quite a while. Take care of yourselves. And please don't wake me up till October.

ALPS TUNNEL, NAZI TRAIN IN IT, REPORTED BLOWN UP

BERN, Sept. 20 (AP).—A Chambery (France) dispatch to the Tribune de Geneve said today that Italian forces had blown up the Italian end of an 800-meter (½-mile) tunnel in the Alps while a German troop train was passing through.

The dispatch said 30 persons were killed and 150 wounded and a second smaller Nazi troop train was caught by sliding rock, caused by the explosion, and 10 were killed. The tunnel was completely blocked, the newspaper said, and at least seven or eight months will be required to repair the damage.

The dispatch also reported that a German armored train was derailed near Chignin, six miles from Chambery, halting traffic in that district. At St. Amour, in the Jura mountains north of Lyon, an explosion derailed a train, blocking the Lyon-Besancon and the Dijon-Geneva lines.

war veterans in civil life, and the Government is expected to spend large sums on public works to prevent postwar unemployment.

Australia wants to carry on its wartime industrial development, and hopes, in view of the declining position of Great Britain as a creditor country, that American investment capital will flow into the country in increasing volume.

New Zealand in Forefront.

New Zealand, the report says, already has many of the measures planned for the postwar future of other countries. Its social security act of 1938 is described as "probably the most advanced of its kind in the world." The Central Bank of New Zealand is under Government control, and the Government has charge of the marketing of all butter and cheese for export. Like Australia, the report says, New Zealand may develop closer economic relations with the United States.

In the Union of South Africa, which has formidable racial problems, the party of which Premier Jan Smuts is the head and has adopted a program looking toward the elimination of inter-racial strife and the general improvement of living standards.

STANDLEY ON WAY TO U. S. BY PLANE

Little Belief in Moscow That Ambassador Will Return to Post.

MOSCOW, Sept. 20 (AP).—United States Ambassador William H. Standley departed from Moscow by plane yesterday and an official announcement said he was en route to Washington for consultations.

There was little belief here, however, that he would return. The Admiral, who is 71 years old, had not planned to spend another winter in Russia unless his presence was considered absolutely necessary.

(London speculated that Admiral Standley's departure might open the way for W. Averell Harriman, London lend-lease administrator, to participate in a three-power conference in Moscow.)

Admiral Standley's departure was made without previous announcement in Moscow. Maxwell M. Hamilton, former chief of the Far Eastern department of the State Department who came to Moscow in July as Embassy counselor, remained as American Charge d'Affaires.

Meanwhile, the Soviet trade union magazine, War and the Working Class, declared President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull's denials that the State Department was unfriendly to the Soviet Union "demonstrated the fact that American public opinion reacts quickly to anything connected with American-Soviet relations."

The magazine added:

"Readers recall, of course, that several months ago the same quick definite disavowal following the statement by United States Ambassador Admiral William H. Standley, who unexpectedly made to American correspondents in Moscow a declaration alleging that the Russian people had not been given proper information as to American help to Russia, although this did not correspond to the truth."

The magazine said there "exists in American circles a great desire for friendship with the U. S. S. R. and further improvement in Soviet-American relations. This is also the aim with which the people of the U. S. S. R. are imbued."

Asleep at Execution Time.

CANON CITY, Colo., Sept. 20 (AP).—The prison warden had to wake up John Sullivan this morning to read him a death warrant and take him to the execution chamber at the scheduled time. Sullivan, a handyman, was executed with gas for the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Carrie Culbertson of Manitou Springs in January, 1942.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE
TO ALL PERSONS IN INTEREST WITH RESPECT TO THE REORGANIZATION OF ST. LOUIS-SAN FRANCISCO RAILWAY COMPANY:

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the provisions of an order of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Missouri, Eastern Division, entered September 16, 1943, in the proceedings therein pending for the reorganization of St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Company (hereinafter called the Debtor Corporation) being cause No. 7004, that:

(a) A petition has been filed by the Debtor Trustees in said proceeding for approval of a compromise purchase of the claims of Reconstruction Finance Corporation (hereinafter called RFC) and The Railroad Credit Corporation (hereinafter called RCC), stating that an agreement has been reached by the Debtor Trustees, RFC, RCC, the Prior Lien Bondholders' Committee, the Consolidated Bondholders' Committee and the Fort Scott Bondholders' Committee, subject to the approval of said Court, for a compromise settlement of the claims of RFC and RCC against the Debtor Corporation or its estate and asking that such agreement be approved by the Court. Under such settlement, if approved, the Debtor Trustees will purchase from RFC two notes of the Debtor Corporation in the aggregate principal amount of $5,190,000, pledged collateral consisting of $218,000 of Prior Lien Bonds Series A, $28,000 of Prior Lien Bonds Series B, $1,561,000 of Consolidated Mortgage Bonds Series A and $5,693,000 of Consolidated Mortgage Bonds Series B and a claim of RFC for $3,390,000 of new First and General Mortgage Bonds provided for RFC in the plan of reorganization heretofore approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission (hereinafter called the Commission's 1940 Plan), for the sum of $4,504,575.47 to be paid by the Debtor Trustees in cash to RFC, the collateral so acquired to be held for those parties in interest who may hereafter be determined to have had an interest in the cash so disbursed. Under such settlement, if approved, the Debtor Trustees would purchase from RCC two notes of the Debtor Corporation in the aggregate principal amount of $3,805,175, the second lien of RCC on the collateral pledged with RFC and the claim of RCC for $3,691,060 of new First and General Mortgage Bonds provided for RCC in the Commission's 1940 Plan for the sum of $1,300,000 to be paid by the Debtor Trustees in cash to RCC, RCC to be entitled also to retain all amounts (not exceeding approximately $120,000) hereafter distributable to the Debtor Corporation or its subsidiaries under the Marshaling and Distributing Plan of RCC. Said Court by an opinion dated July 25, 1942, disapproved the Commission's 1940 Plan because of its said allowances of First and General Mortgage Bonds to RFC and RCC, holding that the claims of RFC and RCC therefor were untenable and appeals by RFC and RCC from such decision are now pending in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

(b) A hearing on said petition will be held before the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Missouri, Eastern Division, on the 14th day of October, 1943, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon in the Court Room of said Court in the Federal Court Building in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, or as soon thereafter as the matter can be heard, at or after which hearing the Court may approve such settlement and authorize the purchases so proposed. Any person in interest will be permitted to present evidence and be heard thereon in person or by attorney, with or without intervention.

J. M. KURN,
FRANK A. THOMPSON,
Trustees.
St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Company
Dated Sept. 16, 1943

The common-sense solution to any money shortage is a short-term loan. It allows a "breathing spell" in which to adjust expenses to fit income. Right now, for instance, living costs are up and it's becoming increasingly difficult to make ends meet. A loan from Commonwealth will "tide you over" until you get adjusted to these new wartime conditions.

It was one of those things you wouldn't think would happen to a picture of Betty Grable.

But it did happen. Somewhere in the South Pacific.

We heard about it when Miss Grable, with tear-filled eyes, showed one of our Hollywood reporters a letter she'd received from a soldier's buddy. A letter enclosing that worn and torn, bullet-punctured picture of Betty.

"Dear Miss Grable," the letter said, "we were moving up in an armored jeb—we came up where a few kids had been holding off some Japs—just as we arrived, we saw a soldier double up—heard him say, 'Goodbye, darling . . .' We got every one of the fifteen Japs, and then we hustled to move this kid, but it was too late . . . we pried open his hand, and it held this picture of you—the bullet had gone through it . . ."

Maybe that picture had been torn out of our magazine. We don't know.

But we do know that a lot of people see MODERN SCREEN every month, overseas and at home.

This month, millions of people will look for the exclusive life story we run in each issue . . . and they'll read about the incident of the bullet-pierced picture in our new life story of Betty Grable.

They'll read intimate, private-life items about Betty—anecdotes never before released for publication. They'll see pictures of Betty in many of her great roles—as "Sweet Rosie O'Grady"—as "Pin-up Girl"—and as herself . . .

—the girl who is now Mrs. Harry James . . . the girl who works tirelessly, as do other great film stars, for "her boys" at Army camps and canteens and benefits . . . the girl with the "pearl-and-gold" freshness who can talk to anybody and make them love her—yes, and the girl who cried when she got the letter and the picture we've shown you on this page.

We're sure you'll like our October issue of MODERN SCREEN. Please share your copy—lend it to your friends if their newsstands run short. Although we're printing 1,300,000 copies, these just have to be enough, in these times, to go around.

Roughing It

Housing Shortage Hits Film Stars

By Harold Heffernan

HOLLYWOOD.

SITUATED in the heart of a suddenly busy defense area, Hollywood now finds itself surrounded by fresh woes. It is caught tight in the grip of one of the nation's most serious housing shortages.

Think of it! Here come the chill winds and damp dew of another Southern California winter and a sizeable portion of the kings and queens of movieland have no adequate shelter.

Houses, large and small, aren't to be bought for any sum. Agents who once dealt in rentals have closed their doors. Anyone lucky enough to have a lease is hanging on to it. Hotels are taking reservations three weeks in advance—and most would prefer that you didn't become a permanent guest.

HALF THE film colony is house-hunting. Those firmly established on ranches miles from work have been forced to move in closer to studios because of gas rationing. Some have managed to purchase or lease homes closer in, but most have not. The result has been a splitting up of families. Some stars get back home only on week ends.

The ones hardest hit, however, are those who habitually rented and moved to new locations as often as studio affiliations changed. Landlords have had no pity on this group, which numbers a great many.

PROBABLY the strangest (should we say pitiful?) plight of all is that in which Ann (Oomph) Sheridan finds herself these days. After her break-up with George Brent, Ann bought a rambling run-down house in Encino, several miles from her studio, with the idea of reconstructing it from top to bottom. She had no more than moved in and signed the deed when, bang, went the lid on furnishings and home equipment. Worst of all, the place had no heating system. The actress managed to borrow a couple of hand heaters, but even so, the winds whistle through the house and she's constantly under heavy wraps. There isn't a suitable hotel room available in her vicinity.

RUTH HUSSEY and her husband of a year, Robert Longenecker, are temporarily residing in the attic room of some friends because their landlord played a fast hand. They lived in a rented house 11 months and two weeks, and liked it so well Longenecker arranged with the landlord to buy it. When he went over to close the deal, as an anniversary surprise to Miss Hussey, he discovered another couple beat him to the punch by upping the price $500.

Newcomers are finding it particularly tough unless they make hotel reservations well in advance. Many new studio contractees arrive under the impression their bosses have taken care of all such matters, only to have a rude awakening. In several instances, studio executives have opened their homes to the youngsters until they get settled.

KAY WILLIAMS, lovely New York model, who came out to debut in "Du Barry Was a Lady," has set some sort of a record for fast moving. She's lived in eight different places in four weeks. The day she arrived, the hotel advised her that it could accept her reservation for no more than three days. The next hotel generously allowed her to stay five days. At this point, one of the several real estate agents on her list offered Kay a house in Westwood with 18 rooms. She turned it down, figuring she would rattle around too much. Throwing herself on the mercy of friends, Kay spent a few days with each—finally winding up occupying the cook's room in Andrea Leeds' house. This looks fairly permanent, as cooks in the movie colony are practically extinct.

WHEN MARY ASTOR'S servants rushed out for defense jobs, she closed her large house, sent the children to camp for the summer and she and her mother started hunting a small house. Mary combed the town, also Pasadena, Glendale, Burbank and every near-by suburban community. Results were all the same. They finally landed two single apartments, but the landlord has a big sign up, "No Children." The kids are coming back this week and Mary must park them with friends temporarily.

Susan ("Random Harvest") Peters is the envy of all her associates at MGM. Susan's mother is superintendent of a big apartment house in Westwood and not a day goes by but what someone at the studio doesn't ask to be put on the waiting list for a sleeping spot there. Several MGM players have Susan's mother for a landlady.

WALTER WANGER and his wife, Joan Bennett, were extremely fortunate in finding a rented house to replace their own, which was gutted by fire several months ago. The Wangers can rebuild from the ruins, but not until after the war.

Betty Grable and Harry James, the newlyweds, have been rambling around in an 18-room domicile which James rented a year ago with the idea of setting up a homey gathering place for his band. For weeks they hunted a smaller, more suitable place without a nibble. Recently, they contacted an old gentleman who said they might rent his five-room home—providing he decided to go to Florida Sept. 30. And that's where the Grable-James house situation stands today—on an old man's whim.

WHEN CARLTON YOUNG, the Ellery Queen of radio fame, arrived to fulfill his Twentieth Century-Fox contract, he was forced to take his wife and three children to a hotel for residence. During one of his radio programs, an associate made a jesting remark that the great detective would like to track down a small home for his family. Fifteen minutes later, a Santa Monica landlord telephoned in and said he'd be happy to rent him a three-bedroom home. Young and his family moved in next day.

OF COURSE, there must be a silver lining here and there. One of these turned up at MGM on the set of "Gaslight," where you can bet Joe Cotten won't do much scene-stealing from Charles Boyer. Boyer is Cotten's landlord.

Sardinia embraces an area of 9187 square miles.

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE A-232: O. H. Frick, aged about 55, is in charge of the great Union Station in Chicago. "I have read several Case Records of yours criticizing the poor psychology of various employes of the railroads, including information clerks," he said. "Recently we initiated a new system for training telephone girls to handle the questions that are put to us by the public. I wish you could have lunch with me and then come over here for a tour of the station. Your criticisms of railroad inefficiency have been very valuable. We are doing everything possible to correct these flaws. I think you'll enjoy seeing how we are trying to combine the utmost in personnel efficiency and tact."

I AM ALWAYS happy to witness new evidences of efficiency, whether mechanical or psychological, so I had lunch with Mr. Frick. He is a graduate engineer who later switched over to railroading as a career. Because he combines many years of railroad experience with a cultured personality and keen sense of humor, he has been placed in charge of the Chicago Union Station. The handling of United States mail for this great metropolis is only one big problem under his supervision. But his "pet" or primary delight seems to be the corps of intelligent young women who have been recruited to answer the thousands of daily telephone calls for information about tickets, train schedules, etc.

AIDED BY Marie Griffith, the exceptionally competent supervisor of these girls, he has really reduced information work to a science. In the first place, they recruited a group of alert young women, several of whom are college educated for the pay is very good and the working conditions attractive. These girls are given specialized training in ticket rates, much as the life insurance salesman is taught the premium rates in his field. The walls of their central telephone exchange are covered with blackboard charts that run almost to the ceiling. Information on each railroad is kept on its respective blackboard. To help guide the eye, different colored chalk is used to alternate with the conventional white chalk. Thus, the vertical columns are easy to find and follow. Meanwhile, every fourth or fifth horizontal line is entered in colored crayon to aid the eye in keeping its place as it runs across these huge blackboards.

IN FRONT OF each girl is a set of coded and keyed timetable books. Behind her is another shelf of carefully indexed volumes, so an information girl can answer almost every conceivable inquiry without leaving her chair. These girls are so well trained that they often can exceed the ticket agents downstairs. Occasionally, the latter "borrow" one of these girls to help map out long railroad intineraries most quickly and correctly. Station agents in other towns call in to have these girls show them how to route a customer most efficiently across the country. The girls are also quite cordial and polite over the phone, for they realize that they are doing the vital "selling" for American railroads. By such efficiency and good psychology, the modern railroads are streamlining their personnel methods, as well as their locomotives, thus proving again that private enterprise can give us maximum service.

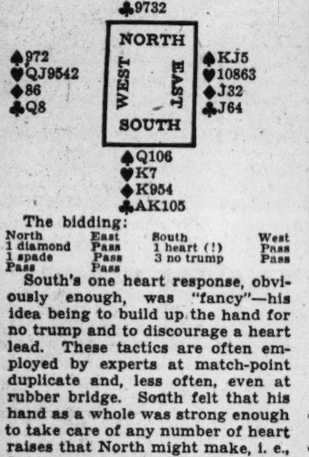

Signal for Agreement On Discard

By Ely Culbertson

THE most difficult part of defense is the proper selection of discards.

It is here that partnership cooperation becomes a fine art. Generally speaking, the defenders must "agree" early in the play, through the medium of signal cards, that West (for example) will guard spades while East guards hearts (or whatever the danger suits may be). The fatal error—and a far too common error—is for both defenders to concentrate on one suit. Note today's deal.

North, dealer.
Match-point duplicate.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	1 heart (!)	Pass
1 spade	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass

South's one heart response, obviously enough, was "fancy"—his idea being to build up the hand for no trump and to discourage a heart lead. These tactics are often employed by experts at match-point duplicate and, less often, even at rubber bridge. South felt that his hand as a whole was strong enough to take care of any number of heart raises that North might make, i. e., South could always insist on no trump.

West, with six hearts to the Q-J, could not be "talked out of" a heart lead: he opened the queen, driving out dummy's ace. Four rounds of diamonds were then cashed, West discarding two hearts. On the fourth round, East made a fatal discard. Overimpressed by declarer's heart bid and panicky that West was "letting go all his hearts," East resolved to guard the heart suit himself. He didn't want to blank his K-J of spades, hence discarded a club. Thereupon declarer promptly ran off four club tricks.

East, called upon for two more discards, changed his mind about the heart situation and let go two hearts—not, that it mattered at this point. Declarer led to the spade ace and returned a spade, and East's king became the only trick for his side. Every other declarer had been held to five-odd, hence East-West's match-point score on this board was not robust.

It was East's discard of a club, of course, that was entirely responsible for this result. His partner's selection of a heart lead, directly in the face of South's bid, had been the best possible guarantee that West could take care of the heart suit. East should have held on to his black cards until they were forcibly extracted from him.

My Neighbor Says:

When you have about one and one-half cups of chopped meat leftover from roast or steak, you can make a delicious stuffed mashed potato roll. Spread out two cups of leftover seasoned mashed sweet or white potatoes on a floured, heavy waxed paper. Cover the potatoes with one and one-half cups chopped cooked meat, one cup cooked vegetables (peas, carrots, green beans or spinach), one-third cup gravy or vegetable sauce or milk, two tablespoons each chopped onions, celery and parsley, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and two tablespoons margarine, all mixed. Roll up in the paper, discard the paper and slip the roll into a greased loaf pan. Brush with melted margarine or gravy and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Unmold and surround with creamed cabbage, reheated gravy or any desired savory sauce.

The 'Gifted' Child

By Arlene Wolf

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.

IT'S no compliment to call little Johnny a prodigy.

And it's inaccurate to call him a genius, no matter how many gold stars he brings home from school.

That's the theory of Professor Harvey W. Zorbaugh, head of New York University's Clinic for Gifted Children, only organization of its kind in the world, he says.

"Prodigy means, literally, done too soon," the professor points out. "And genius means that years after a person is dead, civilization decides that he made some extraordinary contribution.

"But there are gifted and talented children," he says. "Gifted children are America's most precious natural resource—the leaders of tomorrow. Whether they use their unusual capabilities for the destruction of civilization or its improvement depends on education."

Gifted children have very special educational needs, Professor Zorbaugh believes. They learn in different ways, don't need constant repetition, and usually make out best with the project method of study.

Professor Zorbaugh, who decided in 1925 that nothing was known about gifted children, and started to find out about them, looks forward to the time when they will have special educational facilities right through college and graduate study. He hopes that as interest gradually increases in the problems of these youngsters, and as parents and educators become more aware of their needs, the gifted child will be able to get the kind of training he requires in any city in the country, in any educational bracket.

Since gifted youngsters may sometimes become frustrated, ill-adjusted problem children unless they get this special training, the purpose of the clinic is to help them get the education they need. In New York, they may be recommended to special classes conducted by the Board of Education. Parents are told how the child is likely to develop, and in what direction.

Professor Zorbaugh has worked with some 2500 gifted youngsters from 4 to 12 years of age in the past 15 years. Although it's difficult to define exactly what psychiatrists and psychologists mean when they say a child is gifted, chances are he has an IQ of 130 or over, putting him in the top 1% group of intelligence for his age. He has great potential ability—he's versatile in interests and abilities, and can apply what he knows to new situations. He's well organized emotionally.

But a merely talented child—one who has some special ability such as mathematics or art—isn't necessarily gifted in the psychological sense. "A talented child won't go anywhere creatively without intelligence," Professor Zorbaugh believes. "It takes great visual ability, for example, to make a good mathematician an engineer."

Of the approximately 350 children who come to the clinic during the year, about 80 per cent prove themselves really gifted after going through a series of interviews and tests conducted by the staff of eight and various consultants.

Very often, it's the parents who bring Johnny in because they're sure he's gifted. One father toted his 3½-year-old down after the boy had engaged his parents in a discussion on infinity. The clinic discovered a little girl who was reading upside down had really learned to read before she entered school, and was just plain bored with ordinary methods. Two "deaf" children weren't deaf at all—they just got tired of answering questions that were old hat to them.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"BITING REMARKS."

"Biting remarks" are being credited to Hitler's generals.

They are probably not so "biting"—more's the pity as will be seen—as those in the colorful tale out of ancient Greece to which is attributed the existence in modern speech of this toothy metaphor.

The allusion is said to be to an episode in the career of Nearchus, one of the officers in the army of Alexander the Great. Nearchus was a dictator who ruled his provinces with tyranny and cruelty.

On one occasion, so runs the story, he ordered a contrary philosopher pounded to death in a mortar. When the victim was almost on the point of expiration, he asked permission to whisper to Nearchus an important communication. The ruler bent down close to hear the philosopher's last words—and had his ear bitten off.

That was a "biting remark," the first literal one on record, and the inspiration for the use of the phrase of today.

A small amount of lemon juice or orange juice and grated lemon rind will add flavor to stewed fresh or dried fruits. Use about a tablespoon of juice and one-fourth teaspoon rind for each two cups of fruit.

Take My Word for It

By Frank Colby

WORDS TO WATCH.

IS the man hired to drive one's car a "SHO-fer" or a "sho-FER"? The second pronunciation is approximately as the French say the word chauffeur, which originally meant a "stoker; one who has charge of the fire of a forge."

This is the box score: of five American dictionaries and the two Oxfords, SHO-fer is the first choice of four, and second choice of two; sho-FER is first choice of two, the only choice of one, and second choice of four. This indicates that the popular SHO-fer has a slight lead over the pronunciation sho-FER so far as the dictionaries are concerned. In my travels I have noted that SHO-fer prevails practically everywhere in the country in ordinary speech.

Note carefully the spelling of the second syllable, feur. We find the same -eur suffix in amateur, connoisseur, masseur, raconteur, restaurateur, saboteur, etc. The proper English pronunciation of -eur in such words is "er," to rhyme with her, fur, thus: am-a-TER, kon-i-SER, ma-SER, RAK-on-TER', RESS-toe-rah-TER' and SAB-oh-TER', never "sab-uh-TOO-er," as the radio has it.

The feminine suffix -euse, as in masseuse, is not to be rhymed with "goose." The vowel sound is something like the "u" of urn, burn. The "s" has the sound of "z." Maseuse is: ma-SUZ, chanteuse is: shah(n)-TUZ, danseuse is: dah(n)-SUZ, etc. The symbol (n) indicates the French nasal sound.

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

Bacon and Corn Make a Grand Casserole

In these days of shortages there are so many things to recommend this casserole dinner we hardly know where to start. It's timely for the corn season. It's quick and easy to fix. It spreads the flavor of only a half pound of bacon through a hearty meal for 4.

Since the bacon does double duty as a seasoning for the corn, replacing butter in this casserole—it's wise to get Armour's Star Bacon. It's a rich, mild bacon that is sugar-cured in its own juices, then slow-smoked over fragrant hickory and hardwood fires. It gives this casserole such a grand flavor your family will call for it often.

Place 2 cups of fresh or canned whole kernel corn in a casserole. Arrange slices of Star Bacon in a fan shape over the top of corn as illustrated. Bake in a 350° F. oven until the bacon is crisp and the corn is heated through and well seasoned with the bacon fat. Garnish with a mixture of chopped green pepper and pimiento. It makes 4 generous servings.

SAFETY FIRST, NEIGHBOR!
BETTER TO WAIT THAN TAKE A CHANCE

In their hurry to catch a street car or bus, some of our good neighbors are taking chances of serious injury. We wish they wouldn't take such risks, for we want Greater St. Louisans to enjoy safe, as well as dependable wartime transportation.

For example, some folks, trying to catch a car or bus dash across the street and go around the left-hand front corner of the vehicle. This is dangerous, neighbors, because the approach is from behind the operator. And, while he is as careful as possible, he may start without seeing a person approaching from this angle. Of course, if the operator sees the passenger approaching, he'll wait. It's better to wait a few minutes for the next car than take a chance.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I HAVE the dearest, best wife in the world who has never given me any reason for doing the thing I have done. But I let another girl attract me too much, and I cheated on my wife, and she caught me. I brought grief to her and it looks like she will never get over it. I am sorry and have told her so, have never seen the girl since and don't intend to, realize I have been unfair to my wife and my boy, but my wife will never trust me again. What can I do to convince her I have truly repented and will never be unfaithful again? Why is it we married men can't keep eyes front and behave ourselves? If our wives ever acted ups as we do we couldn't take it either.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest, but of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

THE OLD CHEAT.

The sincerest proof of repentance is to never repeat your fault. To convince your wife that you are truly sorry, that you love her alone, you must begin to win her trust and confidence all over again, as you did in courtship days. Be so attentive, devote all your non-working hours so exclusively to keeping close to her and to the boy that she cannot doubt your devotion. Eventually she will forget as well as forgive.

Dear Martha Carr:

I HAVE BEEN married 12 years and have a 10-year-old son. Until a year ago I was completely happy, at which time I found my husband, age 31, with another woman. I found he had been living with this woman for some time. Since I caught him he has tried to make it up to me, but every day we seem to grow farther and farther apart, until I wonder if my former love is turning to hate. I keep remembering how happy we were, and the change is so great, I can't get his unfaithfulness out of my mind, and would leave if it weren't for our boy. Perhaps if the thing hadn't lasted so long I wouldn't feel so bad. What shall I do? MISERABLE.

The only way you are going to be able to go on is to make up your mind that you will be generous, will forgive your husband fully, will not look back and will make a success of your marriage. If your husband is sorry, is now trying to make up to you for his infidelity, meet him half-way. Give him your full forgiveness and start over. You have the child to consider and it is up to you to keep the home together for his sake. Many a man has been tempted by another woman, repented and never strayed again. Resolve to encourage your husband in his desire to do right.

IN ANSWER TO "B. C. S.": At 26 I would say you are entitled to make some kind of a declaration of independence. If you earn enough to support yourself you are free to leave home for a more congenial environment. Unless this man you love is absolutely impossible to be considered as a husband, you are certainly free to make your own choice at your age.

IN ANSWER TO "Ambitious": If you will contact the Children's Aid Society, 3858 Westminster place, it is possible that you can be used as housekeeper in a motherless home or in the home of a defense worker. Such a job is an asset if anything, providing you are still active, a good manager and love children.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

IT is utterly beyond my imagination how the story told me in the following letter could be true:

"What shall be the attitude of two very hurt parents whose son has married lately and they were not invited to the wedding? At first we thought it was all very private and that because of his short and uncertain furlough from camp, there was no time to let us know. But now come clippings from the newspaper of a "fashionable wedding at the church" and a "reception at the country club." It is all very well to believe that parents should forgive everything thoughtless on the part of their children, but can we be expected to behave as though this meant nothing to us?"

AS I HAVE already said, I cannot even believe the possibility that your son, and even your daughter-in-law, could have allowed the wedding to take place without thinking of you and your husband. The best explanation I can think of, for not sending you word, is that you perhaps live very far away—too far to have taken the journey, and that knowing this, no one thought that you would care to see an invitation that meant no more than a notice of a distant happening—and that no one realized that you could want to see mere words in black ink on white paper. In short, this would have shown lack of understanding, but not that you had been forgotten.

I hope—in fact, I think—this must have been the case. And if so, you should not feel hurt. Also many "fashionable" weddings are taking place with no more than a few hours' notice and no invitations prepared. On the other hand, if it could be possible that you live near enough to have been present, then—I don't know what to say, further than to try to withhold judgment until your son has had a chance to explain.

DEAR MRS. POST: Should a girl wait and step aside for a boy to open the door for her when it would be just as convenient—if not more so, to open it herself?

Answer: She opens it herself—most certainly!

DEAR MRS. POST: When a Second Lieutenant and a Lieutenant in the Army, an Ensign, Lieutenant (j. g.) and Lieutenant, and a Lieutenant Commander in the Navy are introduced, are they given their titles or simply introduced as Mr. Blank?

Answer: Always introduced by titles and then correctly spoken to as "Mister." Remember, however, that while "mister" is correct, it is not liked by many of the reserve officers, and is therefore heard less and less—and Lieutenant or Ensign more and more—especially when they are out of range of their seniors, who are also "regulars."

Doctor on High Blood Pressure

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

CORRESPONDENTS often write me for a cure for high blood pressure. There is no such thing as a cure, only a prolonged period of management.

The remedies which have been recommended from time to time include mistletoe, garlic, watermelon seeds and half a hundred others. Whenever you find that many remedies recommended for a condition, you have a pretty good idea that none of them are any good. The old idea of a strict diet with no meat has also been given up as producing no really noticeable results.

There is no use making a person acutely uncomfortable by taking away things that have become a habit with him because the management of a case looks forward to a long pull, even to the end of life, and if the doctor sets too high a standard the patient will not live up to it.

For some reason to which I have not been made privy, most people with high blood pressure are overweight. I do not think the overweight is the cause of high blood pressure because one sees a certain number of quite thin people with good, substantial, booming pressures.

IF OVERWEIGHT is present, however, the first step in management is to attempt to reduce it. This does not necessarily lower the blood pressure much, but it is common sense because weight reduction lowers the strain on the heart musle. Pulling 230 pounds upstairs is more work on the heart than pulling 180 and by just that much, multiplied by the total movements of the day, does weight reduction help.

Early to bed, even if not early to rise, is another rule of management. Ten hours out of the 24 in bed, whether one sleeps or not is just so many hours of relaxing instead of tensing all the parts of the circulation. A nap after lunch is also a good rule. If one gets used to it, it will not interfere with the sleep at night.

If not a nap, several periods of complete relaxation a day will do wonders. Lying down with something over the body to keep warm, in a quiet room with no distractions, the muscles relax one by one—the neck, face, shoulder girdle, arms and legs. Don't have the radio on and don't try to read.

DRUGS HAVE little or no place in the management of high blood pressure. Sedatives may occasionally be needed, but not too often. If the individual is accustomed to a cocktail or highball before dinner, it will do him no harm to continue; in fact, it itself has a relaxing effect.

Tobacco is a somewhat different matter. It causes spasm of the arteries, and is just the opposite to relaxing. If the individual has been in the habit of smoking a good deal it is unwise to take him off altogether, but he should cut down on it.

Long vacations and long weekends are advisable. In fact, this management would be a good plan for nearly everybody over 55, no matter what his blood pressure.

Your Stars

By Marion Drew

WHAT TO EXPECT TOMORROW

Sun in Virgo.

General tendencies—Do not fall in with plans suggested to you during the morning hours tomorrow; they are liable to change suddenly. In the afternoon there may also be some difficulty connected with writing, communications or papers. Fortunately the evening brings a sense of well-being, and favorable conditions for those who are tuned to sentiment.

If Tomorrow Is Your Birthday.

You may find the year just before you rather slow in bringing you the results of your efforts. December may prove good, but the entire period is not as well fixed. However, if you can wait until next summer you will then find that your desires can be attained, although there is still some hard work to be done in the process.

Tomorrow's Watchword.

A great habit of a great many people is the subject which is emphasized by tomorrow's solar ray—worry. Some clever writer noted recently that "Worry is the interest paid by those who borrow trouble." Worry is really a habit, not a trait and, moreover, it's a thoroughly bad habit. It never rectified the condition which caused it.

Good Posture Essential to Beauty

Bad Sitting and Standing Habits Can Be Overcome With Proper Exercise

By Dr. Mary MacFadyen

IT'S smart to stand straight in this day of uniforms—chest raised and shoulders easily back. But some girls stand in a position that looks tired.

That tired-looking slumping is appropriately called "the fatigue posture," and it spoils figure beauty. In fatigue posture the chest is sunken, the shoulder blades stand out like little wings, the tummy sags and protrudes. It is far from queenly and it has nothing of grace and beauty.

This posture may be due to chronic fatigue; the girl who is always tired hasn't the pep to stand straight. Poor health may weaken the muscles and make slumping easier than standing erect. A sedentary job, such as sitting at a desk all day, may result in a stoop. This fatigue posture is most often seen in the thin, run-down type of girl, but a rounded, healthy looking lass may form the habit of slumping.

IN ADDITION TO being unattractive, the fatigue posture is bad for the health. The relaxed abdominal muscles allow the organs to sag. The lungs are cramped, air doesn't go to the bottom of them and the unventilated portions are easy prey for germs. Slumping causes a strain on the ligaments of the pelvis and hip bones and may result in backaches, too.

Good posture can be made automatic and natural. The slumping habit didn't come overnight, however, and we won't get rid of it that quickly.

Practice this stance and try to make it a habit: Lift the chest and head, and the shoulders will fall almost automatically into the correct position. Pull in the stomach, push the hips forward, and flatten the back—now you have it.

Try this little trick: Stand with your back against the wall, feet slightly apart. Raise the chest, pull your shoulders back, swing your hips forward, pull in the abdomen, and try to flatten the back so that all of it touches the wall.

MANY OF those stunning models we see in fashion magazines were not always so smart and smooth-looking. Those girls have learned how to make the most of every asset they have and they are constantly on the lookout for ways to improve their coiffures, their complexions and their figures. If they have faults of skin or figure, they know how to minimize them by means of make-up and exercises. They understand the rules of good posture; chest up, stomach in, back flat, hips forward.

Of course, that's their business—keeping up their good looks—and they devote more time to it than the average girl does. Too, they are luckier than most in having features that photograph well. But we can take a page or two of their book and profit by it.

Good grooming is the model's outstanding characteristic — they have to be smooth. This calls for frequent waves, brushing the hair thoroughly every day, and experimenting with hair-do's to find the most becoming arrangement. Make-up has to be expert: thin lips are painted larger and large lips are camouflaged. Rouge and eye make-up are used to widen or narrow the face or to enlarge the eyes. These girls swap make-up tips, and they are always experimenting with new effects.

Obviously, girls who pose before the camera cannot afford the slightest suggestion of a fat pad about the waistline, and hips and thighs must be slim. They do exercises regularly and needless to say they watch their pounds.

A favorite exercise for thighs and hips is this one; but do it only twice the first day and increase slowly until you can do it 10 times a day: Bend the right knee up toward the stomach and grasp it with the right hand; toes pointing downward. Now swing this knee outward as far as you can, then continue backward as far as you can—as if you're trying to spank yourself with your heel. Repeat with the other leg.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

SALT is usually taken for granted in the modern diet—but at various intervals it has played an important role in history. Men have revolted when taxes were levied on salt, they have used it for money, and have transported it by shiploads from country to country. However, it is really the cook who has for endless ages known the necessity of salt for bringing out the natural flavor of food and its use as a preservative. You all have experienced what forgetting the salt can do to even as simle a dish as oatmeal and we know that a "dash" or "pinch" of salt will round out the flavor of many an otherwise barely acceptable food. But perhaps you haven't yet discovered the difference a little salt can make in your breakfast cocoa or a sweet pie, cookies, or even a cooked fruit. Try adding salt to some dish which seems to be just a bit flat or uninteresting in flavor and see if it doesn't do a good job of putting it in the "above average" class.

MENUS FOR TUESDAY.

Encourage Children's Good Traits

By Angelo Patri

THERE can be no definite answer to most of the questions that rise out of adult-child relationships. Shall this boy play freely with all comers? Ought this girl have a latchkey? Should this one drive a car? This one go to late entertainments? How much money should a 16-year-old spend a week? Should such a young person go to college away from home, or to the one in town?

It depends on the nature and needs of the child or young person involved. Some boys and girls can be turned loose among the crowd on the block, or the playground, and be strengthened by the experiences found there. Some are ruined by them. The same situation arises with all children. What liberty, privileges, help or neglect they are to get must depend first on the nature of the child and then on the conditions.

Parents are in the habit of looking at the neighbors' children with grudgery. Rarely do they see how their own excel these others. It is how far short of them they fall. "Smith's boy earns his way playing in an orchestra. We have to supply ours down to the last lead-pencil." Or, "That Holly girl is certainly smart. She's the same age as our Myrtle and she's graduating a year ahead of her and gets a scholarship to boot."

The Smith family are musical, and very free and easy in their social life. The other family cannot carry a tune, and they are formal in their manner of life down to the geranium leaf in the finger bowl. Their son proceeds in an orderly, thorough fashion to accomplish his work. He is by nature sure, steady, conservative, Earning his way never occurred to him, nor to his father, until Smith boasted about his son. If this boy had wanted to do what the Smith boy did his family would have been shocked. And he couldn't have done it anyway. The same with the girls. Each lived to the pattern as set in her and developed by training and experience.

If parents want their children to work their way, shine in one field with brilliance, be a certain kind of worker or character, they must begin early and labor toward that end, for what the child does depends upon what his gifts are, what his inheritance and training give him. All children are not independent workers talented alike, developed along the same lines.

When parents desire to develop certain powers in a child they should first look to see if there is any possibility of success along the chosen line before deciding on it. Select some one strength the child shows and develop that. Don't be surprised if it turns into another kind of gift or talent as each developed power feeds growth. Work with the child you have and don't expect him to turn out like Smith's son when he is yours.

Among the fruits grown on Sicily are lemons, oranges, citrus, olives and grapes.

My Day

-o-

By Eleanor Roosevelt

(The following exclusive report was wirelessed from Australia before Mrs. Roosevelt's recent departure. Mrs. Roosevelt is on this trip traveling as a representative of the American Red Cross. All of her receipts from her column will be divided between the American Red Cross and the American Friends Service Committee.)

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA.

I HAVE not been able to tell you about all the gifts that have been given to me by the mayors and by private citizens, but I want to express here my appreciation. A card came to me, saying, "Very best wishes for a pleasant tour and a safe return home. From an interested Townsville citizen." With the cards have come gifts which I shall take home to remind me in the future of Australia's welcome and hospitality. In addition, there have been notes and messages to the President, which I know he would want me to thank the people of Australia for. I know they will give him great pleasure as a sign of our warm co-operation in the war effort.

A letter has come to me which has touched me deeply, and which I am anxious to share with my readers. "Dear Madam, I hope I am not too presumptuous in writing to you. In your reply to Mr. Curtin at Canberra, you referred to 'those youths who will not return.' I should like to thank you for those brief words of remembrance. They were deeply appreciated by one whose only son did not return from the Middle East. I wish you good fortune and bon voyage. A Mother."

I want to say here to other mothers who may think that their losses are forgotten or ignored, that never for one moment, as I look at all these young men in uniform, is my mind free from the thought of the losses brought about by the war. The loss of young lives is a world loss as well as a personal loss, and the hearts of all women bear the burden. I only pray that suffering will bind them together the world over in an effort to create a world in which sorrow need not be endured.

I saw three different types of naval ships and went aboard all of them and spoke a word to the crews. I had visited one some time ago with one of our secretaries, who always takes a special interest in the Navy. I was glad to find a few of the same men who were aboard at the time of my previous visit and to have a word with them.

This town is a rest area for troops and the Red Cross is fortunate in having a good dance hall done over from what was once a large automobile salesroom. In the daytime there is ample space for writing, games or ping pong, and every night they have a dance. This town has only some 12,000 inhabitants, and yet 500 girls are enrolled in the air force victorettes. They come night after night to dance and they have a good time, I am sure. Without them there would be no dance.

In addition, they help the Red Cross personnel with all daytime and evening activities, which make this a good place to enjoy yourself and to forget the work you have been doing, and will soon be doing again. The president is a young woman whose fiance is a prisoner of war in Japan, but she is happy tonight, because, after 19 months, without news, she has just heard from him.

One of the most interesting types of training which I have seen was an exhibition by a group of engineers on landing operations. It was very realistically done. I saw the laying of a road on a beach, with the bringing ashore of all necessary material and simulation of real occupation against enemy resistance. It seemed to me to require not only skill and courage, but a great deal of training and physical hardening, for the tasks performed were the toughest kind of work.

Thanks for the Nice Present

"Dear Susie: It was certainly kind of you to remember me on my birthday with such a delightful present. I don't know how you manage to find such original gifts!

"The little bottles, marked, respectively, 'Cinnamon,' 'Cloves,' 'Allspice,' 'Mustard,' 'Thyme' and 'Aniseed,' arrived unbroken in their dainty little wicker basket. I have always been interested in seasoning, though I seldom get beyond salt and pepper.

"I am impatient to try them but hardly know which one to use first. It seems such a shame to open the bottles. Especially now that we are cut off from the Dutch East Indies, from which most seasonings come, and I have no doubt these do, too.

"Perhaps it would be better to save them for some great occasion; as, for example, a visit from you. Probably a wonderful salad dressing could be worked up out of them. As you can see, I am putting my mind to it and am sure my efforts will be rewarded by coming upon some solution as to how the bottles may be employed to the very best advantage.

"One of the pleasantest features of my birthdays is wondering what marvelous gift you will think of next. Two years ago it was the miniature whisk broom, and last year the laundry list book with its quaint calico binding.

"The more I think of it the more selfish I feel it would be for me to open those bottles and use the contents. My palate isn't delicate enough to appreciate them as they should be appreciated.

"What I think I will do is to wait until some real connoisseur of rare flavors comes along and pass them on. They would make a capital bridge prize, provided, of course, the winner had a sense of the true value of seasonings, so thank you again a thousand times."

Have a "Coke"=That's Wizard

(IT'S THE TOPS)

"Coke"= Coca-Cola

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke".

. . . or how to be liked in London

That's Wizard, says the genial Britisher when he wants to pay you a compliment. Have a "Coke", says the American soldier, and in three words they see things alike. It's as true in a London garden as in a Los Angeles patio. All over the globe, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes—has become the happy bond between friendly-minded people.

Fresh Fruits & Vegetables in Mid-Winter!

Think of it! Such a thing doesn't seem possible, but that's the miracle of quick freezing foods. Now with the new Home Quick Freezer (they'll be available after the war) or by using a Commercial "Quick Freeze" Locker you can have "garden fresh" food far into the winter. If you are one of those lucky people who own a quick freezer now, or if you plan to buy one after the war, you'll be interested in the practical demonstration, on preparation and packing of food for quick freezing, in our Kitchen tomorrow. Don't miss it!

DEMONSTRATION on Preparing Food for Quick Freezing

UNION ELECTRIC KITCHEN 12th and Locust Sts.

In cooperation with The Consumers Interest Committee of the Office of Civilian Defense, The Consumer Division of The Office of Price Administration and the Food Conservation Committee of the Metropolitan St. Louis O.C.D. Nutrition Council.

OPA AUTHORIZES LAUNDRIES TO DROP LOW-COST SERVICES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—Laundries faced with difficulties in obtaining equipment and supplies today were authorized to discontinue lower-priced services, provided higher-priced services filling the same needs are kept up.

The Office of Price Administration said laundries desiring to discontinue established lower-priced services also must qualify under one of four requirements: (1) that specialized equipment or supplies requisite to the sevice are not available; (2) that continuation of the service would be in violation of a Government order; (3) that discontinuation would allow the laundry to maintain other services more vital to the community; (4) that other laundries in the community are able to offer the discontinued service in requisite quantity and at prices no higher.

Laundry operators must certify to their district OPA offices their notices of intention to discontinue a service, together with a statement of qualification.

FRANK FAY JOKES 1400 INTO ORDERLY EXIT DURING BLAZE

Comedian's Impromptu Gags Calm Audience When Theater Is Afire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (AP).—Comedian Frank Fay got off his best gag-line yesterday and talked an audience of 1400 into an orderly exit from the Shubert Theater when fire broke out in a shaft.

When smoke seeped into the theater, Fay said: "I'm going on. Jobs are too hard to get to let anything interfere with this one."

As spray from a fire hose splashed in at the second balcony, the star of the show "Laughtime," quipped: "I've got a pressing iron backstage. If anybody wants his clothes pressed, come back and I'll do the job for him." He then saw to it that everyone left the theater quietly.

FINNS WORRIED BY EXTENT OF NAZI RETREAT IN RUSSIA

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Germans' retreat in Russia is causing growing worry in Finland, a co-belligerent with Germany against the Soviet Union.

"The retreat is of frightful dimensions, worse than the Finns expected," said an editorial in the Helsinki newspaper Helsingin Sanomat received here. The editorial asserted the Eastern front was moving "an enormous step toward the frontiers of Europe."

Flashes of Life

Reckless Sleeping.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Passengers waiting on the platform of the Fourteenth street subway station gulped when they saw a man's body lying between two tracks, trains whizzing by within a few inches on either side.

Several men stopped the next train and jumped to the tracks to investigate.

They found Max Rydcewski, 59 years old, snoring blissfully—unhurt except for a minor bruise or two. He was sent to a hospital.

SAN FRANCISCO—They're knitting dainty garments on Alcatraz Island.

Dog Does His Bit.

ARTESIA, N. M.—Legs Boy Dog Thomas, 12-year-old Manchester, was rejected by the dog army. At seven pounds, he was too small.

But he did his bit by buying a $100 war bond, signing for it with a paw print. His owner, Hooper Thomas, appears on the bond as guardian.
